REPORT.

IN submitting the report of police administration for 1876, I labour under the disadvantage of not only having had no charge of the department during the year under review, but of having been during ten months of the period reported on absent from India on furlough in England. I have not, therefore, been able to bring to bear on the subject any personal experience of police operations during the period now reported on, and I must plead this as my excuse for any deficiencies which the report now furnished may present. As the report is really a record of the administration of the department during the year by other officers, I have thought it right to follow, as far as possible, the form of report adopted, with the approval of Government in 1875, by my predecessor, Mr. Hankey, the permanent holder of the post of Inspector-General, who was in charge of the department for eight months of the year now under review.

Introductory remarks.

2. The Commissioners' reports were received on the following dates:—

Bhagulpore	division	8th May 1877.
Chittagong	ditto	10th ditto.
Burdwan	ditto	14th ditto.
Dacca	ditto	17th ditto.
Orissa	ditto	22nd ditto.
Rajshahye and Cooch Behar	ditto	24th ditto.
Presidency	ditto	4th June 1877.
Chota Nagpore	ditto	27th ditto.
Patna	ditto	30th ditto.

3. The sanctioned strength of the police force for 1876 was—

* Inclusive of 11 District and Assistant Superintendents employed in Assam.

† Vide Government order No. 2034C.S., dated 4th November 1875.

4. The force has been augmented during 1876 by 3 sub-inspectors, 7 head-constables, and 31 constables, the details of which will be given further on in this report.

At the close of the year it was short of full sanctioned strength by only 1·2 per cent.

Budget grant.

5. The police budget of the Lower Provinces (including extra grants) was Rs. 39,56,625, distributed as follows:—

					Rs.
Regular police	37,65,610
Chittagong Hill Tracts	1,91,015
Total					39,56,625

The pay of District Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents amounted to Rs. 4,74,000. The grant for the executive police, apart from the above, was distributed as under:—

					Rs.
Bhagulporc	division	2,52,806
Patna	ditto	4,97,547
Rajshahye and Cooch Behar	ditto	4,51,114
Burdwan	ditto	4,31,375

Chittagong	ditto	1,34,004
Orissa	ditto	2,66,358
Chota Nagpore	ditto	2,44,787

6. The actual expenditure for the financial year 1876-77 under each of the different heads is given in the following table, as compared with the estimate:—

HEADS OF CHARGES		Budget grant for 1876-77, including extra grants.	Actual expenditure.	Increase.	Decrease.	Net decrease.
		Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.

GRAND TOTAL		39,56,625	38,74,363	61,873	1,44,136	82,862

* It is expected that the whole of this amount would be expended.

(a.) This increase is due to the additional pay of Colonel Gordon whilst officiating as Deputy Inspector-General, and to the acting allowance of Colonel Paterson whilst officiating as Inspector-General, being charged against the grant of this office.

(b.) This excess is due to the pay of the Officiating Assistant Superintendent appointed during the year by Government being charged against the grant.

(c.) This has been more than covered by sums transferred to this head in the course of the year from contingencies.

(d.) Against this nominal increase, recoveries to the extent of Rs. 37,588 have been made from the men and credited to the fund; there is, therefore, a saving of Rs. 3,700.

(e.) This amount is estimated by the Board of Revenue for land for police buildings, and is therefore not distributed.

7. The cost of the force employed on purely police work may be approximately put down at Rs. 25,27,809, or 8 pies per head of population. The amount is thus distributed :—

		Rs.	Pies.
Bengal	...	14,66,739, or	8.4	per head of population.
Behar	...	6,51,432, "	6.1	ditto.
Orissa	...	1,97,120, "	11.7	ditto.
Chota Nagpore	...	2,12,518, " 1 anna		ditto.

Distribution of force.

8. The general distribution is as follows :—

The frontier station of Chagulnaya having been transferred from Tipperah to Noakholly during 1876, the guard attached thereto is now shown in the latter district.

9. The proportion of men employed on purely police work to area and population in the several provinces is as follows:—

PROVINCES.	Number of police	Area in square miles.	Population.	Proportion of police to area.	Proportion of police to population.
Bengal	9,001	72,220	33,313,030	1 to 8	1 to 3,701
Behar	4,116	44,340	20,414,172	1 to 10·7	1 to 4,959
Oriasa	1,359	9,911	3,214,300	1 to 7·2	1 to 2,365
Chota Nagpore	1,321	27,887	3,309,415	1 to 21·1	1 to 2,505
Total	15,797	154,358	60,251,517	1 to 9·7	1 to 3,814

10. An addition of five sub-inspectors, 13 head-constables, 78 constables, and seven sowars, has been made in the following districts for reasons noted against them:—

DISTRICTS.	Inspectors.	Sub-inspectors.	Head-constables.	Constables.	Sowars.	REMARKS.
Beerbhoom	4	In the reserve.
Rajshahye	2	1	15	In consequence of the formation of a new sub-division at Nooroolabad.
Backergunge	6	These head-constables were shown hitherto as extra, but their permanent retention was sanctioned during the year under report.
Sonthal Pergunnahs...	1	4	The sub-inspector is for the Rajmehal court, and the constables for the Doomka jail.
Hazareebagh	2	8	For escorting time-expired convicts from central jail to their districts on liberation
Noakholly	2	4	47	Received from the Chittagong and Tipperah districts with the stations and outposts transferred from those districts on the creation of the Fenny sub-division.
Purneah	7	These sowars have been received from the Julpigoree district for road patrol.
Total increase	5	13	78	7

On the other hand, a reduction of 2 sub-inspectors, 6 head-constables, 47 constables, and 7 sowars, has been made in the districts noted below:—

DISTRICTS.	Inspectors.	Sub-inspectors.	Head-constables.	Constables.	Sowars.	REMARKS.
Burdwan	2	These head-constables were reduced from the reserve to meet an increase to the strength of the police on court duty Transferred to Purneah. Transferred to Noakholly with Chagunaya frontier station. Transferred with the Mir-ke-Serai station and its subordinate out-post.
Julpigoree	7
Tipperah	1	2	20
Chittagong	1	2	18
Total decrease	2	6	47	7

From the above it will be seen that the net increase amounts to three sub-inspectors, seven head-constables, and thirty-one head-constables.

11. The following statement shows the strength of the municipal police during the year under report, as compared with the previous year:—

	Inspectors.	Sub-inspectors.	Head-constables.	European constables.	Constables.	Chowkidars not marked under Act V.
For 1876	4	13	327	3	6,105	54
For 1875	4	15	330	3	6,121	50
Increase	4
Decrease	2	3	16	..

In Hooghly 9 constables were added,—six for the formation of a small reserve, one in the Mugrah and two in the Bhuddressur unions; and in Howrah 8 constables were added to the Khanacool union.

In Julpigorce one head-constable and 13 constables were enrolled under Act V of 1861 in place of the old chowkidars under Act XX of 1856, Act VI of 1867 having been put in force in that town.

Two other new unions were formed, viz. Rajapore in the 24-Pergunnahs and Mehnar in Mozufferpore.

In Howrah one sub-inspector was abolished and some office establishment provided for by the savings. Some petty reductions were made in the districts of Burdwan, 24-Pergunnahs, Patna, Gya, and Purneah, which, together with some trifling alterations in other districts, brought down the net decrease to two sub-inspectors, three head-constables, and sixteen constables.

12. Casualties in this body continue to be very heavy, being 23·4 per cent. in 1876, as compared with 22·4 the year before. Resignations, discharges, and desertions, were 13 per cent.—the same as in 1875; while deaths amounted to 2·3, dismissals 7·7, and discharges on pension or gratuity ·3 per cent.: and all these compare unfavourably with the returns for 1875.

In the last report the excessive casualties in the municipal police of the Howrah, 24-Pergunnahs, and Dacca districts were specially noticed; but these are now greater than ever, and rise to 75 per cent. in the first, 46 per cent. in the second, and 45 per cent. in the last district. No force can possibly be efficient if it be renewed every two or three years; and there must be something radically wrong in the organization of a body of which the members desert or resign in this wholesale manner.

It is worthy of note that the casualties among the police of the town of Calcutta amounted to only 12·9 per cent. per annum in 1875, and of the suburbs to 20·8 per cent., the average of the two being 16·8; whereas the average in the 24-Pergunnahs and Howrah amounted to 60·5, or nearly four times the former. The Commissioners of the Presidency and Dacca divisions have not made any remarks on this subject; and the only conclusion which can be arrived at is that the scale of pay offered in the towns of the 24-Pergunnahs and Howrah is out of proportion to the amount of duty demanded of the constables, who are, as a body, much the same class of men as those who take service in Calcutta and its suburbs.

13. In the course of the past year Act VI of 1870 was extended to all the districts in the Patna, Rajshahye, Dacca, Chittagong, Burdwan, and Bhagulpore divisions, except Dinagepore, Mymensingh, Howrah, and the Sonthal Pergunnahs; but nowhere has it been in force sufficiently long to allow of an opinion to be formed on its merits, Rajshahye alone excepted, and in that district it has been in operation three years in certain groups of villages. But the Commissioner expresses no opinion on the subject. The District Superintendent, however, observes that "it does not appear that the chowkidars in whose villages the new Act has been introduced receive their pay with fair regularity;" and regarding the character of this new body of rural police, he remarks that "they are more subservient than they ever were before to village communities, the result being that they are far from being the independent machinery which was contemplated;" and again, by "the new Act they are made more independent of the heads of the police" than the old class of men used to be. Without further experience of the working of the Act, I am not prepared to express an opinion on the merits of the system which it lays down. I have only seen indirectly its working in one district, and the result was not favourable. I shall be prepared after further inquiry to express an opinion on the subject.

14. All that can now be said on the subject is that the experiment seems now to be getting a fair trial. It may, however, be well to note that the Commissioner of Patna thinks the great difficulty is the uncertainty of the chowkidars receiving their pay regularly; and he mentions as one defect the want of control of the District Superintendent over the village chowkidars: but on the whole he is of opinion that the Act in question is a "move in the right direction, and experience will enable us eventually very much to improve it."

15. The Commissioner of Dacca considers that the introduction of the Act "has done some good, and will, if judiciously worked and closely supervised, do more."

16. The Commissioner of Bhagulpore observes that "one thing, however, is certain, that it has removed the great blot in the former system that the Magistrate could not enforce payment of a chowkidar's salary. In some places (Purneah) it is said that the condition also of the chowkidars has improved, and as such the measure is popular with them. It is, however, not the case with the ryots. They would certainly prefer to have the services of the chowkidars without paying for them at all, or paying at convenience." Again, "the working of the Act does not appear to be easy. The great difficulty is to secure the punctual payment of the chowkidars and the keeping of honest accounts by the punchayets."

17. The Commissioner of Burdwan expects a considerable improvement "when the Act comes into full operation, the chakran lands are settled, and the chowkidars are remunerated by monthly salaries."

18. The Commissioner of Chittagong gives no opinion on the subject of the new Act, and the Commissioner of the Presidency Division omits all mention of it in his police report.

19. During the year under review inspecting officers have noticed that in many districts the chowkidars have reported more regularly and more fully than heretofore at the police-stations; they are bound to attend at certain fixed periods.

20. In the course of the year 182 village policemen were rewarded in various ways for special acts of good conduct; on the other hand, punishments were numerous: in one district (Burdwan) as many as 950 in the twelve months. But no instance, whether of special good conduct or of the contrary, calls for particular notice.

Railway police.

21. This force stands precisely on its former footing, and consists of—

Assistant Inspector-General	1
Inspectors	7
Sub-inspectors	9
Serjeants	7
Head-constables	64
Constables...	{ Class A	...	92	}	457
	„ B 1 and 2	...	82
	„ B 3 and 4	...	283
Total					545

The casualties were 26 per cent. during 1876, or 4 per cent. less than in the preceding year; but sickness in the force was much greater, the total admissions into hospital having been 145 per cent. of the force, or 18 per cent. in excess of that of 1875.

22. The Assistant Inspector-General states that he finds some difficulty in obtaining recruits, and that in consequence of the smallness of the reserve, the great amount of sickness among the men, and the numerous resignations, nothing can be done in the way of education or general improvement of the force. By transfers from out-stations the reserve was increased by two head-constables and 15 constables in February last, in order to relieve the demands made upon it, which were found to be greater than it could fairly meet.

23. There was no change in the police at Barrackpore and Dum-Dum in the year under report. The transfer of the control from the Cantonment Magistrates to the District Superintendent, 24-Pergunnahs, alluded to in the last report, was not effected till February of the current year.

A small increase of two constables was made to the Cuttack cantonment police.

Salt preventive police.

24. By a redistribution of the district allotments, the police told off for salt preventive duties now number—

Inspectors	4
Sub-inspectors	7
Head-constables	44
Constables	206
Total					261

A sub-inspector was added to, and four head-constables and 19 constables withdrawn from, this special force during 1876.

25. Patrols have been maintained without any change, except that seven “sowars” transferred from Julpigoree have been put upon the Purneah and Darjeeling road, and have kept their beat free from crime. Taking the immense lines of communication in the Lower Provinces into consideration, it must be admitted that they are remarkably free from robbery; and where formerly travellers did not venture to pass unless armed and in numbers, they now move fearlessly, unarmed and alone, day or night.

26. Since the submission of the last report, the boat establishment has been, with the sanction of Government, revised and put upon as good a footing as the finances of the department would allow; and although it is by no means as efficient as could be desired, it nevertheless has succeeded in keeping down crime on the main waterways of the Lower and Eastern Bengal.

27. Complaints are common that the patrol boats in Backergunge and elsewhere are not sufficiently well manned, and are consequently quite incapable of overhauling fast native craft; and this is no doubt quite true, but cannot be remedied for the present at least, and, as the Commissioner of Dacca justly observes, the district officers are bound to do the best they can with what they have: and this, I think, they have done. Again, with respect to the inadequacy of the number of small boats now attached to the police-stations of Eastern Bengal during the rainy season, although the same argument applies with equal force, and cogent reasons can be, and are, given in abundance for a material increase of them, the still more cogent one of want of the necessary funds prevents anything being done in that direction.

On this head Mr. Peacock observes:—"The police are put to all sorts of discreditable shifts in impressing chowkidars and their boats to take them about from place to place. The heavy drain on the head-constables' salaries on this account alone may be fairly said to be the chief cause of their being driven by force of circumstances to be dishonest in the discharge of their duties." No doubt some reform is as urgently called for in this matter as in at least a dozen others equally important; but the question still is not what ought to be done, but how much can be done towards what is wanted with the means at our disposal.

28. The great destruction of life and property in Backergunge and Noakholly after the last cyclone having necessitated a temporary reinforcement of the police in those districts, a force consisting of an inspector, a sub-inspector, three head-constables, and 30 constables, was sent to the former; and one inspector, one sub-inspector, and 30 constables, to the latter. These officers and men were drawn from Beerbhoom, Bhagulpore, Bankoora, 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Burdwan, and Patna, and temporary appointments were made in some of them to fill the places of those detached for duty.

In Rungpore a head-constable and 16 constables were entertained as an extra guard during the construction and completion of additions to the local jail.

29. In 1875 there were only five bodies of police located as a punitive force, but last year there were twelve, in all aggregating 2 sub-inspectors, 18 head-constables, and 148 constables.

Punitive police.

	Parties.	Inspectors.	Sub-inspectors.	Head-constables.	Constables.
Backergunge	4	4	28
Shahabad	3	6	52
Furreedpore	1	3	12
Pubna	1	2	20
Rajshahye	1	8
Noakholly	1	...	2	2	24
Manbhoom	1	1	4
Total	12	...	2	18	148

30. In Backergunge and Pubna these measures were necessitated by continual disturbances arising from disputes between landlords and tenants, and in Shahabad for the suppression of robberies committed by certain villagers with the countenance and support of the "maliks."

In Furreedpore a party was quartered in a cluster of three villages in consequence of the brutal murder of a zemindar by their disaffected inhabitants.

30. In Rajshahye a similar party was located on account of injuries done to the railway line; in Noakholly, to check disturbances arising out of quarrels between the Rajah of Tipperah and certain of his tenants in the Chagulnaya pergunnah; and lastly in Manbhoom, at Maura and adjacent villages, the inhabitants of which had screened from justice persons concerned in some murders of a particularly daring character which have been committed within the last four years. The measures thus adopted have had beneficial results in checking crime and overawing bad characters, and there can be no doubt that the law on this point is a most salutary one, and has a great effect among a turbulent population and on communities habitually addicted to robbery and harbouring of notorious criminals.

31. The frontiers have been free from incursions and disturbances, and their protection has been very effective throughout the year.

Frontier police.

32. The 198 fairs held in the Lower Provinces last year, attended by over three millions of people, passed off in peace and quiet, without the occurrence of any incident worthy of note. No serious crime of any kind was reported in connection with the above gatherings, and of the 165 petty offences committed arrests were made and convictions followed in 134. The aggregate value of the property stolen in the above fairs is returned at Rs. 1,330, of which 63 per cent. was recovered by the police. Thus among every hundred thousand people attending fairs in Bengal five petty offences were reported, and the loss suffered through thefts, deducting the recoveries, was at the rate of one rupee and a half for every ten thousand.

33. Wherever and whenever practicable, instruction in reading and writing the vernacular continues to be given, and not without good results, as will be shown by the figures given below. Some sort of instruction also is given in criminal law and procedure, abkaree and salt regulations, and Act V of 1861; but, as has been explained in former reports, the adoption of any systematic course of education is no longer possible under present circumstances, and all that can be done is to instruct the rank and file in a desultory manner when off duty at head-quarters or at police-stations and outposts. Promotion is not given to the grade of head-constable without some kind of examination; and now, even including the havildars and naiks of the frontier force and some old members of the late military police still serving as head-constables, the percentage of those in that grade who can read and write and are under tuition amounts to 94 per cent. of the total employed. The numbers who can read and write in the regular police are—

Inspectors	231, or 99 per cent.	A.
Sub-inspectors	694 „ 98 „	B.
Head-constables	2,182 „ 91 „	C.
Constables	6,292 „ 41 „	D.

A. includes subadars of the frontier police.
 B. ditto jemadars ditto.
 C. ditto havildars and naiks ditto.
 D. ditto sepoy ditto.

34. In addition to the above the following officers and men can read and write a little, or are being taught:—

4 sub-inspectors.
 123 head-constables.
 3,340 constables.

35. The municipal police are comparatively more ignorant, and the following only read and write:—

Inspectors	4, or 100 per cent.
Sub-inspectors	21 „ 93 „
Head-constables	227 „ 69 „
Constables	672 „ 11 „

but 11 head constables and 1,124 constables are under instruction.

36. It is worthy of note here that many constables now read, write, and speak English besides being well up in the vernacular, and it is satisfactory to find this class steadily increasing in the 24-Pergunnahs, Jessore, Howrah, and other districts.

37. Nothing can be added to the remarks made on this subject in the last report. The standard of the last few years has been maintained, but not without difficulty.

38. In the 24-Pergunnahs a new masonry barrack for the reserve force at Alipore, and two new latrines at Dum-Dum and Barrackpore; in Nuddea new barracks for nine stations made of mud walls with thatched roof; in Rungpore the cutcherry houses attached to the police-stations at Dimla, Darwan, and Ulipore, were built during the year, besides 13 stations and 5 outposts throughout the province. The names are given below :—

				Stations.		Outposts.
In Julpigoree	Kyrantee
„ Midnapore	Binpore
„ Hooghly	Tarekissur.*
„ 24-Pergunnahs	Bistopore
„ Moorshedabad	Hurripore
„ Rungpore	Polasbaree.
„ Dacca	Kallygunge.
„ Dinagepore	Purbuthpore
„ Furreedpore	Khangungo.
„ Tipperah	Burkampta
„ Bhagulpore	Nasirnagur
„ Sonthal Pergunnahs	Colgong
				Rajmehal
				Sahebgunge
				Suruth
„ Sarun	Sarwan
				Gopalgunge	Kochaikote.

In Jessore some additions were made in the shape of barracks to the Magoorah station and Sreepore outpost. In Dinagepore similar additions were made to the station building at Putnitollah. In Noakholly and Julpigoree the new reserve buildings, which were commenced in 1875, were finished during the year.

39. The cyclone and the storm-wave of the 31st October last swept away the police-stations of Hattia, Sundeep, and Bamini, and the outposts of Nulchira and Sidhee in Noakholly; and the reserve barrack and the Soodharan station guard, together with all other stations and outposts in that district, were blown down, and a serious loss caused to Government. Considerable damage was also caused to the police buildings in Dacca, Backergunge, Dinagepore, Furreedpore, Chittagong, and the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

40. The aggregate expenditure and distribution on account of police buildings during the year will be found in the table below :—

Expenditure from Public Works Department Budget.

Casualties.

* Casualties in 1873 ...	12·4	per cent.
Ditto 1874 ...	13·1	"
Ditto 1875 ...	11·5	"

41. The casualties in 1876 in the regular police were much greater than in the preceding year, and amounted to nearly 13 per cent.* of the entire strength of all ranks:—

Retirements on pension or gratuity	68	per cent.
Resignation	4·45	"
Dismissals	3·02	"
Discharges	1·18	"
Desertions	·84	"
Deaths	2·33	"

Dismissals only were less than in the year before, but under all other heads the casualties were more. With respect to resignations, the districts named last year (Rungpore excepted) still show the greatest numbers:—

Howrah	53, or 17·3	per cent.
Railway police	71	" 13 "
Chittagong	51	" 12·3 "
24-Pergunnahs	102	" 12·1 "

In like manner Howrah and the railway police show the highest number of dismissals as in 1875:—

Howrah	57, or 18·7	per cent.
Railway police	46	" 8·4 "

showing that misconduct abounds when the service offers little attraction.

42. Deaths in the force during 1876 amount to 484, or 2·4 nearly, or ·5 per cent. more than in the two years immediately preceding it. This is accounted for to some extent, but not entirely, by the mortality following the cyclone and outbreak of cholera in Backergunge and Noakholly.

43. The death-rate was particularly high in the following districts:—

1. Backergunge	5·7	per cent.
2. Maldah	4·8	"
3. Dinagepore	4·6	"
4. Noakholly	4·5	"
5. Julpigoree	4	"
6. Darjeeling	3·8	"
7. 24-Pergunnahs	3·8	"
8. Rajshahye	3·6	"
9. Rungpore	3·4	"
10. Purneah	3·1	"
11. Furreedpore	3·2	"
12. Hooghly	3·1	"

As the great body of the force is composed of men under middle age, enlisted after medical examination, the figures given above exhibit an unusually high death-rate among them, due probably to great exposure and constant and fatiguing duty in a malarious climate. The following are the districts in which the mortality has been least:—

Mozufferpore	·2	per cent.
Shahabad	·8	"

44. The health of the force has been very bad in the districts named below, as shown by the hospital returns; but, as remarked last year, these returns are necessarily very incomplete, and do not, and cannot, show the numbers ill at distant police-stations and outposts.

45. Admissions into hospital—

1. Chittagong Hill Tracts	209	per cent.
2. Railway police	145	"
3. Julpigoree	100	"
4. Dinagepore	97·3	"
5. Rajshahye	86·3	"
6. Howrah	84	"
7. Beerbhoom	83·5	"
8. Maldah	82	"
9. Gurjhat	80	"
10. Singbhoom	76·8	"
11. Burdwan	75·9	"
12. Bogra	73·5	"

46. The average rate throughout the Lower Provinces was 49·5 per cent., and in the following districts the hospital admissions were comparatively few :—

1. Sonthal Pergunnahs	15	per cent.
2. Mozufferpore	16	"
3. Patna	17	"
4. Balasore	17·7	"
5. Shahabad	19·3	"
6. Gya	21·3	"

47. A sub-inspector in the Gurjhat, charged with extorting a confession in a case of theft by maltreatment of the suspected man, was convicted and sentenced to imprisonment, and this is the only instance of this kind during the year under report of any such conviction of an officer above the rank of head-constable. In Midnapore a head-constable and a constable were convicted of torturing a woman in order to extort a confession in a "dacoity" case, and sentenced to six and five years' rigorous imprisonment respectively. In Patna three constables were convicted of beating a woman to extort confession in a case of theft, and sent to jail—one for three and the other two for two years each. Two sub-inspectors of the Backergunge police were under trial at the close of the year, charged with extorting confession and fabricating false evidence in a "dacoity" case. Thus in all one sub-inspector, one head-constable, and four constables, received punishment for torture or maltreatment of prisoners during the year 1876.

48. In Midnapore a head-constable and a constable were convicted by the Magistrate of extortion, but were acquitted on appeal. In Burdwan two constables were convicted of the like offence, in Hooghly one constable, in the Sonthal Pergunnahs one, in Bogra one, in Maldah two, in Furreedpore one, in Durbhunga three, and lastly in Gya a head-constable was found guilty of taking an illegal gratification and imprisoned and dismissed. Briefly, one head-constable and 11 constables were convicted of this offence throughout the Lower Provinces. Besides the above convictions, an inspector of the Bogra district, two sub-inspectors, four head-constables, and four constables, accused of extortion or torture, were tried and acquitted. The inspector was honourably acquitted.

Punishments.

49. The following figures show the punishment inflicted during 1876 :—

				Judicial convictions under Penal Code.	Under Act V.	Departmental punishment.
Inspectors	1	0	7
Sub-inspectors	14	6	283
Head-constables	36	29	809
Constables	290	255	2,733
Total				341	290	3,832

	Judicial conviction under Penal Code.	Under Act V.	Departmental punishments.	Total.
1875	332	208	3,589	4,129
1874	422	204	4,028	4,716

Thus we have had of officers 1·5 per cent., and of constables 1·7 per cent., punished for offences under the Penal Code, 1 and 1·5 per cent. under Act V of 1861, and lastly 32·1 per cent. officers and 16·2 per cent. of the rank and file departmentally punished. So far as the above figures are concerned, no improvement appears in the general conduct of the force as compared with the two preceding years, vide table given in the margin.

50. In the districts named below the offences under the Penal Code were most numerous :—

1. Railway police	...	23	6. Moorshedabad	...	14
2. Noakholly	...	22	7. Nuddea	...	13
3. Jessore	...	21	8. Gurjhat	...	13
4. Midnapore	...	15	9. Dacca	...	13
5. Mymensingh	...	14

Taking into account the numerical strength of each of the above, the Gurjhat police stands at the head of the list, with 6 per cent. as the proportion punished; those of the railway coming next, with 3·8.

51. Departmental punishments were most common in—

1. Government railway police	245	6. Jessore	...	165
2. Cuttack	239	7. Burdwan	...	163
3. Gya	224	8. Dinagepore	...	140
4. Hooghly	179	9. Sarun	...	117
5. Moorshedabad	167

52. Punishments under Act V of 1861, as compared with those imposed departmentally, were rare, but in the following districts were most frequent:—

1. Noakholly	26	6. Burdwan	14
2. Government railway police	25	7. Maldah	14
3. Jessore	19	8. Midnapore	13
4. Chittagong Hill Tracts	15	9. Moorshedabad	12
5. Mymensingh	15

53. It is worthy of note that, as in the last report, the railway, Noakholly, and Gurjhat police, were shown as the worst conducted; they again appear in the same unfavourable light this year: and this is the more curious since the force in those three districts is composed of totally different materials, being mostly up-countrymen in the first, natives of Eastern Bengal in the second, and of Orissa or the tributary mehals in the last.

54. The allowance for good conduct was distributed as follows:—

	Rs.
Bengal	3,072
Behar	1,972
Orissa	552
Chota Nagpore	204
Total	5,800

At the end of the year 1876, 4,570 men wore one or more good conduct rings:—

More than 3 rings	47
3 rings	444
2 ditto	379
1 ring	3,700

or 421 more than at the end of the previous year.

55. In 19 districts 10 inspectors, 28 sub-inspectors, 58 head-constables, and 175 constables, were specially rewarded for distinguished ability, courage, or address.

56. In Mozufferpore, court-inspector Judoo Nath Bhattacharjee received a silver watch and chain for excellent services rendered in connection with a case in which gangs of Sarun bad characters were sentenced to heavy terms of imprisonment.

Sub-inspector Heeranund Patuck (now promoted to be inspector) also received a silver watch and chain for similar good conduct in the same case.

Inspector Green and a sub-inspector of the Hooghly district were specially rewarded for excellent service in connection with the breaking up of a formidable gang of “dacoits;” and sub-inspector Hurropersad (now an inspector) again distinguished himself in “dacoity” cases in Midnapore.

57. Besides the above, many other officers exhibited conspicuous ability in similar cases, and were rewarded either by promotion or by donations of money.

58. The following table gives the percentage of different religions and castes, calculated on the total strength of constables as they stood on the 31st December 1876:—

Religion and castes.

	Regular police.	Municipal police.
Christians	5	2
Mahomedans	29.6	32.8
Brahmins	14.9	13.3
Rajpoots and Khetrees	19.5	18.6
Goorkhas	2.9	3
Sikhs	4	...
High-caste Soodras	8.8	6.4
Low-caste	4.9	7
Hillmen	1.5	...
Hindoos of all other castes	14.4	21.37
Other religions	2.6	0.3

59. The total number of escapes from the custody of police was 342, of which 28 were from jails, 45 from lock-ups, 104 from police buildings, 25 from other places, and 140 from police escorts. The escapes from the custody of warders were 36 from jails and 4 from lock-ups. It is satisfactory to find that out of 382 escapes the recaptures were 238, or 62 per cent., viz. 7 per cent. more than in 1875.

The punishments for allowing prisoners to escape were as follows :—

	Inspectors.	Sub-inspectors.	Head-constables.	Constables.	Warders.
Judicially punished	0	0	4	100	3
Departmentally punished	0	1	25	69	0
Total	0	1	29	169	3

Loss of treasure.

60. No loss of treasure was reported anywhere during the year.

Escorts.

61. The following table shows the strength of police escorts furnished during the year :—

	Inspectors.	Sub-inspectors.	Head-constables.	Constables.	Mounted police.	European constables.	Total.
Treasure, stamps, &c.	1	82	1,217	7,757	10	10	9,057
Prisoners and lunatics	3	23	640	9,236	11	9,912
Miscellaneous	8	9	65	825	907
Total	12	93	1,922	17,818	10	21	19,876

The total amount of treasure escorted by the police during 1876 was more than Rs. 13,30,15,590 :—

	Rs.
Bengal	8,74,16,097
Behar	4,21,78,602
Orissa	23,02,146
Chota Nagpore	11,39,302
Total	13,30,36,147
The number of prisoners escorted was	13,357
And lunatics	221

Suicides.

Men	655
Women	1,333
Children	32
Total	2,020

62. The number of suicides was 2,020,* or less by nearly 8 per cent. than in the year 1875.

As noticed last year, the districts of Cuttack, Jessore, Gya, and Patna, have the greatest number ; Darjeeling and Bhagulpore the smallest : while the disproportion between those of males and females is again particularly noticeable in Gya, being 4 of the former and 87 of the latter. Nuddea heads the list of districts (with five) in which suicides of children appear.

63. Not taking into account the loss of life by drowning in the late cyclone, there were 25,464† deaths in all from accidental causes, or 3·6 per cent. more than in 1855, an increase appearing under every head but "drowning."

Accidental deaths.	1876.	1875.
† By drowning	10,228	10,386
„ snake-bites	9,152	9,095
„ wild beasts	1,388	1,320
„ fall of buildings	648	365
„ other causes	4,048	3,365
Total	25,464	24,531

The destruction of life annually in Bengal by snake-bites and wild beasts amounts to 10,540, or 1·7 per thousand.

64. There were 96 accidents reported on the railway, in which 14 railway servants and 35 other persons were killed, and 21 servants and 14 others more or less injured.

Inspection.

65. The following 25 districts were inspected during 1876 by the Inspector-General and Deputy Inspector-General :—

1. Backergunge.	14. Midnapore.
2. Bankoora.	15. Monghyr.
3. Beerbhoom.	16. Mozufferpore.
4. Bhagulpore.	17. Noakholly.
5. Burdwan.	18. Patna.
6. Dinagepore.	19. Pubna.
7. Durbhunga.	20. Rajshahye.
8. Furreedpore.	21. Sarun.
9. Gya.	22. Shahabad.
10. Hooghly.	23. Sonthal Pergunnahs.
11. Julpigoree.	24. 24-Pergunnahs.
12. Maldah.	25. Government railway police.
13. Manbhoom.

66. In the districts named below the duty of inspection was most thoroughly performed by the District Superintendents of Police :—

1. Hooghly.	12. Durbhunga.
2. 24-Pergunnahs.	13. Sonthal Pergunnahs.
3. Rungpore.	14. Monghyr.
4. Bogra.	15. Maldah.
5. Dacca.	16. Shahabad.
6. Furreedpore.	17. Cuttack.
7. Dinagepore.	18. Pooree.
8. Tipperah.	19. Balasore.
9. Noakholly.	20. Gurjhats.
10. Gya.	21. Hazareebagh.
11. Patna.	22. Singbhoom.

In the following the same duty was very insufficiently attended to :

1. Burdwan.	4. Jessore.
2. Chittagong.	5. Moorshedabad.
3. Midnapore.	6. Lohardugga.

67. In respect of prompt attention to communications from the headquarters office, the officers in charge of the districts below mentioned are deserving of much credit :—

1. Chumparun.	6. Bogra.
2. Purneah.	7. Bankoora.
3. Furreedpore.	8. Tipperah.
4. Rajshahye.	9. Gurjhats.
5. Singbhoom.	10. Sonthal Pergunnahs.

whereas those in charge of the below named have been the most dilatory :—

1. Lohardugga.	5. Gya.
2. Backergunge.	6. Durbhunga.
3. Sarun.	7. Noakholly.
4. Chittagong Hill Tracts.	8. Chittagong.

68. My predecessor desired to record an expression of his thanks to the Deputy Inspectors-General, Colonel Paterson and Mr. E. B. Baker, for their able and efficient discharge of the duties committed to their charge. Mr. Hankey specially wished to mention the loss sustained by the department in the departure to England of Colonel Paterson, of whose services he entertained the highest opinion. The care, ability, and success with which Captain Wilkinson performed the duties of Personal Assistant, Mr. Hankey wished specially to acknowledge.

69. The following District Superintendents and Assistants my predecessor considered worthy of mention as having successfully performed their duties :—

Mr. W. P. Davis.	Mr. H. G. Wilkins.
„ O. S. Stack.	„ A. V. Knyvett.
„ E. I. Shuttleworth.	„ E. M. Showers.
„ H. M. Reily.	„ F. Graves.
Major H. E. Waller.	„ H. Dawson.
Mr. H. W. J. Bamber.	„ G. R. K. Meares.
Captain R. P. Davis.	„ H. Munro.
Mr. A. H. Giles.	„ W. F. Smith.
Captain H. M. Ramsay.	Baboo Mohendro Nath Hazra.
Mr. W. D. Pratt.	Mr. C. E. F. Tonnerre.
„ B. H. G. Irvine.	„ R. A. D. Bignell.
„ F. Wilcox.	„ J. H. W. Clark.
„ D. W. Ritchie.	„ L. E. F. Tonnerre.
„ H. N. Harris.	„ G. D. Graham.
„ W. J. Kilby.	„ H. Bayley.

CRIME, GENERAL.

70. The number of cognizable cases reported during the year has been 117,559, as compared with 120,838 of last year and 126,122 of the year immediately preceding it, showing a diminution of 3,279 cases as compared with 1875 and of 8,563 cases as compared with 1874. Last year may be considered an average year as regards crime; whereas in 1874 there were exceptional circumstances which tended to raise the percentage of cases. The diminution during the present year as compared with 1875 may therefore be considered satisfactory.

There has been a decrease both in cases against person and property, with an increase in cases of a miscellaneous nature, as shown below:—

	1874.	1875.	1876.
Cases against property	92,489	81,809	77,948
" " person	15,489	19,249	17,351
Other cases	18,144	19,780	22,260
	126,122	120,838	117,559

71. In the table below a comparison is made of the number of cognizable cases reported during the past five years, with the number and result of arrests:—

	1872.	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
Cases reported	1,04,121	110,627	126,122	120,838	117,559
Number arrested	77,537	80,663	95,729	91,531	91,706
Finally convicted	43,920	46,705	57,704	51,528	57,092
Acquitted	30,526	29,878	32,801	30,322	30,146

Deducting false cases, the number accepted as true is 95,747, against 94,783 of 1875 and 99,191 of 1874.

72. The proportion of true crime to area and population for the whole province has been with reference to Area 1 to 1·6 square miles, and with reference to Population 1 to 629 souls.

I have not given the figures on this point by divisions as in last year's report, for I find that the area, and consequently the population, of each division has undergone several changes during different years on account of transfer of districts or part of districts, and any comparison divisionally is misleading.

73. The following statement shows divisionally the number of cases reported, those accepted as true, and the percentage of cases declared to be false during the past four years:—

74. In none of the divisions of the province, except Bhagulpore, has there been any fluctuation in the way of increase of crime worth mention. In the Bhagulpore division the figures show that there has been an increase of above 1,000 cases during the year, the figures* for 1875 showing 11,242 cases as compared with 12,301 in 1876. This increase is apparent in two districts of that division,—Bhagulpore, which shows an increase of 550 cases, and the Sonthal Pergunnahs, which shows an increase of 355 cases as compared with last year. Such increase in districts will be dealt with subsequently.

75. In the divisions of Burdwan, Presidency, Patna, and Orissa, there is a considerable fluctuation in the way of decrease of crime,—Burdwan showing a decrease of 1,182 cases, Presidency of 1,433 cases, Patna of 956 cases, and Orissa of 785 cases. Putting aside, for the present, consideration of decrease in individual districts, the fluctuation treated divisionally throughout the province appears very trifling when the numbers of the population are borne in mind. The increase of 1,000 cases in Bhagulpore has occurred in a population of above six millions, the decrease of 1,182, 1,433, 956, and 785 cases amongst a population of 6 millions, 7½ millions, 13 millions, and 4 millions, respectively, in the Burdwan, Presidency, Patna, and Orissa divisions.

76. As observed last year, the decrease in serious crime continues, while petty crime shows an increase—a result which must be considered satisfactory from our police point of view. It is quite a question, however, whether this increase of petty crime is satisfactory to villagers, most of whom, I imagine, prefer taking the chance of a dacoity or two happening at intervals in their villages to being systematically plundered of small sums, or property of small value, by old dacoits converted into local petty thieves.

77. The number of false cases instituted still continues large; but it is satisfactory to observe that the gradual diminution in these cases noticed last year still continues. The percentage has been reduced gradually since 1873, as the table below shows:—

In the present year in seven divisions the percentage of false cases has fallen; in twenty-eight districts the same results are visible; while in only eight districts has the number of false cases increased. The most prominent instance of steady reduction is the Dacca division. The average percentage of false cases in this division for the past three years has been 38 per cent. During the past year it has fallen to 23 per cent. In one district, Mymensingh, the percentage has fallen from an average of 52 to 16 per cent.

78. I have not been furnished in the Commissioners' reports with materials from which to prepare a table showing the results of prosecutions for false cases instituted; but in every division the subject receives marked attention. The old difficulty, however, of determining whether many of those cases returned as false are in reality only non-cognizable still continues; and the subject is now again before Government. There is no doubt that constant vigilance on the part of the Magistrate is necessary to prevent the number of false cases returned from police-stations increasing; but, as every Magistrate is aware, the utmost vigilance rarely results in the Magistrate arriving at a conclusion other than that arrived at by the police. In deciding whether a case returned by the police as false is really false or not, the Magistrate has only before him the evidence which has already come before the police. If he orders further inquiry by the police, he has them against him; and local investigations after police inquiry do not usually, in the matter of successful results, repay the time and trouble expended by the Magistrate on them. If the figures showing the number of cases returned as false by the police, in which the Magistrates took action by summoning the complainant, by local inquiry or otherwise, be looked at, it will be found that practically in the vast majority of cases the Magistrates agree with the police in the conclusion at which the latter have arrived. I make this remark not with the intention of suggesting that the vigilance of Magistrates in this matter is useless (for such vigilance undoubtedly prevents careless or lazy police-officers sending up many cases as false), but with the object of making it clear that such vigilance on the part of Magistrates does not enable them in the great majority of instances to do anything more than adhere to the opinion of the police in cases which are actually reported by them as false.

79. The table below shows that gradually more uniformity in practice as to non-inquiry into cases by the police is being attained. The percentage for the present year of cases not inquired into is 9, against an average of 11 per cent. for the past three years. The districts which still show the largest number of cases not inquired into are Sarun (38 per cent.) and Gya (32 per cent.).

80. In the resolution on last year's Police Report, Government declared that the adoption of any hard-and-fast rule in dealing with this subject is unadvisable, and that a discretion should be left with the local authorities. It is, in my opinion, satisfactory to find that local authorities are using this discretion more in the way of making the police take up, than reject, complaints. I would rather spend the time of the police than encourage the people to conceal petty crime, which, in my opinion, is the result of extensive rejection of complaints and refusal of inquiry in petty cases. I quite agree with my predecessor that no arbitrary money standard of investigation should be fixed. This practice still exists in some districts, thefts of property under five rupees being treated as petty and not inquired into—a practice, in my opinion, mischievous. Loss of five rupees represents more than a month's subsistence allowance of a ryot and his family, and he looks upon such a loss as the reverse of inconsiderable. Denial of inquiry in, to him, such an important case, he looks upon as injustice, especially when he has taken the trouble to complain at the police-station, and his fellow villagers, agreeing with him in this opinion, cease giving information of such thefts when no police action follows report at the thana unless a clue to the offender be given along with such report.

81. I have always looked with great suspicion on police reports of petty thefts in which it was stated the complainant desired no inquiry. The very fact of his giving information at all is an indication that he desires inquiry; and the record of his abandoning such intention is too often only the device of an indolent policeman to save himself the trouble of going to the village where the theft took place, especially if the weather be hot or rainy.

82. Not merely, moreover, does absence of inquiry discourage the villagers who have been plundered of property of no very large amount, but it acts as a direct encouragement to local bad characters to persevere in petty crime. With the diminution of serious crime, which has taken place of late years, petty crime has increased; and if local budmashes are led to believe that so long as thieving operations are confined to small amounts the police will remain inactive, they will inflict more general injury on villagers than did the old gangs on the well-to-do residents.

83. The total number of cases reported during the year was 117,559, and the number which occurred in previous years but was brought under inquiry in the present year was 2,132,—grand total 119,691. Deducting from this total the number of false cases (21,812) and of cases not inquired into (10,864), the net total of cases was 87,015. In 34,092 cases conviction was obtained, or 39·2 per cent., against 38·9 of last year and 39·8 of 1874.

The total number of persons arrested during the year, including those pending at the close of 1875 (4,029) and transfers (35), was 95,770. Of these 57,092, or 59 per cent., were convicted. Arrests under Magistrates' orders were 22,625, against 22,921 of last year,—nearly the same percentage as in previous years.

The remaining number was thus disposed of:—

Released by Magistrate without trial	3,970
Died, transferred, or failed to appear	223
Otherwise disposed of	333
Awaiting trial at sessions	322
„ before Magistrate	3,358
On bail or in police custody	324

The number of persons actually put on trial was 91,253; of whom 57,092, or 62 per cent., were convicted, against 61·3 of last year, and 30,146, or 33 per cent., acquitted, against 34 per cent. of 1875.

84. The numbers for the past three years, compared divisionally, are exhibited in the following table:—

86. There has been rather a tendency to increase of arrests in the majority of districts, and there is a slight increase in the total number throughout the province.

In the following districts the proportion of convictions to arrests was satisfactory :—

Howrah, Darjeeling, Julpigoree, Chittagong Hill Tracts,	Sonthal Pergunnahs, Hazareebagh, Lohardugga, Manbhoom;
--	---

while in the following the results of arrests were unsatisfactory :—

Jessore, Moorshedabad, Backergunge,	Mymensingh, Durbhunga, Cuttack.

The greatest number of convictions in cases brought to trial has been obtained in—

Howrah, Darjeeling, Chittagong Hill Tracts, Julpigoree,	Gurjhats, Hazareebagh, Manbhoom, 24-Pergunnahs ;

while in Jessore and Backergunge the result has been unsatisfactory, the percentage of convictions in the latter district being only 45, and in the former 48.

87. In the report for last year comparison was drawn between the number of acquittals in Bengal and other provinces, and the Lieutenant-Governor, in paragraph 30 of the resolution on the Police Report, considered it impossible not to suspect that there “is some difference either in the manner in which complaints of certain classes are dealt with, or in the instructions issued as to the method of preparing the returns in the several provinces.” The results of

Result of inquiry into the mode of calculating the percentages of acquittals and convictions in the Upper Provinces as compared with that in Bengal.

the inquiries instituted by my predecessor in accordance with these remarks have already been laid before Government (vide this office letter No. 683, of the 23rd January 1877), and it is needless here to recapitulate them. It may be sufficient here to mention that the system pursued in the other provinces, with reference to the persons shown as “brought to trial” and with regard to the “number of arrests” is not the same as that in Bengal. I have had a table prepared showing the result of our acquittals on the system pursued in the sister provinces, and the result is that Bengal is the gainer by two per cent. Still even this improvement does not do away with the facts mentioned in last year’s report, which tell against the action of the police in making arrests. There is a slight improvement throughout the province this year, still the proportion of persons arrested, who turn out to have (so far as legal proof against them goes) been wrongly arrested, is large.

88. It is extremely difficult to lay down any rule on the subject which will not hamper the police and impede justice rather than benefit the legally innocent. The majority of cases are investigated by head-constables, whose knowledge of law is extremely limited, and who are not capable of deciding whether there is full legal proof against an accused person before they arrest him, or not. This is an admission against the police, but I am afraid it must be made. There is further a strong and growing tendency on the part of Joint and Deputy Magistrates, before whom the majority of police cases are tried, to be purely judicial officers;—i.e. they simply decide on the evidence laid before them by the police, never thinking, as a rule, of calling for further evidence or consulting the police papers to see whether all the evidence has been sent up by the investigating officer. It is not, I am aware, theoretically the duty of the Joint or Deputy Magistrate to do anything but decide on the evidence laid before him. It is the duty, theoretically, of the court-inspector to prosecute all cases before the judicial authorities; but I have no hesitation in saying that court-inspectors do not in most, and cannot in many, instances prosecute cases: and the consequence is that such cases fail in many instances simply for want of any officer appointed to look after the prosecution or caring to sift them to the bottom. The real prosecutor in the case remains the ignorant head-constable, who has perhaps made an imperfect investigation originally, and the result of such imperfect investigations, not supplemented by any supervision at head-quarters, is the failure of numerous cases and a large increase in the number of arrests of persons presumably wrongly arrested. There ought to be a public prosecutor in reality at each sudder and sub-divisional station, instead of merely in name as at present; and with reference to police cases at the sessions, there might with great advantage be some new appointments made to the post of Government vakcels. For I know in some instances, and have reason to believe in others, that the present representatives of the Crown in criminal cases at the sessions are the reverse of efficient, and are not unfrequently quite unable to cope with the legal talent which is brought to bear against them for the defence. Were more attention paid to the efficient prosecution of police cases before the courts, I venture to think that there would be a sensible increase in convictions, and a perceptible decrease in those apparently causeless arrests which have been a source of animadversion on the police administration for years.

89. In paragraphs 91 et seq. of last year's report, the very high proportion of acquittals to convictions in sessions trials was commented on, and the failure of such cases deplored. It was brought to my notice, when not holding the present appointment, that there was a mistake in the calculations on which these remarks were founded, and I have ascertained that such a mistake actually has occurred. The mistake lies in this that, under acquittals by Sessions Court in column xvii, Statement A, Part I, are included not merely acquittals at sessions trials, but acquittals by the Sessions Judge on appeals from Magistrates. If, therefore, we wish to compare the actual results of acquittals and convictions at sessions trials, we must exclude from the total of column xvii (a) the acquittals on appeal from magisterial orders. In column xvii for this year the total of acquittals at sessions is 1,503 to 1,788 convictions. If acquittals on appeal, however, are excluded, the result is 1,046 acquittals to 1,788 convictions.

90. The following table shows the results of sessions trials with reference to persons during 1876:—

93. In the above statement I have shown the results of trials at sessions before a jury in the case of the first seven districts, and before assessors in the remaining districts. It will be observed that in three out of the seven jury districts the result of sessions trials is decidedly unfavourable, in three moderately favourable, and in one fairly satisfactory. The statement, however, is incomplete, inasmuch as I cannot, from the materials at my disposal, show the results of jury trials with reference to each class of crime. The prevalent opinion of the tendencies of a jury is that they convict too readily in offences against property, and that they are slow to convict in serious offences against the person. I am sorry that in the present report I cannot show whether this opinion is based upon facts with reference to jury trials in the past year. The point will meet with attention next year.

94. In this year the result of cases before the Patna jury, as was the case last year, was especially unfavourable, although the percentage this year of acquittals is not so high as that of last year.

96. Operations have been successful in the following districts:—

24-Pergunnahs,
Chittagong Hill Tracts,

Shahabad,
Cuttack,

Lohardugga;

while in the undermentioned districts the percentage of recovery has been very unsatisfactory:—

Bankoora,
Rajshahye,
Furreeepore,

Backergunge,
Sarun,
Singbhoom.

In Bankoora especially the failure in recovery of stolen property is most signal. Of Rs. 7,448 stolen, Rs. 296 have been recovered—somewhat above 3 per cent. ! For the last four years Bankoora, one of the lightest districts in Bengal, has been most unsuccessful in dealing with thefts; but this year the operations are more discreditable than ever to the police.

Classification of crime.

97. The following table exhibits the classification of true crime reported during the last five years:—

		Class of Crime.
		1872.	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
Class I	...	3,120	2,929	2,606	2,755	2,700
" II	...	4,018	4,392	3,905	4,184	4,108
" III	...	20,210	24,531	28,615	23,957	22,280
" IV	...	3,994	4,126	6,495	9,862	9,073
" V	...	38,767	40,267	43,343	38,093	38,832
" VI	...	14,497	13,765	13,272	15,206	18,257
Other special laws	...	599	872	951	726	495

It will thus be seen that there is a very considerable decrease under Class III, a considerable decrease under Class IV, a slight decrease under Classes I and II, a considerable increase under Class V, and a very marked increase under Class VI. The decrease under Class III is satisfactory, and the increase under Class V is apparent entirely under the least important of all the headings of the class, viz. criminal or house-trespass (sections 447 and 448). Under this heading alone there is an increase of 1,139 cases, which more than accounts for the increase in the total of the class,—thus showing that under the other more important headings of this class there has been a decrease on the whole during the year.

The large increase of 3,051 cases under Class VI is more than accounted for by an increase of 1,570 prosecutions under the vagrancy laws, and of 1,574 cases under local nuisances.

98. There were 3,284 cases reported under this class during the year, of which 584 were declared false, leaving a balance of 2,700 to be accounted for, showing a trifling decrease of 55 cases as compared with last year. Convictions were obtained in 1,328 cases, or 49 per cent., as compared with 1,333, or 48·4 per cent., of last year. Out of 9,544 persons put on trial 5,880, or 61·6 per cent., were convicted, as compared with 6,193 out of 10,078, or 61·4 of last year.

The result of sessions cases this year shows 164 convictions to 212 acquittals—a result better than last year, but still unsatisfactory. My remarks, however, in paragraph 89 as to acquittals on appeals from magisterial orders being included in such sessions acquittals must be borne in mind. If these acquittals on appeal be excluded, the results of sessions trials will stand differently.

99. There is an increase under this head as compared with last year, there being 160 cases as compared with 135. The increase in itself is not large provincially, but if the tables be looked at, it will be found that the increase is local, being apparent in Midnapore, Moorshedabad, Sonthal Pergunnahs, Rajshahye, 24-Pergunnahs, and Durbhunga. This matter will be noticed further on. Convictions were obtained in 83 cases, and of 213 persons brought to trial 86 were acquitted and 123 convicted. These results show a considerable improvement on last year, when the percentage of convictions in cases and in persons was 47 respectively, while this year in cases the percentage of convictions has been 52 and in persons 57·7. At the sessions 24 persons were convicted and 10 acquitted.

100. Under this head there has been a decrease of above a hundred cases compared with last year, and, with the exception of 1874, each year for the past five has brought a decrease of this crime—

Cases.					Cases.
1871	2,502	1874	1,810
1872	2,336	1875	2,044
1873	2,108	1876	1,933

It is also evident from the entries of cases in the sessions column, and from the testimony of almost all officers, that serious riots have very much diminished, although I do not think that enough has been done to stamp out this crime, which in the eastern districts, at least is still a blot upon our administration. The orders of Government on the subject of punitive police being more largely employed to repress turbulence on the part of villagers and zemindars have been attended to, and are still being attended to, and I have no doubt that the system of quartering such police on disturbed tracts at the cost of villagers does good. The difficulty, however, which has always existed in the way of reaching the principals in these agrarian disturbances still continues.

101. The proportion of cases in which convictions were obtained is shown below and compared with preceding years:—

1871	37·0	1874	47·2
1872	42·2	1875	43·8

102. The number of cases declared to be false was 21·7 per cent., against 26·4 in 1875, and the percentage of persons convicted was almost the same as in last year, viz. 5,109, or 60·4, as against 5,479, or 60·05 of 1875.

103. As usual, the Dacca division shows itself to be the most turbulent in the province. In fact, of the 1,933 cases ascertained to have been committed, no less than 761 occurred in the Dacca division. Within this division an increase of cases is visible in the districts of Furreedpore, Backergunge, and Mymensingh. There is also an increase in the district of Burdwan, while a decrease is apparent in Nuddea, Rajshahye, and Midnapore. The largest number of cases occurred in the following districts:—

DISTRICTS.	Cases reported.				Declared false.				Convictions obtained.
	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.

Patna ...	46	74	81	8	13	12	25	35	41

It will be observed that in each of these districts, except Gya and Patna, the Mussulman prevails over the Hindoo element in the population.

104. In the following districts the results of prosecution were satisfactory:—

DISTRICTS.	Cases.	Convictions in cases.	Persons tried.	Persons convicted.
Burdwan ...	61	30	294	181

5. The results were unfavourable in the following districts:—

106. The result of sessions trials is 136 convictions to 149 acquittals. In Bhagulpore and Burdwan divisions not one man was convicted in the Sessions Court, while in the following districts the results were very unfavourable:—

DISTRICTS.	Acquittals.	Convictions.	DISTRICTS.	Acquittals.	Convictions.

In the Dacca division alone were the convictions at all satisfactory, there being in all 98 convictions to 66 acquittals; Backergunge and Mymensingh giving the best results with 46 and 29 convictions to 26 and 8 acquittals, respectively.

BURDWAN DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted	Acquitted.

Howrah	62	48	4	162	125	31
Total	270	296	31	929	559	310

There has, as in last year, been a slight decrease in the total number of cases under this class. There were 168 true cases of rioting and unlawful assembly, against 177 of 1875. Most of these were of a petty nature, arising out of disputes about land or crops. In Burdwan, out of 61 true cases, two were serious riots attended with loss of life and three with hurt. Convictions were obtained in four out of these five cases.

108. There has been a considerable increase in the number of cases connected with coining in the district of Midnapore, there having been no less than 14 cases against an average of seven. The Commissioner very properly comments on the remarks of the police as to none of these cases being of importance, and gives it as his opinion that "every case of coining is of importance, and that those in which there are grounds for believing that the false coins have been struck from spurious dies are of very great importance." In nine of these cases conviction followed.

109. The percentage of convictions in the division has not been so good as last year, but the results, both as regards convictions in cases and with reference to persons in the district of Howrah, are exceptionally good.

Moorshedabad	79	96	10	430	192	206
Total	455	425	60	1,615	933	593

There has been a decrease of 90 cases during the year under this class. Out of 365 cases convictions were obtained in 203, or 55·6 per cent., against 47·2 per cent. last year. The convictions of persons have also not been unsatisfactory, being 57·7 per cent.

111. Under rioting and unlawful assembly there were 249 cases out of the total number of 365 in this class. It is satisfactory to find that cases of this kind are gradually decreasing, as will be apparent from the figures below:—

DISTRICTS.	True cases.			Convictions.
	1876.	1875.	1874.	1876.	1875.	1874.
24-Pergunnahs	51	52	53	37	31	32

Jessore	88	137	143	51	49	60
Moorshedabad	47	55	58	18	12	30

The percentage of convictions to persons brought to trial was in—

24-Pergunnahs	72·1	Jessore	63·4
Nuddea	49·8	Moorshedabad	42·3

Neither in the 24-Pergunnahs nor in Moorshedabad was there any serious riot. In Nuddea there was one case attended with loss of life, and in Jessore there were two such cases. Both occurred in the Narail sub-division, well known of old for its turbulence. One took place between the adherents of Chunder Kumar Roy and Gobind Chunder Roy, son of the late well-known Guru Dass Roy, on account of a dispute for possession of land and crops. A stand-up fight in the old style ensued, and one of the latiyals was killed. In this case 39 persons on the part of Chunder Kumar Roy and 15 on that of Gobind Chunder were committed; but only 10 of the former were convicted. Two of the zemindars were also sent up, and Gobind Chunder Roy was sentenced under section 155 to pay a fine of Rs. 500, the sentence being upheld on appeal to the High Court.

Class I. 112. RAJSHAHYE AND COOCH BEHAR DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.

Julpigoree	17	35	2	40	28	8
Total	364	457	112	983	607	341

There has been a slight decrease in the total number of cases. In cases of rioting and unlawful assembly there has been a decrease in Pubna and Bogra, owing to the Banerjee zemindars of Shahzadpore in Pubna having come to terms with their "bidrohi" ryots, and owing to the existence of more satisfactory relations between ryot and zemindar. In Rajshahye the dispute between the two zemindars Shama Sundari and Chundra Moni, alluded to in last year's report, having terminated, there is a diminution in cases of rioting.

No cases require special notice, but Dinagepore again merits unfavourable mention for the results of cases brought to trial. No less than 42 persons were acquitted and only 16 convicted. An attempt is made at explanation of this result by the District Superintendent, who writes:—"These cases have mostly ended unfortunately, through the difficulty there always is in these disputes of obtaining independent evidence which the trying officer can trust." The difficulty exists, but it is got over in other districts, and I see no reason why it should not be overcome in Dinagepore also.

Class I. 113. DACCA DIVISION.

Tipperah	132	163	35	614	435	110
Total	787	1,065	199	2,651	1,669	745

There has been an increase of cases under this class in this division, which is the most turbulent in Bengal. Of the 866 true cases no less than 761 occurred under the head of rioting and unlawful assembly. The Commissioner points out that in almost all the districts of his division there has been a steady rise in this dangerous class of crime, as shown by the figures below:—

DISTRICTS.	Number of true cases.
	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
Dacca	119	131	120	103
Furreedpore	98	119	151	188
Backergunge	171	171	186	210
Mymensingh	117	90	102	117
Tipperah	84	104	128	118
Total	589	615	687	736

114. This is a very serious state of matters, and is a confession that law-breakers in the Dacca division have proved too strong for the administrators of the law. I confess I do not see why this should be; in other districts notorious for turbulence it has been found practicable to curb rioters under the present code; and, I am not inclined to admit that, even in the districts of Backergunge and Furreedpore, the home of latiyals, the law is not strong enough to assert itself. I think with a vigorous use of the provisions of the law as to taking security to prevent breaches of the peace from zemindars and their cutcherry amlah, who are generally at the bottom of such disturbances, the quartering of punitive police, and the employment of special constables, more should be done to stop riots than has been done. I think it, moreover, worthy of consideration whether in such turbulent districts as Furreedpore and Backergunge the provisions of the Arms Act, with reference to disarming persons likely to commit breaches of the peace, should not be more vigorously applied.

115. No less than 27 of these cases of riot were attended with loss of life, viz.—

In Dacca	1
„ Furreedpore	8
„ Backergunge	11
„ Mymensingh	5
„ Tipperah	2

Mostly all these cases had the usual origin—disputes about land. In one of the cases in Furreedpore a zemindar, Poorno Chunder Roy, was deliberately murdered by his ryots, between whom and him bad feeling, with reference to an attempted levy of an illegal cess, had arisen. The murderers were convicted at the sessions but acquitted by the High Court, who distrusted—and, from what I have learned subsequently, with justice—the proceedings of the police-officer who investigated the case. The result of this trial is much to be deplored, as it must have a bad effect on other disaffected ryots, and assassinations of this kind are not very difficult to perpetrate, while with the ryots banded together against their landlords they are most difficult of detection. None of the other cases possessed any unusual features of interest requiring special notice.

Crime under this class is almost stationary. The result of conviction is extremely good, being almost 80 per cent.

In rioting and unlawful assembly the results have not been so satisfactory, Noakholly showing convictions of 47 per cent. and Chittagong of 53 per cent. in cases. The only case which requires notice is the now well-known Fennua case, which has been so prominently before the public that I need do nothing more than mention it. The Commissioner notes another case of riot, attended with murder, to show miscarriage of justice. Both sides were sent up and tried together, which was wrong. “Reading the conflicting and exaggerated statements of each party, the Joint-Magistrate is reported to have come to the conclusion that the provocation was all on one side, and acquitted the defendants of the other party. The Judge thought the reverse, and acquitted those whom the Joint-Magistrate held to be guilty.”

Chumparun	29	18	102	88	14
Total ...	439	473	75	1,617	951	502

There has been a decrease in this class throughout the year, but not to such an extent as to call for special explanation.

118. Under rioting and unlawful assembly there has been a decrease of 13 cases, also insignificant. The operations of the police in this most important class of cases have been successful, as the figures below show :—

	Cases.	Convicted.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Patna	69	41	435	197	164
Gya	62	16	206	100	87

Durbhunga	33	18	158	107	42
Sarun	36	20	196	135	38
Chumparun	12	...	88	75*	13

These results will most probably also show better when the large number of cases pending at the close of the year, 119, has been decided; meanwhile the results already obtained are satisfactory.

There were only two cases attended with loss of life. One of them occurred at Jamuria in Gya, in connection with a dispute between two rival landholders, and the other in Durbhunga, owing to a long-standing quarrel between Mr. Lloyd, an indigo-planter, and Nundun Lall, a zemindar. Both cases have already been specially reported to Government.

In Mozufferpore there have been six cases of rioting in which indigo factories were concerned; and in two of these the factories were found to be in fault, the adherents of the planters having attempted to sow indigo forcibly.

119. The result of cases of personating public servants was very successful, convictions being obtained in 13 out of 16 cases, and 16 persons out of 19 having been punished. A rather curious case is noted in which the accused proceeded to a village, armed with what purported to be a perwanna from the Judge of Patna authorizing him to collect Rs. 4,500 from every house-holder, mahajun, and owner of bullocks, on default of payment each recusant to be chalaned. A mahajun called on to pay four annas demurred to paying more than two annas; an altercation ensued, a crowd gathered, and amongst the spectators was the Dak Moonshi, who soon discovered the perwanna to be fictitious. The pseudo public servant was tried and sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment.

* The convictions were obtained in cases in which arrests were made by order of Magistrate.

There is so slight an increase in the number of cases that crime may be said to have been stationary. The Commissioner notices with satisfaction the steady decrease in rioting cases for some years, especially with reference to Purneah, which, once notorious for such cases, has now brought down its figures for reported cases nearly to the same level with Bhagulpore and Monghyr. The result of the cases brought to trial, as will be seen from the table above, has been very good in Monghyr and the Sonthal Pergunnahs.

None of the cases require special notice.

Gurjhat	5	9	1	11	9	2
Total ...	72	154	55	382	185	113

There is an increase of 27 cases in this division, apparent in Pooree and Balasore, but none of the cases are of importance. Pooree again, as in last year, stands conspicuous for the proportion of cases reported which turn out false. No less than 54 per cent. of cases are reported as false, while the percentage in the other districts is very low. No explanation of this circumstance is given. In the district of Balasore and the Gurjhat the result of cases brought to trial is satisfactory, the convictions of persons tried being respectively 71 and 82 per cent. The result is not satisfactory in Pooree, and still less so in Cuttack, where there were only 17 convictions to 28 acquittals.

Class I. 122. CHOTA NAGPORE DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.

Singbhoom	7	6	15	4	4
Manbhoom	10	11	30	24	5
Total ...	58	60	6	172	96	66

The crime under this class continues light as ever, there being a slight decrease of four cases reported. It is satisfactory to learn from the Commissioner's report that all the cases of rioting and unlawful assembly which took place were of a petty nature, and were all disposed of by the Magistrates. Except in Manbhoom, the result of trials of persons was not satisfactory, and the total number of convictions in the division shows a falling off as compared with last year.

Class II.—Serious offences against the person.

123. The figures given represent the number of cases during the last six years:—

1871	3,730	1874	3,905
1872	4,071	1875	4,184
1873	4,392	1876	4,108

There was thus a decrease of 76 cases within the year. Convictions were obtained in 1,630 cases, or at the rate of 39.6 per cent., against 41 of 1875 and 42 of 1874. The number of persons convicted was 2,943, or 46.3 per cent., against 3,004, or 45 per cent. of 1875. The percentage of cases, therefore, in which conviction followed is slightly worse, and of convictions of persons slightly better, than in 1875. The results compared with the three preceding years are as follows :—

	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
Arrested	7,469	6,592	7,079	6,730
Convicted	3,245	2,987	3,004	2,943
Percentage of convictions to arrests	43	45	42	44
Ditto ditto to trials	46	47	45	46·3

Murder.

124. There has been an increase under this heading, as will be seen from the figures given below :—

	1871.	1872.	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
By dacoits	7	12	11	9	2	3

Other murders	288	303	292	259	270	299
Total	312	349	349	302	302	342

This increase is chiefly visible in murders by poison, which have doubled in number, and other murders. It is impossible to account satisfactorily for fluctuation in this crime. The result of the action of the police is given below :—

The result cannot be called satisfactory. The total number of cases reported was 388, of which 46 were declared to be false. Of 930 persons tried, 199 were discharged by Magistrates and 298 by Sessions Judges, only 273 being convicted finally.

125. Of the three true cases under this heading, one occurred in Dinagepore, one in Hazareebagh, and one in Lohardugga.

Murder by dacoits.

In the Dinagepore case all the persons implicated who appeared before the Magistrate, 11 in number, were convicted. Seven out of 11 persons in the Hazareebagh cases were convicted. The third case was pending final decision at the close of the year. This result is satisfactory.

126. As noticed last year, crime under this head continues almost stationary throughout the province. In the Chittagong division, as last year, no cases occurred, and the Cuttack division is also this year free from this crime. The 17 cases reported, all of which were true, occurred in the following districts, with the following results:—

The results, on the whole, were satisfactory; and in the Burdwan division and Monghyr district the operations of the police were very successful, conviction being obtained in every case reported. Of 38 persons implicated in these cases who appeared before the Magistrate 24 were convicted at the sessions, 10 were released, 3 were discharged by the Magistrate, and one was pending trial, having been committed to the sessions, at the close of the year.

127. There has been a large increase of cases under this heading, there being no less than 23 true cases, against 12 of last year. The largest number occurred in Backergunge, Murder by poison.

where there were five, and the remaining 18 are spread over the districts of all the divisions of the province except Cuttack. In no district have these cases occurred to such an extent as to furnish ground for special inquiry or explanation. The results of police operations in these secret and very difficult cases were, as has generally been the case, unsatisfactory. In 7 cases out of 23 only was conviction obtained, and of 47 persons who were arrested, and 40 who appeared before the Magistrate, only 10 were convicted at the sessions, the rest being acquitted or discharged, except 10, who remained pending trial at the close of the year.

128. There was an increase of 29 cases throughout the province, there being 299 reported true, as against 270 last year.

Other murders.

The Dacca division is nearly as conspicuous for violent crime in this class as for offences under rioting in class I, seventy-two cases, or nearly one-fourth of the whole of the "other murders" of the province, having occurred in the districts which are included in that division. The largest number of cases occurred in the following districts:—

130. There is a decrease of only six cases throughout the province, there being 55 true cases as against 61. The results are as follows:—

131. There was a decrease of 13 cases throughout the province as compared with last year. The results were not so good as those obtained last year, as the following figures will show:—

It will be seen that there is a general falling off in convictions throughout the province, and notably so in the divisions of Bhagulpore and Chota Nagpore. In the district of Bhagulpore, where there were 11 true cases, not a single conviction was obtained—a deplorable result. In the districts of the

24-Pergunnahs,
Mymensingh,

Tipperah,
Noakholly,

the results were satisfactory; in almost all the other districts the reverse.

132. Crime under this head remains almost stationary, there being 225 cases against 231 of last year; and the results are still unsatisfactory as ever. It is notorious that conviction in such cases is very difficult. So long as the morals of the people continue as they are, so long will the difficulty of distinguishing real cases from suspicious ones continue. The only cases in my experience in which there are generally no doubt, and frequently good proof, are cases of rape upon little girls. In most of the other cases some suspicious circumstances generally come out on the trial as to the character and antecedents of the woman, which throw doubt upon the genuineness of her complaint—circumstances which are not apparent in the preliminary investigation.

135. There is again a slight decrease of 20 cases throughout the province, the figures being 118, as compared with 138 of last year. The Patna division, as usual, is conspicuous for the number of cases occurring within its limits. The results are shown in the following table by divisions:—

* One man who was pending trial at end of last year was convicted.

139. The percentage of false cases under this head is also shown divisionally in the above table. It will be manifest that there must be some difference in the treatment of cases returned as false when such variations as are visible, for example, in the figures for Bhagulpore and Patna on the one hand, and Chittagong, Rajshahye, and Burdwan on the other, can occur. Dinagepore, Rajshahye, and Noakholly, still continue conspicuous for the number of false cases shown :—

Dinagepore showing	28 out of 35,
Rajshahye „	20 „ 38,
Noakholly „	19 „ 31;

but each of them in this respect is surpassed by Beerbhoom, in which 13 out of 14 cases are put down as false. In Mymensingh, which last year showed 56 false out of 93, only 4 out of 51 appear this year as false, showing clearly, in my opinion, a difference of treatment of the cases rather than any change in the character of those reported.

140. In the following districts the results of prosecutions were successful :—

DISTRICTS.					Convictions.	Acquittals
Dacca	32	19
Backergunge	34	8
Mymensingh	23	6
Tipperah	40	4
Noakholly	14	1
Gya	21	3
Shahabad	41	27

141. There has been a considerable decrease in this crime, only 15 cases having occurred. It is satisfactory to note the diminution in the Patna division, which has always been conspicuous for this crime,—only one case having taken place during the year.

The result of convictions is, however, not good, in only three of the 15 cases conviction having followed; while of 19 persons brought to trial, only six were punished, 13 being acquitted.

142. Although there was a reduction in the number of cases, there being 29 against 34, and although the percentage of convictions in cases was slightly better than last year, still the result of operations with reference to convictions of persons was as unsatisfactory as last year, only 29 out of 85 persons brought to trial having been punished, 47 having been acquitted or discharged.

143. There has been a slight decrease during the year, there being 729 cases as compared with 764 of last year. As might be expected, the turbulent Dacca division heads the list with 185 cases, the Presidency division coming near it with 135 cases. Backergunge, amongst the districts, shows 75 cases, while Jessore and 24-Per-gunnahs follow with 51 and 37 respectively.

145. There has been a decrease in the number of cases throughout the province, the figures being 178 to 216 of last year. The decrease is visible in almost every division except Cuttack and Bhagulpore. The Dacca division is no longer first on the list in this description of crime, the Burdwan division succeeding to this place. It is as yet uncertain what effect the new registration law may have on this description of crime.

The results are given below, including the percentage of false cases. The percentage of convictions has fallen off as compared with last year, only in 43 out of 178 cases convictions resulting, and 87 persons out of 300 having been punished, against 71 out of 216 cases and 123 out of 426 persons convicted last year.

146. Practically this crime is of not frequent occurrence except in the Dacca division, in which 106 out of 170 cases throughout the province occurred. The crime is difficult to prove, and the results of police operations are not successful. Out of 170 cases convictions were secured in only 22, and out of 228 persons brought to trial only 68 were punished. In the Dacca division, the seat of this crime, the results were, as were those for the province generally, unsuccessful, viz.—

—a lamentable result.

147. The number of cases during the present year, with the results of the same, are nearly the same as in 1875,—the results obtained in neither year being satisfactory.

There has thus been a decrease in the number of cases of the class as a whole, while the results also are better. The percentage of cases detected to cases reported is 31.1, as against 30.7 of 1875 and 28.1 of 1874. So also the percentage of persons convicted in 1876 is 56.6 as compared with 54.9 of 1875 and 51.8 of 1874. The decrease is visible in all districts except Bankoora and Beerbhoom.

149. There were 39 true cases of murder, against 38 of last year, thus classified :—

Murder by robbers	4
" by poison	3
Other murders	32
			Total	...	39

Of these " other murders " :—

9	were murders	of wives by husbands.
4	"	of women by paramours.
3	"	of children for ornaments.
2	"	of men on account of intrigues.
14	"	for other reasons.

It is satisfactory to be able to record that in all four cases of murder by robbers a conviction was obtained, but the cases of murder by poison were all unsuccessful. The total number of convictions was 16 out of 39 true cases, little better than last year.

In other murders the results of operations in Hooghly were most unsuccessful, there being four cases, in none of which was a conviction obtained. The Commissioner instances two cases in which want of success was due to the unwillingness of the jury to convict in cases in which they think a capital sentence may be inflicted. In Midnapore, too, the results have been unfavourable. The Magistrate attributes the want of success in murder cases not so much to the want of detective skill on the part of the police as to the disinclination on the part of Judges to attach much belief to confessions which do not lead to, and are not supported by, as in dacoity cases, the discovery of property. There is a good deal of truth in this, but I am also compelled to say that in my opinion a good deal of the blame attaches to the police, who seldom make any attempt to get proof corroborative of confession. As soon as a confession is made, the investigating officer too often thinks that the case is finished and complete; whereas he should then begin to follow up every statement made by the confessing prisoner, obtaining corroborative proof on many little points which all can be testified to, even if the confession is, as is generally the case, retracted at the sessions. This is a point on which much useful instruction and direction during the progress of cases might be given by Magistrates and District Superintendents to the subordinate police who conduct the investigation. But too often no instruction of any kind is given, and when the bare and uncorroborated confession is retracted, Sessions Judges not unnaturally refuse to convict on the admission before the committing officer. In Bankoora occurred the well-known case of Rhidoy Patra, which has already been before Government and the public.

None of the cases of culpable homicide deserve special notice. The percentage of convictions is slightly better than that obtained last year, being 22·8, against 15 per cent. in 1875.

There were no convictions under rape, of which there were seven true cases. Convictions were obtained in two out of five cases of unnatural offence.

There was a decided decrease in cases of kidnapping and abduction, there being 38 cases, against 71 of 1875; but the result of trials was very unfavourable. In only nine cases were convictions secured, and of persons brought to trial only 23 per cent. were convicted, against 31·2 in 1875 and 36·2 in 1874.

There has been a decrease of 66 cases during the year throughout the division. The result of police action is not so good as last year, the percentage of cases in which conviction was obtained being only 39 per cent., and of persons convicted 40 per cent.

151. Cases of murder have increased by eight cases, 49 having been accepted as true, against 41 of last year, 47 of 1874, and 45 of 1873. In 19 of these cases was conviction obtained, or 38 per cent., against 41 per cent. of 1875 and 42 per cent. of 1874. Of 104 persons arrested, 34 were released by the Magistrate and 47 by the Sessions Court, 32 only being convicted. This result cannot be called satisfactory. The murders are classified as follows:—

By robbers	4
„ poison	3
Other murders	42

The four cases of murder by robbers occurred in the 24-Pergunnahs and Moorshedabad. In two of the three cases in the former district the murderers were detected; in the third case the police failed to find a clue. In one of the cases detected, miscarriage of justice was occasioned by the action of the jury, who actually found the murderer of a child for the sake of her ornaments, who confessed the crime and gave up the trinkets, guilty of the receipt of stolen property! This fortunate murderer was sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment. In another of the cases detected the Moorshedabad jury did their best to mitigate sentence on a murderer who inveigled a child to the riverside, stripped her of her ornaments; and threw her into the river, by finding him guilty of kidnapping. The Judge, however, dissented, and, on a reference to the High Court, the murderer was transported for life. These are two striking instances of the action of the jury who, objecting on religious grounds to take life by a judicial verdict, allow murderers who cause death by cowardly or brutal violence to escape practically unpunished.

152. In the cases of murder by poison conviction was obtained in two out of three cases. One case occurred in Nuddea, another in Jessore, the third in Moorshedabad.

153. Under cases of "other murders" the only one which calls for special remark is that of Hafiz Moonshi, which took place in Jessore. In this case information was given that Bangshibadan Ghose and his men had killed Hafiz, who was in the employ of certain Boses with whom the Ghose party in the village was at feud. Subsequently, witnesses who swore to the Ghose party being the murderers turned round and declared that the Boses were the real criminals, having killed one of their own servants with the view of implicating the Ghoses. Some of the Boses' party even confessed their participation in the crime. The Boses were committed, but the evidence was so contradictory that the accused were acquitted.

154. There were 22 cases of culpable homicide, against 33 of last year. Convictions were obtained in 12 cases, against 21 of the previous year. In the 24-Pergunnahs the number of convictions was good, in the other districts of the division unsatisfactory.

155. Under the heading of hurt for the purpose of extorting confession or property there were seven cases, in which 29 persons were brought to trial. In none of these was any conviction obtained. The only important case noted by the Commissioner is one which occurred in Moorshedabad, a zemindar being implicated. He suspected a man of having stolen his jewels, confined, and beat him. Some of those implicated were committed to the sessions, but the jury acquitted them. In this case a sub-inspector of police, who neglected to inquire into the case at first, was degraded and suspended for a year.

Class II. ● 156. RAJSHAHYE AND COOCH BEHAR DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.						True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	Number of persons brought to trial.	Number convicted.	Acquitted.

Julpigoree	40	52	6	65	30	18
Total						531	824	297	841	370	379

There has been a considerable diminution in the number of cases reported; but if false cases be deducted, crime under this class appears to have been almost stationary, there being 527 cases against 531 of last year. The percentage of convictions is rather better than last year, being 44 per cent. to 42 per cent. in 1875. The result of operations is very unsatisfactory in Dinagepore, where the percentage of convictions is only 35 per cent.

157. Under murder there were 49 true cases, three cases being found false. They are classified as follows:—

Murder by dacoits	1
„ by robbers	2
„ by poison	2
Other murders	44
Total						49

The one case of murder by dacoity took place in Dinagepore, and it is satisfactory to record that of 15 persons implicated 12 were punished, 11 being transported for life and one imprisoned under section 412.

The two cases of murder by robbers occurred in Rajshahye and Darjeeling. In the Rajshahye case a shopkeeper was brutally and deliberately murdered by four men, jealousy being the cause. One of the murderers was the chowkidar, who confessed to having been bribed with Rs. 50 to assist, to having stood at the door and watched the other murderers despatch their victim. He was sentenced capitally; one of the other murderers who was put on trial was acquitted for want of proof. In the Darjeeling case a Bhootea was murdered on the highway and robbed of Rs. 48. The alleged murderer was awaiting trial at the sessions at the close of the year.

In both the cases of murder by poison wives poisoned their husbands at the instigation of paramours. In one case the wife was convicted and transported; the other case was pending.

The cases of other murders were as follows :—

Wives murdered by husbands	11
Husbands murdered by wives or paramours	2
Paramours murdered by husbands	5
Men killed in riots	1
Children killed for sake of ornaments	2
By lunatics	2
Various	21

In one case the absence of a suitable lock-up at a thana led to a murder. A semi-savage Mech, in the district of Julpigoree, charged with a breach of the excise laws, was allowed to sleep on the same machan as the constable supposed to be on guard and the chowkidar who had informed against the Mech. During the night the latter got up, and with the sleeping constable's baton killed the chowkidar. The murderer was hanged.

158. In cases of culpable homicide the results still continue eminently unsatisfactory, only 20 persons being convicted out of 80 persons put on trial.

159. The following table shows the results of police operations in cases under the heading of rape :—

DISTRICTS.	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.

The results continue unsatisfactory as ever.

160. Under the head of kidnapping the Commissioner notes a case worthy of mention. Aina, a young woman, left her husband's home owing to illtreatment by her husband, and went to live with her uncle, and was by him sold for Rs. 11 to a zemindar, Abóo Ali Chowdry. After some time the zemindar commenced to intrigue with Aina and another young woman, Sonabeer; and his wife in consequence illtreated them. They escaped, were kindly treated by a villager, and were by him made over to the chowkidar, who took them to the police-station. The sub-inspector, for a consideration, no doubt, eventually made them over to the zemindar from whom they had fled. Aina was subsequently discovered by the police, but the whereabouts of Sonabeer has not been discovered. The zemindar absconded, and his property is under attachment. The sub-inspector and four of the zemindar's servants have been committed to the sessions, where it is to be hoped that the villainy of the uncle, the zemindar, and the sub-inspector in this case, will meet with its due reward.

Class II.

DACCA DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.					True cases in 1875.	Cases report- ed in 1876.	False cases.	Number of persons brought to trial.	Number convicted.	Acquitted.
Dacca	198	362	119	382	156	188

Tipperah	156	134	24	196	123	49
Total				...	878	1,280	329	1,420	694	558

There has been a decrease in the number of cases instituted; but when the false cases are deducted it will be found that there is in reality an increase, the figures being as in the table above. The percentage of conviction of persons actually tried was 48·8—a result slightly below that of 1875, when it was nearly 51 per cent.

162. In murder and culpable homicide cases this turbulent division excelled itself, there being 141 cases as against 120 of last year.

Of murder there were—

Murder by dacoits
„ by robbers	2
„ by poison	8
Other murders	72
Total						82
Culpable homicide	59
Total						141

Of these the following is an analysis—

27 men killed in riots.
8 „ land disputes.
9 paramours killed by husbands.
5 husbands „ wives or paramours.
20 wives „ husbands.
17 women „ paramours.
1 son „ father.
1 nephew „ aunt.
1 niece „ „
8 men „ insanes.
42 „ „ for various reasons.
2 „ „ by robbers.
141

In the above cases 387 persons were brought to trial, of whom were—

Convicted	131	Died	4
Acquitted	166	Pending	86

The following table shows the result in all the districts of the division :

DISTRICTS.					MURDER.		CULPABLE HOMICIDE.
					Persons tried.	Persons convicted.	Persons tried.	Persons convicted.
Dacca	31	3	29	9
Furreedpore	73	16	11	7

Mymensingh	56	9	59	30
Tipperah	20	8	19	6
Total				...	226	59	161	72

The convictions for murder in Dacca are most unsatisfactory, and there can be little doubt that here we have another instance of the difficulty of getting justice from a jury in cases in which conviction probably involves capital sentence. The results in Tipperah are satisfactory.

Two cases of culpable homicide are noted as being the result of rent disputes. In one case the tehsildar of a village, with his two attendants, was set upon by the ryots with whom they had been having disputes. The tehsildar with his men fled and swam across a river, two succeeding in gaining the opposite shore. The third, however, was beaten and pelted with clods, so that he sank. Eight persons were punished. In the second case, in a bidrohi village, one of the villagers who had embraced the landlord's side was murdered by his fellow villagers. The accused were acquitted by the Additional Judge, but on appeal made by Government the case was ordered to be retried, and the accused were found guilty and transported for life.

Class II. 163. CHITTAGONG DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	Number of persons brought to trial.	Number convicted.	Acquitted.
Chittagong	148	94	10	99	42	53

Chittagong Hill Tracts	9	14	17	8	8
Total	232	226	41	285	140	115

On the whole there is a diminution of cases in this class, and the percentage of convictions in Noakholly is above the average.

The results in murder cases, however, were lamentable, and show either that the Chittagong police are inefficient detectives, or that, when they detect a case, they do not know how to bring forward evidence in support of the prosecution. The following table shows the result of murder cases:—

	Cases.	Persons tried.	Convicted.
Chittagong	9	20	2
Noakholly	5	22	6

In both districts it appears that, as the Commissioner remarks, murderers are permitted to escape with impunity.

There were two cases of what is known as gang-rape. In one case the story of the woman was disbelieved; in the other, one of a band of 10 or 12 men, alleged to have committed the offence, was convicted.

There has been a decrease in cases of grievous hurt, and the following table shows the results of cases under this heading:—

	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons tried.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Chittagong	9	4	7	6	1
Noakholly	12	5	21	14	1

Although the percentage of convictions in cases is only tolerable, the results as regards persons brought to trial are good.

Class II. 164. PATNA DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	Number of persons brought to trial.	Number convicted.	Acquitted.
Patna	133	170	35	206	75	121

Chumparun	43	39	9	38	15	21
Total	624	821	179	902	457	363

Under this class crime in the division has been subject to very little fluctuation, there being only an increase of 18 cases throughout the year.

There were 29 cases of murder, against 44 of last year, classified as follows:—

By dacoits	0
„ robbers	1
„ poison	2
Other murders	26
Total	29

The case of murder by robbers occurred in Shahabad and was detected, three out of five persons implicated being sentenced to transportation for life.

In the two cases of murder by poison, one in Gya and the other in Patna, the police failed to obtain a clue.

165. The results of trials for murder in almost every district of the division are disheartening, and, as usual, in Patna especially, murderers may be said practically to be unpunished. The following figures show results :—

			Cases.	Convictions.	Persons tried.	Convicted.
Patna	6	2	31	2
Gya	7	3	19	6
Shahabad	2	2	8	4
Mozufferpore	3	2	4	2
Durbhunga	3	1	10	1
Sarun	7	2	18	2
Chumparun	1	1	1	1

The results under culpable homicide are also very unsatisfactory. In only seven cases out of 22 were convictions obtained, and of 45 persons who appeared before the Magistrate only 8 were punished.

Under rape the results were no better than in other divisions. In 36 cases convictions were obtained in only 8, and of 44 persons sent for trial 11 only were convicted.

It is gratifying to observe that there was only one case of administering stupefying drugs, against 12 of last year. This case was prosecuted to conviction.

Class II. 166. BHAGULPORE DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	Number of persons brought to trial.	Number convicted.	Acquitted.

Total ...	244	341	90	401	175	180

Crime under this class in this division has been almost stationary. The percentage of convictions obtained in cases was 41 per cent., an improvement on 1875, when the percentage was 37. The percentage, with regard to persons, of convictions was 43 per cent., as compared with 42 last year.

Murders are classified as follows :—

Murder by robbers	3
„ by poison	3
Other murders	16

In all the cases of murder by robbers which occurred in Monghyr convictions were obtained, 10 out of 12 persons being punished—a satisfactory result. In 2 out of 3 murders by poison convictions were obtained. In 7 out of 16 cases of other murders convictions were obtained, and of 66 persons brought to trial only 22 were convicted—an unsatisfactory result. In none of the districts of the division can the result be called other than bad.

In cases of rape also the results have been very poor, 20 persons out of 29 having been acquitted.

Class II.

Total ...	168	279	103	272	106	150

In this division also crime may also be said to be stationary. Under none of the headings are any special remarks called for. The result of trials has not been so good as last year, the percentage of convictions being 39 against 45.

Class II.

CHOTA NAGPORE DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	Number of persons brought to trial.	Number convicted.	Acquitted.
Hazareebagh	59	80	15	102	65	34

Manbhoom	69	85	13	130	72	54
Total ...	222	261	31	374	213	127

There is very little fluctuation in crime in this division, there being an increase of only 11 cases during the year.

169. There has been a considerable increase under the most important heading of this class—murder, there being no less than 49 true cases, against 38 of the preceding year and 27 of 1874.

They are classified as follows:—

Murder by dacoits	2
„ by robbers	1
„ by poison	1
Other murders	45
Total	49

In the cases of murder by dacoits one was successful, seven men out of eight committed to the sessions being transported for life. In the second case the accused were acquitted at the sessions.

The case of murder by robbers was unsuccessful.

In the case of murder by poison, the wife of deceased, at the instigation of her paramour, poisoned her husband with arsenic. Both she and her paramour were capitally sentenced.

The result of the cases of other murders is shown below:—

DISTRICTS.	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Hazareebagh	7	7	26	14	11
Lohardugga	15	4	20	9	3
Singbhoom	5	3	19	5	12
Manbhoom	18	11	37	14	22

The results in cases were good in Hazareebagh and Manbhoom, but the convictions as to persons were not so satisfactory.

170. In culpable homicide cases the division stands thus:

DISTRICTS.	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Hazareebagh ...	4	...	6	...	6
Lohardugga ...	9	3	10	3	3
Singbhoom ...	3	1	9	7	1
Manbhoom ...	4	4	10	4	6

—results not nearly so satisfactory as were obtained last year, when the action of the police in culpable homicide cases was considered worthy of special commendation.

CLASS III.—Serious offences against property.

171. The figures for the past year, as compared with last year, are as follows, including all headings:—

	1875.	1876.
True cases	23,957	22,280
Convictions	1,925	2,022
Persons brought to trial	6,515	6,551
Convicted	3,237	3,654
Acquitted	2,809	2,531

Briefly, then, there has been a decrease of 1,677 cases during the year throughout the province, a slight increase in the number of persons brought to trial, and an improvement as to the number of persons convicted and acquitted.

The decrease has occurred under every heading except that of mischief by poisoning and maiming cattle, where there is a very marked increase, owing, no doubt, to offences under sections 428 and 429 having been made cognizable by Act XI of 1874 and being now shown separately. It is satisfactory to find that the decrease in the serious crimes, dacoity, robbery, serious mischief, still continues. I proceed to notice each separately.

172. The decrease under this head is very marked, there being a decrease, including cases which occurred in former years but which were inquired into in 1876, of no less than 100 cases. If we take the figures of cases which actually occurred during the year, the result is almost precisely the same.

	Cases.
1872	341
1873	356
1874	465
1875	254
1876	154

The result is not merely local, but general throughout the province. In every division there has been a decrease (for I do not count the occurrence of one case in Chittagong as a perceptible increase), as will be apparent from the following figures, which represent the actual number of cases during the year under report as compared with 1875.

	1875. Cases.	1876. Cases.
Burdwan	64	45

Cuttack	3	2
Chota Nagpore	22	8
Total	236	137

173. It is satisfactory to find that the number of districts which during 1876 were entirely free from this crime has increased from six in 1875 to nine.

1875.

174. The decrease, as compared with past times, is most marked in the following districts:—

DISTRICTS.					Average of five preceding years.	True cases of 1876.
Beerbhoom	22·8	2
Hooghly	13·8	1
Howrah	9·4	3
Moorshedabad	35·2	3

Hazareebagh	22·6	4
Manbhoom	16	2
Dinagepore	25·2	5
Rungpore	25·6	2

175. The results of trials may be thus stated as compared with last year:—

					1876.	1875.
Cases (true)	154	254
Convictions	58	71
Persons tried	1,017	1,057
Convicted	397	347
Acquitted	505	574

showing a slight improvement. Much, however, still remains to be done before the results can be called satisfactory.

In the following districts the results were most satisfactory of those obtained with reference to persons tried:—

					Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Midnapore	221	119	102
Hooghly	18	13	4
Nuddea	37	24	7
Balasore	28	18	10
Lohardugga	5	5	0

The results in the districts given below were more or less a failure:—

					Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Bankoora	22	5	17
Beerbhoom	10	1	8
Moorshedabad	123	33	89
Backergunge	31	2	13

Tipperah	27	4	23
Patna	21	...	21
Chumparun	51	9	16
Maldah	8	1	7
Manbhoom	11	...	11

The number of false cases decreased as compared with those of last year, being 85 as against 99. Rungpore and Dinagepore are still conspicuous, as in 1874-75, for the number of false cases which they return; and to them must be added this year Beerbhoom, which returns 10 out of 12 cases, and Mymensingh, which shows all five cases reported as false.

The amount of property stolen in dacoity cases was Rs. 60,997, of which Rs. 15,465 were recovered in 90 cases out of 138. Compared with last year, in which Rs. 67,661 were stolen and Rs. 12,447 recovered in 117 out of 215 cases, the results of the year under review are favourable.

176. River dacoities occurred in the following districts. These dacoities in the eastern districts are principally committed by notorious gangs of Kayast dacoits, who, originally coming from Nakunda in Furreedpore (now in Jessore), have established themselves on the eastern boundary of the Jessore district, and thrown out branches both in Furreedpore and Dacca. They will be specially looked after.

Jessore.	Backergunge.
Dacca.	Tipperah.
Furreedpore.	Noakholly.

177. The following table shows at a glance the result of operations in each district during the year, and the figures, on the whole, afford ground for believing that this once formidable crime is being gradually, but effectually, repressed.

Robbery.

178. The following are the figures under this head for the present year, compared with the last three years :—

	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
With hurt, &c.	25	26	18	12
In dwelling-house	33	50	23	14
On the highway	42	30	21	21
Other robberies	153	149	109	94

showing a decrease under every head except highway-robbery, where crime is stationary, and a total diminution of 30 cases in the class.

The percentage of convictions secured in cases was rather better than in 1875; 53 out of 141 cases, or 37 per cent., resulting in conviction, against 60 cases out of 171, or 35 per cent., in the previous year. As regards persons, too, there was a slight improvement, 100 being convicted out of 206 brought to trial, against 106 out of 264 in the preceding year.

The amount of property stolen was larger than in 1875, but the percentage of recovery was much better:—

						1875.	1876.
Stolen	4,284	7,796
Recovered	977	4,437

Lurking-house trespass with intent.
(Noticed also in class 5.)

179. The following figures show the cases and results under this head compared with last year:—

						1875.	1876.
Cases reported	24,026	22,999
False	2,127	1,940
Total true	21,899	21,059
Not inquired into	6,919	6,422
Balance	14,980	14,637
Convictions in cases	1,294	1,444
Persons tried	3,269	3,498
Convicted	1,942	2,250
Acquitted	1,146	1,101

These figures undoubtedly, apart from all question of slight improvement during the year, are calculated to throw considerable discredit upon our attempts to protect by our police the property of the inhabitants of the province. And they certainly raise the question whether, if we cannot detect crime against property, we should not be acting wisely to take some means to repress it otherwise. In one-third of the cases which are reported we make no inquiry, not considering it worth the time of the police to do so, and we succeed in gaining convictions in only 6·8 per cent. of the cases which we accept as true. These figures show that our police are practically powerless to deal with crime of this description, and year after year the same confession is repeated. I shall have more to say on repressive measures further on in this report; here it will suffice to illustrate by these figures the need for such repressive action. I do not wonder at the distrust which is manifested in the police when they fail so signally to protect property at large as in these districts.

Total	227	300	98	512	266	236

There has again been a very considerable decrease in dacoity, which used to flourish specially in this division. The decrease since 1873 has been most satisfactory with the exception of 1874, when there were special circumstances, to which the increase then noticeable was due. The figures are given below:—

							Cases.
1873	72
1874	116
1875	64
1876	45

The results of police operations for the past three years are already shown in the table under paragraph 177. It will thus be seen that there has been great improvement both with reference to convictions in cases and persons convicted. The result is chiefly due to the success which has attended the operations in Midnapore, where in 19 out of 24 cases convictions resulted—162 persons, or 73 per cent. of those sent up by the police, were committed, and of these 162, 119, or above 73 per cent., were convicted at the Sessions. In many of these cases conspicuous detective ability was displayed by inspector Huro Prasad Dass, whose good services were noted last year, and who has been promoted to the rank of inspector as a reward for his exertions.

In Burdwan there has been an improvement as compared with last year, convictions having been obtained in 3 out of 7 cases, sixteen persons out of 33 committed having been punished. There is still room for improvement.

In Bankoora there were 8 true cases, of which conviction was obtained in only one. The Magistrate explains this by the old reason of want of detective ability on the part of the police. It seems to me that the lighter the district the less work do the police do well. It would, no doubt, be very beneficial if they were instructed in detective principles, so that they might display better results. This lies with the Magistrate before whom all their proceedings come and are supervised.

The large number of false cases in Beerbhoom attracts attention. It is stated that in all these cases the charges, although technically charges of dacoity, were merely covers under which the complainants sought to avenge some wrong or establish some claim, e.g., a charge of 'looting' brought against a decree-holder by the man in possession, a similar charge brought by a shareholder against his co-sharers, &c. None were charges of dacoity proper. In two cases the complainants absconded on proceedings under section 211 being taken against them; in two other cases the complainants were prosecuted; but, as is so often the case in charges under section 211, they were acquitted.

It is satisfactory to note that Hooghly, the home of dacoits, shows only one case as having occurred within the year. This is justly, I think, as the Commissioner remarks, attributable to the exertions of the District Superintendent and the operation of the patrol system originally instituted by Mr. Larymore.

Under the heading robbery there was a slight increase of three cases the chief increase being noticeable in Burdwan, where there were 11 cases as compared with six of the preceding year. Of the 30 cases accepted as true, 12 were detected; and of 39 persons brought to trial, 19 were punished. These results, although better than last year, are still susceptible of improvement.

None of the other headings call for any special remark.

Mograhedabad	107	92	18	210	72	133
Total					282	365	77	514	219	264

There has been very little fluctuation of crime, on the whole, under this class, but a notable decrease is seen in serious crime under the following headings:—

	1874.	1875.	1876.
Dacoity	73	31	17
Robbery	37	17	15
Serious mischief, &c.	234	278	252
Receiving stolen property	17	5	3

The 17 dacoities reported took place in—

24-Pergunnahs	5	Jessore	4
Nuddea	5	Moorshedabad	3

The results of trials, except in the case of Nuddea, are hardly satisfactory.

24-Pergunnahs.—Showing convictions in two out of five cases, with 11 persons convicted and 12 acquitted.

Nuddea.—Convictions in three out of five cases, with 24 convictions and seven acquittals of persons.

Jessore.—Convictions in two out of four cases, with eight convictions and nine acquittals of persons.

Moorshedabad.—Convictions in one case out of three, with 33 convictions and 89 acquittals.

182. The Commissioner attributes the decided decrease in dacoity in Moorshedabad to the more systematic action which has been taken of late to control the bad characters. The District Superintendent gives some useful particulars as to the class of people who in Moorshedabad commit crime of this kind, which I here reproduce. “Most of the dacoits, and all the dacoity sirdars, are gowallahs by caste, and belong to the western side of the district. They have friends, relatives, and connections in Burdwan and Beerbhoom. There is a large tract of open pasture land extending from Gokurun and Rangamatti to the borders of Burdwan and Beerbhoom. This is called the ‘Hijulmât.’ When the grass begins to dry up, the gowallahs of the three districts assemble there with their cows and live in little grass huts. It is here that dacoities are planned and stolen property divided. Up to 1876 no steps were ever taken to keep these gowallahs under any supervision. I have placed a police force under a head constable on the mât, and built two small grass huts for them, and I get weekly reports as to the movements of the gowallahs. There is a considerable number of released convicts among them. Our rapid success in diminishing dacoity I attribute to my recognizing from the first that Gokurun, Bhurutpore, and Kulliangunge, were the head-quarters of this kind of crime, and adopting such an efficient system of supervision and control that not one single case took place in those noted localities during the year. Picked officers and men have been stationed at Bhurutpore, Gokurun, and Kulliangunge.”

I think the District Superintendent is justified in attributing the success of operations to the tactics employed in dealing with these gowallahs. I have directed him to have a census made of them, and to ascertain the names of their relatives and connections by marriage in adjoining thanas and districts, so that constant watch may be kept over their movements when necessary.

183. None of the dacoity cases were marked by any peculiar features. In one case, which took place in the 24-Pergunnahs, where a gang attacked a house and plundered property of the value of Rs. 484-8, it was discovered that some men from Midnapore, who had been lurking about, had disappeared immediately after the commission of the crime. The Midnapore police were communicated with. Inspector Haro Parsad Dass, with sub-inspector Potit Paban Bose, soon got a clue and arrested 10 men, of whom seven were convicted at the sessions. A system of co-operation—real, vigorous co-operation like this on the part of police of adjoining districts—would do a great deal to check criminals; but too often local jealousy and apathy interfere with the exercise of such co-operation.

184. Under the heading robbery there has been a slight decrease in the number of cases as compared with last year, as well as an improvement in the result of trials, shown by the following figures:—

	1875.	1876.		1875.	1876.
Cases *	17	15	Persons brought to trial ...	20	31
Detected	6	9	Convicted	9	14

None of the cases reported deserve special notice.

185. Under the heading serious mischief one case deserves notice. The Moonsiff's cutcherry at Khoolna one evening was discovered to be on fire, and nearly the whole of the records were destroyed. There was no doubt as to the fire being the work of an incendiary, and suspicion fell upon the son of a person against whom a prosecution for perjury had been instituted. Sufficient proof, however, for conviction was not forthcoming. This case acquires peculiar significance from the fact that only last year the Moonsiff's cutcherry at Bagerhat, in the same district, was similarly set on fire by an incendiary, who wished to destroy the records of a forgery case. The danger of keeping records of civil courts, often of great value, in inflammable buildings was last year pointed out, and the occurrence of the Khoolna case gives additional point to the remark. If fraudulent suitors, in addition to the aid derived from white ants, find valuable assistance in their evil deeds from incendiarism, a crime most difficult of detection, we may expect to have frequent instances of the huts which form Moonsiffs' cutcherries being set on fire.

There has been an increase of 3 cases under this class in the division as compared with the preceding year. Bogra, Pubna, and Julpigoree, however, each show a large increase in the number of cases under the less important headings.

187. The following table shows the operations under the most important heading of the class, dacoity:—

DISTRICTS.	True cases.			Cases in which con- victions were ob- tained.			Persons convicted.			Persons acquitted.
	1874.	1875.	1876.	1874.	1875.	1876.	1874.	1875.	1876.	1874.	1875.	1876.

Total ...	94	54	20	31	13	9	223	74	68	206	64	68

These figures show a decided improvement as compared with last year. The chief features of the year's operations are the absolute freedom from dacoity secured in Pubna, and the success which attended the police operations in Dinagepore. In Pubna there can be little doubt that the breaking up of the gangs noticed in last year's report had effected this satisfactory result. In Dinagepore, during the present year, two notorious dacoits, Chirag Ali and Baber Ali, both the leaders of gangs, have been convicted, and the breaking up of their gangs will, it is believed, lead to a considerable check being put upon dacoity for some time. In Rungpore, too, an old gang was broken up, 14 out of 18 men sent up being convicted. It would also appear that a good beginning in the way of checking this crime has been made in Julpigoree, where only five cases occurred against ten in 1875. All these cases occurred during the first half of the year, and the last six and a half months were entirely free from this crime.

The district authorities are unanimous in considering that these results have been brought about by increased vigour in looking after bad characters and habitual criminals; and the Commissioner specially notes that an improved system of intercommunication between the police of neighbouring districts has been attended with the most beneficial results.

In the matter of results of trials considerable improvement is still required, still the effect of the individual blows struck at dacoity in Dinagepore and Rungpore is not to be undervalued; and the result will, I hope, be apparent during the current year.

The amount of property stolen and recovered in dacoities was as follows:—

					1875.	1876.
Recovered	1,961	738

Under the heading of robbery there is also a satisfactory decrease. In Dinagepore, out of 33 cases reported to have been committed, no less than 31 were returned as false. No explanation is given of this extraordinarily high percentage, which certainly demands attention and inquiry. I am not aware of any peculiar circumstances in Dinagepore which should render the people there more prone to conceal false cases of robbery than the inhabitants of the other districts of the division.

Tipperah	66	89	24	81	24	54
Total ...	271	517	152	295	95	165

There has been an increase of 94 cases in the division as compared with the previous year. Mymensingh absorbs 45 of these cases, and Backergunge 31. The remainder of the increase is shared by the rest of the districts excepting Tipperah, which shows a decrease of one case only.

Under the heading dacoity there has been the same satisfactory decrease which is noticeable in other divisions, as is shown below:—

					Cases reported.			Average of 5 years.
					1874.	1875.	1876.
Dacca	4	14	3	8.8
Furreedpore	0	1	5	2.4
Backergunge	9	11	7	15.8
Mymensingh	12	7	5	18.4
Tipperah	6	6	9	8.8
Total	31	39	29	54.2

Of the 29 cases reported, 13 turned out on inquiry to be false.

With reference to the increase of four cases, as compared with last year, in Furreedpore, no explanation can be given, as the cases were all pending inquiry at the close of the year, and the truth or otherwise of the occurrences has not been ascertained. In Tipperah, where there has been an increase in the number reported, three out of nine cases have been found to be false. Of the remaining six, four occurred in the thana of Daoodkandy, which is peculiarly exposed to the depredations of gangs of other districts, who cross the river in boats and after committing dacoity recross without leaving any clue as to where they came from. Daoodkandy is also said to be infested "with Badeas, a wandering class of bad characters." This is the first time that I have heard of these professional thieves, who, from their name, I take to be the same as the Bediyas or Shikaroes of the 24-Pergunnahs, Nuddea, and Jessore, being in the districts of the Dacca Division as residents, and I shall have inquiries made about them. It is possible that they may be of the same tribe as the Bibadiyas of Backergunge.

189. The following figures show the result of operations in trials in the several districts :—

			Cases.	Cases in which convictions were obtained.	Persons tried.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Dacca	2	...	3	...	1
Furreedpore	5	...	Pending.
Backergunge	3	...	31	2	13
Mymensingh
Tipperah	6	2	27	4	23

The results, it must be confessed, are very unsatisfactory.

No clue, it will be observed, was found in either of the two cases which occurred in Dacca. Two of the three cases in Backergunge occurred on the river, and one on land. In neither of the river dacoities was any good result obtained, and the land dacoity was chiefly remarkable for the misconduct of the police, who arrested during the inquiry 10 persons who had nothing to do with the offence, although some of them were induced or compelled to make confessions implicating themselves. The case was specially reported to Government in this office endorsement No. 2312, dated the 7th March 1877. Ultimately the real culprits were detected, and some of the stolen property found in their possession. Eight are now, after commitment, awaiting trial at the sessions.

The results in Tipperah were also discouraging. The Commissioner remarks: "Of the five true cases two were committed by a gang headed by some poadahs in the service of Nawab Ahsunoollah at his Dollye cutcherry. The whole gang (17 men) was caught, but the case was mismanaged at the sessions, and the High Court finally convicted only three of the gang; the rest were proceeded against under section 505 of the Criminal Procedure Code and made to give security. In the third case the gang who committed it were Bediyas, nine of whom were committed to the sessions, where one only was convicted and the rest were acquitted for want of sufficient evidence against them. Against the acquittal of these men an appeal was proposed under section 272 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The Legal Remembrancer, while remarking that some Judges would have convicted on the evidence adduced, refused to lay the appeal. The men acquitted were, however, prosecuted under section 505 and required to give security. In the remaining two cases no arrests have yet been made, and one of them may be noticed as an example of the pusillanimity of the people and their utter inability to defend themselves.

Mr. Larminie, late District Superintendent of Police in Tipperah, while passing at night by the road in the neighbourhood of the Belani Bazaar, saw lights flashing about, and, hearing a great uproar, went to see what the matter was. On getting close to the shops he was met by some of the residents of the bazaar, and told that a dacoity was going on in the shops of some goldsmiths. Mr. Larminie, armed with a common bamboo stick, proceeded to the scene of the occurrence; the dacoits left the plundering of the shops and rushed in a body to attack him. A scrimmage ensued in which Mr. Larminie hit one of the dacoits over the head, and was himself struck over the head and arm. The dacoits made off, and all got clean away notwithstanding that there were about 200 people in the bazaar, who, if they had only joined Mr. Larminie, could have easily captured the whole gang by sheer force of numbers. Not one of them, however, made the smallest attempt to render any assistance."

CHITTAGONG DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876. • "	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS

Chittagong Hill Tracts	2	1
Total ...	132	143	23	104	33	55

There is a decrease on the whole throughout the division. Although there is a considerable increase visible in the district of Noakholly, "the Magistrate," says the Commissioner, "contents himself with remarking that the chief increase has been under the heads of 'serious mischief' and 'lurking house-trespass,' and dismisses the subject without any further notice. The offences under this class show a steady increase in his district Under whatever heads the increase may be, the subject is one deserving his serious consideration." In these remarks I fully concur. The figures in the statements sent up inform Government of the fact of increase or decrease; but unless local officers exert themselves to inform the central police-office as to the cause of any marked increase or decrease, I am unable to do anything more than merely forward statements which explain nothing.

It is extremely satisfactory to find that this division is practically free from the crime of organized dacoity. The only case which occurred was not the work of an organized gang, or even of any known bad characters; but was committed by some casual marauders, who took advantage of the disorder following the terrible disaster of the cyclone and inundation and engaged in plunder. They were promptly brought to trial.

The prevalence of arson cases is a peculiarity of the Chittagong district, and the attention of the police has been specially directed to this crime. There has been a decrease of 15 cases during the year, but still the number which occurred (40) is large. This is a crime particularly difficult of detection amongst people who live in inflammable huts, and who are habitually careless in cooking operations. So many acts of incendiarism may be plausibly put down to accident or carelessness on the part of the inmates of a house, that it is astonishing in how few instances grudges are paid off in this way, which exposes the criminal to so little risk of detection.

There has thus been a decrease during the year of 83 cases.

Dacoity still continues to decrease, and opinions still continue to differ as to the cause of the small amount of dacoity in Mozufferpore—whether it is due to the efficiency of the police or the character of the people. This year the District Superintendent starts a new theory, that the cause lies in the physical superiority of the well-to-do classes to the criminal population. This theory is promptly crushed by the Magistrate, and I scarcely see the benefit of deciding which opinion is entitled to most weight.

The figures are given below as compared with the last five years :—

			Cases.	Percentage of convictions.	Persons arrested.	Persons convicted.
1872	39	25.7	127	31
1873	45	20.5	162	48
1874	38	42.1	280	102
1875	21	23.8	110	22
1876	18	27.7	143	35

The result of operations is also shown below :—

		True cases.		Convictions.		Persons arrested.		Persons convicted.

192. It is evident, therefore, that in spite of very ill success on the part of the police in detecting dacoity, this serious crime is very greatly on the decrease. Dacoits have not ceased to commit this crime from a fear of the punishment which awaited them, for the total failure in Patna and Sarun, during the last two years, to secure the punishment of any dacoit arrested would justify the criminal classes in betaking themselves to a kind of crime so seldom punished. I believe the real reason lies in the more systematic repressive measures which in this division, as all over Bengal, are being taken to control bad characters. Their movements are more watched; their association in gangs is better known and prevented; they are more often put in jail, and the result is that they cannot combine as they used to do and commit dacoities.

The only district in which the result of operations was in any way satisfactory is Shahabad. The cases detected were all mail robberies, which occurred in other districts but which were successfully worked out by the Shahabad police. A special report on these cases has been submitted to Government.

None of the other cases possessed any special feature of interest.

In robbery there has been a decrease of six cases, the figures for 1876 showing 26 cases against 32 of 1875. Of these only five were highway robberies. Convictions were obtained in ten out of the 26 cases, and of 57 persons sent up for trial 25 were convicted—a fair result. In highway robbery eight out of nine persons brought to trial were punished.

Class III.

193.

BHAGULPORE DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Monghyr	30	39	8	55	10	27
Bhagulpore	35	61	35	32	17	14
Purneah	38	58	18	38	18	17
Bonthal Pergunnahs	38	41	1	63	29	28
Maldah	19	40	10	37	17	20
Total	154	239	70	225	91	106

This was pending at the end of 1875.

There has been an increase, on the whole, of 15 cases, spread more or less over all the districts in the division save Bhagulpore, which shows a decrease of 9 cases. Maldah, on the other hand, shows a large increase of 17 cases.

It is most satisfactory to find that the decrease in dacoity still goes on in the division. Two districts, Monghyr and Bhagulpore, during 1876, were completely free from this crime. In Purneah, once notorious for its dacoities, only two cases occurred. In Maldah there were seven cases, and in the Sonthal Pergunnahs one.

The results of operations were convictions in four cases, and out of 44 persons brought to trial 18 only were convicted. Here, again, we have dacoity decreasing in spite of poor detective results, but, as I believe, and as the local authorities also maintain, in consequence of vigorous repressive measures being adopted.

Under robbery crime has been almost stationary, there being 15 cases to 14 last year. The results of operations were very poor, only four cases resulting in conviction, and only seven persons being punished.

Class III 194. ORISSA DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Cuttack	23	26	8	26	13	12
Pooree	28	37	18	58	16	42
Balasore	11	42	22	68	41	27
Gurjhat	4	22	11	8	3	5
Total ...	66	127	59	160	73	86

The crime in this division is mostly of a petty nature. There were only two dacoities during the year, both of which occurred in the district of Balasore. The result of operations was fairly successful, 18 persons out of 28 having been punished.

Class III. 195. CHOTA NAGPORE DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Hazareebagh	36	47	15	53	24	29
Lohardugga	11	9	1	11	10	1
Singbhoom	6	12	2	1	...	1
Manbhoom	35	38	12	20	2	15
Total ...	88	106	30	85	36	46

Under all headings of serious crime there has been a satisfactory decrease.

Dacoity, throughout the provinces, shows a most satisfactory decrease, in spite of the results of detection being most unsuccessful:—

In 1874 there were 45 cases.

In 1875 " " 22 "

In 1876 " " 8 "

This result was attained by a decrease, in the district of Manbhoom, of 13 cases,—there being only two cases in that district during 1876, against 15 in 1875.

The results are most unsatisfactory, there being conviction in only two out of eight cases, and only 12 persons punished. In this division we have the same tale of decrease obtained by systematic vigilance over, and control of, bad characters. The rural police in Hazareebagh have also been reorganized, and time-expired convicts are now sent to their districts instead of being let loose in Hazareebagh, both changes which must have had a most beneficial result. In Manbhoom the gangs of bad characters have been broken up, and no less than 22 have been called on by the Sessions Judge to furnish security for their conduct during three years.

In robbery the same particulars as are touched upon above with reference to dacoity are noticeable—a decrease in cases and a lamentable want of success in cases brought to trial. All the cases reported were of a petty nature.

Class IV.—Minor offences against the person.

196. The figures for the year, as compared with 1875, are given below :—

	True cases.	Cases in which convictions were obtained.	Per cent. of convictions.	PERSONS
				Tried.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1875	9,882	2,197	22.1	9,165	4,915	3,901
1876	9,073	2,233	24.6	8,550	5,338	3,895

showing a diminution in the number of cases with an improvement in the results of trials both with reference to cases and persons.

197. The two principal headings in this class are hurt and wrongful restraint and confinement. The figures below give the results of the year's operations as compared with those of last year :—

HURT.

	Cases.	False cases.	Total true.	Not inquired into.	Balance.	No. of cases in which convictions were obtained.	PERSONS.
							Tried.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1875	8,038	1,177	6,861	2,784	4,077	1,637	5,551	3,419	1,945
1876	6,715	989	5,726	1,112	4,614	1,651	5,946	3,715	2,039

WRONGFUL RESTRAINT.

1875	5,157	2,265	2,892	60	2,832	495	3,474	1,394	1,918
1876	5,005	1,782	3,223	41	3,182	504	3,430	1,484	1,821

It will thus be observed that while there is a large decrease in the number of hurt cases, there is a considerable increase in cases of wrongful restraint and confinement. No special explanation of this fluctuation can be given.

As usual, the Dacca Division in all cases of violence to the person takes the lead, both under hurt and wrongful restraint.

The number of false cases brought forward, although less than those in last year, continues large. Under wrongful confinement especially the number is large, but it is well known that this charge is very extensively made use of to pay off grudges upon enemies. It is not a difficult case to establish, which specially commends it to the litigious ryots of the Eastern Districts as a good way of bringing the police upon some hostile neighbour with whom they are at enmity.

Class IV. 198.

BURDWAN DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Burdwan	269	333	77	282	143	137
Bankoora	38	55	5	67	43	24
Beerbhoom	107	143	24	89	31	58
Midnapore	342	408	52	233	102	125
Hooghly	181	276	38	264	127	131
Howrah	190	272	27	328	212	101
Total ..	1,127	1,487	223	1,263	658	571

There has thus been an increase during the year, but to no great extent. The increase is chiefly observable under the heading hurt, which now being a cognizable offence enables villagers to secure the assistance of the police in cases which are little better than petty assaults.

As noticed last year, the sub-division of Moheshrakha still continues to furnish the majority of cases of wrongful restraint and confinement—a bad sign of the state of matters there between landlords and tenants.

Class IV. 199.

PRESIDENCY DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
24-Pergunnahs	390	531	65	541	346	184

Moorshedabad	463	426	43	408	202	200
Total ...	1,656	1,853	260	1,953	1,165	730

In the two most important headings of this class—hurt and wrongful restraint—there has been a slight increase of cases under the former and a considerable decrease under the latter.

The tables below give the results of operations during the year in each of the districts for 1875 and 1876.

Total ...	428	351	110	118	630	543	572	532	233	259	316	256

In hurt cases the result of operations in Nuddea was good, while in Moorshedabad the success attained was inconsiderable. Under wrongful restraint the best results were obtained in the 24-Pergunnahs.

Class IV. 200. RAJSHAHYE AND COOCH BEHAR DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Dinagepore	79	335	265	181	72	108
Rajshahye	262	278	66	149	78	63

Julpigoree	81	86	12	91	66	20
Total ...	986	1,517	577	1,125	607	476

The state of crime in this class calls scarcely for remark. About two-thirds of the whole of the cases in the class come under "hurt," there being 609 true cases out of 940 in the class. In 185 of these convictions were obtained, 374 persons being punished out of 581 who appeared before a Magistrate.

The number of cases pronounced false in this division under this class, it will be observed, is very large.

None of the cases of wrongful confinement calls for special remark. There has been very little fluctuation in crime under this heading.

Class IV. 201. DACCA DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Dacca	615	825	156	751	401	327
Furreedpore	435	460	124	283	204	72
Backergunge	736	1,195	491	426	180	230
Mymensingh	302	1,095	226	453	284	152
Tipperah	364	622	89	471	305	161
Total ...	2,452	4,197	1,086	2,384	1,374	942

There is a considerable increase apparent from the figures above given. Such increase arises entirely under the heading of hurt, and is caused, no doubt, owing to the crime having been made cognizable by the police, thereby enabling any villager assaulted, even in the most trifling manner, to exaggerate his wrongs and lay a complaint at the thana, free of cost, instead of going into the Magistrate's court and petitioning in the usual way. The Commissioner is of opinion that it would have been better had "hurt" remained uncognizable, and I am disposed to agree with him. It is possible that cases of serious injury might, if hurt were non-cognizable, sometimes not be reported to the police, but these instances would be rare; and the trouble to the police which is now occasioned through having to take up a large number of trumpery cases causes a great waste of power which we can ill spare.

202. The Commissioner remarks that there is a decrease of cases under the heading 'wrongful restraint,' which argues, in the opinion of local officers, either the existence of more satisfactory relations between landlords and tenants, or the growing power of the latter. The latter, I imagine, is the true inference; and if this growing power only leads to a discontinuance of illegalities on the part of landlords, then its exercise can only be regarded with satisfaction. The danger, however, is that such growing power induces the ryot in his turn to go beyond his rights and set at nought the legitimate rights of his landlord; and then we have the disorders of the bidrohi movement, as not long ago witnessed in the district of Pubna.

Class IV. 203. CHITTAGONG DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases report- ed in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Chittagong	170	218	11	129	75	50
Noakholly	209	286	39	217	159	49
Chittagong Hill Tracts	2	2	0	2	1	1
Total ...	381	506	50	348	235	100

The Commissioner observes that crime under this class continues to increase in Chittagong, while there is a marked decrease in Noakholly during the present year.

I do not find, however, that the figures of the year bear out these remarks as regards Noakholly, which, instead of a marked decrease, shows an increase in the number of cases of hurt and wrongful restraint combined.

The figures of cases of hurt and wrongful restraint in Noakholly for the year under review and that immediately preceding it are as follows:—

	Cases reported.	False.	Total true.
1875	264	57	207
1876	285	39	246

The Commissioner's remarks must have been based on some mistake, and I am the more inclined to believe that this has been the case when I find him saying:—"The Magistrate of Noakholly remarks that under this class cases of wrongful confinement continue to be larger in number, and he brings forward his favourite theory of prosperity and growing independence of the ryots of his district, and their refractory spirit, to account for it."

I need not spend time in refuting this favourite theory of the Magistrate of Noakholly. It has already been dealt with last year, and is, in my opinion, as unsound as it was then considered to be.

Class IV. 204. PATNA DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Patna	166	180	19	277	145	128

Chumparun	43	52	3	100	33	67
Total ...	733	775	138	1,104	518	542

No notice is taken of this class of offences in the Commissioner's report; I am therefore unable to do anything more than give the figures above.

The result of cases of 'wrongful restraint' was very unsuccessful, convictions being obtained in 32 of 190 cases reported and accepted as true. In Chumparun, in two cases out of 36 was a conviction the result of police action. In Durbhunga the result of convictions as to persons was very bad, there being 10 convictions out of 67 persons brought to trial.

Class IV. 205. BHAGULPORE DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1875.	Cases reported in 1876.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS

Maldah	89	131	31	116	56	42
Total ...	480	706	211	696	385	273

The figures call for no special remark, except to notice the unusually large proportion of cases in Bhagulpore declared false. Of 239 cases 131, or 54 per cent., were so returned. There has been a falling off in the percentage of detected cases as compared with last year, the figures being 25, against 30·4 of 1875; while the convictions of persons are better, being 55 per cent., against 47·3.

Class IV. 206. ORISSA DIVISION.

Gurjhat	27	19	1	17	13	4
Total	1,889	579	194	452	238	207

The only special feature which these figures present is the marked decrease of crime in Poorce. But this, as explained last year, is only nominal, and is the result of a change in procedure with reference to the acceptance at the thana of all charges of hurt, however petty. The matter has been separately reported to Government, and uniformity of procedure in this matter laid down.

Class IV. 207. CHOTA NAGPORE DIVISION.

The figures call for no special remark.

208. The total number of cases accepted as true under this class is 38,832, Class V.—Minor offences against property. against 38,093 of 1875. Although the number of cases reported last year exceeded that of the present year, yet the number of false cases reported in 1876 being considerably less than in 1875, the result has been an increase of 739 on the total of true cases.

The following figures show the result of action, both including and excluding serial Nos. 35 and 36, which belong to Class III.

False	30	26·5
Not inquired into	6·4	5·9

Briefly stated, these figures show an increase in the total number of cases, the same unsatisfactory proportion of convictions in cases during 1875 and 1876, the same, or nearly the same, successful results in cases of cattle theft and receipt of stolen property, a decrease both in the percentage of false cases and cases not inquired into in 1876 as compared with 1875.

I have elsewhere commented on the unsuccessful results under lurking house-trespass. All that I need say here is that it is perfectly clear that if we wish to repress these petty crimes against property we cannot hope to do so by any fear on the part of the criminal population of detection by our police. We have seen, in dealing with heavy crime, that its diminution has been effected not by detective success, but by repressive action. Is it possible, then, to extend such repressive action so as to reduce petty as well as serious crime, seeing that detective action has failed to secure this result? So far the result of our police operations has been to drive the perpetrators of serious crimes, committed at intervals and on the property of the well-to-do, to take to petty thefts and burglaries, committed constantly, and on the rich and poor indiscriminately. If we go on, and, having stamped out heavy crime in gangs, prevent individual members of these gangs from victimizing the people at large, then we shall deserve the thanks of the community ; but if we stop short and accept the position that serious crime having been put a stop to petty crime must increase, then we leave half of our work undone, and have conferred, as I observed in the beginning of this report, only a doubtful benefit on the people at large.

There has been a decrease under every heading in this class during the year except under criminal or house-trespass and breaking closed receptacle ; but in cases of lurking house-trespass, serial No. 35, the same want of success which is visible everywhere continues. Under this heading 2,003 true cases occurred, of which 134, or 6 per cent., resulted in conviction. Even this poor percentage was not obtained in Bankoora and Hooghly, where there were 16 convictions out of 289 cases in the former, and 20 out of 422 in the latter district.

Theft still continues to prevail at Howrah, which is the rendezvous for bad characters from all parts of Bengal. The police were successful in getting convictions in 310 out of 580 cases, 411 persons out of 583 brought to trial being convicted—a result which is not unfavourable. In Midnapore police operations against theft were far from successful, convictions being obtained in only 230 out of 1,028 cases, with 437 convictions of persons out of 1,065 brought to trial. In fact in none of the districts of the division were the results at all favourable except in Howrah.

It is satisfactory to notice that cattle-theft still continues to decrease in Midnapore, a result attributed by the Magistrate to the capture two years ago of a noted cattle-thief, Ramjan Ali, whose name was a perfect terror to the inhabitants of Narainghur. The results under this heading are satisfactory with regard to persons in Burdwan, where 44 out of 58 persons were convicted, and in Howrah, where 11 out of 14 were punished.

Total						9,795	11,288	2,445	6,348	3,150	2,927

The figures show a decrease under the headings of this class. Taking the figures of serials Nos. 35 and 36 into consideration the result is—

				True cases.	Detected.	Persons punished.
1875	9,795	2,259	3,592
1876	8,843	1,982	3,150

The percentage of detection, therefore, in 1876 is slightly worse than that in 1875, being 22·4 as against 23.

Under burglary, comprehending the serials 35, 36, 42, the results are as unfavourable as in other divisions, the percentage of detection for the division being 7 per cent., while in the district of Nuddea the result is even worse than this, there being only 45 convictions in 939 cases, or 4·7 per cent.

Total	7,530	9,140	1,891	5,016	3,078	1,784

On the whole there has been a decrease of crime in this class as compared with the previous year, although a considerable increase is seen under the heading thefts ordinary. The largest decrease has occurred in Dinagapore and Rajshahye. The percentage of convictions to men brought to trial shows improvement, being 61 against 41 per cent. during 1875.

Thefts ordinary increased largely in Bogra, Rungpore, Darjeeling, and Julpigorce. The convictions show improvement.

Under burglary there has been a marked decrease in cases in Dinagapore, Rajshahye, and Pubna; an increase in Julpigorce; while in the other districts of the division the crime has been almost stationary.

In Pubna occurred a case which made a considerable sensation at the time—a case of alleged theft of above five lakhs of rupees in the family-dwelling house of Obhoy Gobind Chowdhry, one of the zemindars of Tantibundh, the alleged robber being his half-brother, Bijoy Gobind Chowdry. It was alleged that in the walls of one of the houses occupied by Obhoy about five lakhs of rupees had been bricked up in his father's time, and that Bijoy, taking advantage of Obhoy's absence on pilgrimage, broke open the receptacles in the walls and plundered the money, along with a large amount of valuable jewellery. Bijoy and some of his servants were committed, but the case broke down, the complainant having produced witnesses evidently tutored for the occasion. I happened to be the Judge who tried the case, and I have no hesitation in saying that the police inquiry was badly conducted, and that had the case been properly gone into from the beginning a very different result might have been obtained.

The decrease under this heading in Dinagapore is attributed by the Magistrate to increased vigilance with respect to bad characters. The Magistrate complains of the inadequacy of judicial punishments awarded in such cases, but it seems to me that he has the remedy in his own hands with reference to his subordinates, who are, I imagine, the officers who award the sentences of which he complains.

In thefts the following figures give the results of operations as compared with 1875:—

	Cases reported.	Persons convicted.
1875	3,662	4,105
1876	3,894	1,475

showing improvement. In Pubna, as last year, this crime was most successfully dealt with of all the districts, convictions being obtained in 40 per cent. of cases investigated. But the result of trials with regard to persons was not so successful—a state of matters which was noticed last year, and which shows that due care was not taken by the police to secure full and sufficient proof against the persons whom they arrested.

Total ...	7,021	11,260	2,820	5,153	2,697	2,188

The increase which is visible in this class has taken place chiefly in Mymensingh and Tipperah under the heads of ordinary theft and criminal or house-trespass. In Mymensingh it is stated that the sub-divisional officer of Attia issued general instructions to the police to take up all cases of dhan-cutting, which cases were not previously investigated as a rule: hence the increase.

The results under burglary, as in other divisions, were very unsatisfactory, conviction resulting only in 12·6 per cent. of the cases which were accepted as true.

No other remarks seem called for.

Total ...	1,270	1,800	312	1,362	829	459

The chief feature in the returns for this division is the regularly increasing state of crime in Noakholly. In almost every heading there is an increase in these minor offences against property, which it appears to me is serious. I give the figures below for almost all the headings.

			Cases reported.
			1875.	1876.
Serial number 35	67	103
Ditto 36	12	12
Theft	331	535
Criminal breach of trust	102	121
Receiving stolen property	26	46
Criminal trespass	201	221
Serial number 42	17	26
Cattle theft	23	34
Total	779	1,098

This clearly shows that crime is getting the better of the police, for it is seldom that we see such a general increase under almost every heading in one district. The matter deserves the most serious consideration of the Magistrate and the District Superintendent. It may be partly accounted for by the increase of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of Noakholly, although the Commissioner does not seem to allow much weight to this plea, and partly to the occurrence of the cyclone and inundation, when drift property formed the subject of thefts. It is noted, however, that the same causes which were partly at work in the seaboard tract of Chittagong did not affect the returns of that district.

There has been a slight decrease on the whole class.

Burglary.—Serials 35, 36, 42, show a marked decrease, as will be evident from the following figures:—

	Cases reported.	False cases.	True cases.	Cases in which convictions were obtained.
1875	8,567	525	8,042	386
1876	7,664	386	7,278	447

I am glad to note that the percentage of cases not investigated is becoming gradually smaller, officers coming round to the opinion that non-investigation has a bad effect. The figures showing proportion of cases investigated to cases reported are as follows—

1872	57.1	1875	61.9
1873	58.8	1876	65.7
1874	54.5

The percentage of false cases has decreased, being 5 to 6.1 of 1875.

The result of police operations still continues very unsatisfactory, only 6.1 per cent. of true cases being prosecuted to conviction.

The following table shows the result of operations under serial Nos. 35, 36, and 42, in each district:—

The subject of burglary in Mozufferpore, which has already been reported to Government, deserves notice here. A series of burglaries occurred in some indigo factories in Mozufferpore and Durbhunga, and up to date these have puzzled the police entirely. It was supposed at one time that they were the work of gangs from other districts; that theory, however, is now abandoned: it is now supposed that they are the work of some skilful practitioner accustomed to working in large towns. Colonel Gordon writes:—“The manner in which entrances were effected, and the nature of the property plundered, were quite foreign to the procedure of the ordinary district budmash, who never takes but what he can dispose of to local receivers. A coffee-pot, biscuit-box, claret-jug, and a pair of ladies' boots, would find no local market. I am inclined to think that some well dressed, respectable-looking budmash or budmashes, from some neighbouring town, Patna for instance, finding their own preserves made temporarily too hot for them, emigrated to this and neighbouring districts, and confined themselves to looting indigo factories."

216. In cattle-theft there is a decrease of cases throughout the division, it being most prominent in Shahabad, where there is a diminution of 41 cases, due very probably to the Magistrate's determined measures against bad characters.

The figures are as follows:—

					1875.	1876.
Patna	39	43
Gya	75	72
Shahabad	76	35
Mozufforpore	62	51
Durbhunga	111	119
Sarun	34	53
Chumparun	31	13
					428	386

A plan for the registration of cattle sold in hâts was devised during the year by the District Superintendent of Durbhunga, with the view of checking cattle-lifting; but the Commissioner is of opinion, and I agree with him, that the scheme is impracticable. Such registration could not be enforced; it would not be of any use unless general in surrounding districts, and even in one district it could not be effectively supervised.

217. The following table shows the result of action with regard to ordinary thefts:—

• There has been an increase throughout the division visible under theft, burglary, and trespass chiefly.

In Bhagulpore especially there has been a very marked increase in crime against property. The District Superintendent attempts a feeble explanation by saying that crimes increase on account of the facilities given for reporting them. This is worth nothing, and the increase at present is not explained. It is significant that this increase has arisen under a new District Superintendent, and in the absence of Colonel Gordon to work his chowkidari system. It may be urged by those unfavourable to Colonel Gordon's scheme that crime, repressed and concealed under his system, is now beginning to show itself, while his advocates can as pertinently reply that the system, without Colonel Gordon to work it, has not been worked properly. This is an important point, and efforts will be made during the camping season to ascertain what the views of the people on the subject are, so that the proposed system may have justice done to its merits or demerits.

The result of convictions in cases, as compared with last year, is 21·1 to 20, and the percentage of convictions of persons has risen from 57 to 61·8, which is satisfactory.

Under cattle-theft there is a diminution of 7 cases during the year, but this decrease is not accepted as altogether real. It is grievously suspected, and I have no doubt with truth, that we do not hear of scores of cases of cattle-lifting—many of the reports of cattle having strayed being nothing more than thefts, concealed by the owners, who do not think it worth their while to complain. When the apathy of the people chimes in with the laziness of the police, it is impossible to expect any real results in the way of detection or repression of crimes.

Ordinary thefts show an increase of 557 cases. The figures being as follows :—

	1875.	1876.
True cases	3,278	3,835
Detected	881	1,056
Persons convicted	1,275	1,673
Ditto acquitted	854	868

The increase is visible more or less in Purneah, Bhagulpore, and Sonthal Pergunnahs. The results as given above are favourable to the year under review.

With the increase in theft comes naturally an increase in cases of receiving stolen property, the figures for 1876 showing 250 cases to 207. The results under this heading were decidedly satisfactory. In 179 cases 304 persons were punished, i.e. more than 70 per cent. of the cases were successful. Maldah and the Sonthal Pergunnahs were particularly successful.

The Cuttack report is so meagre that I can do little more than record the above figures, which show that there has been an increase of 1,123 cases in the class throughout the year.

I note that in lurking house-trespass and burglary the percentage of convictions in cases is better than in most divisions, being 20 per cent.

Under the heading thefts the results are remarkable for the very large number of cases returned as false, no explanation of which is given.

Total ...	2,604	3,062	486	1,947	1,248	642

There is a slight decrease throughout the division, but not to such an extent as to call for special remark.

Under burglary there were 1,209 cases, as against 1,139 of last year. The percentage of convictions in cases was 7, as against 8.1, and of persons 63.1, as against 63 of last year.

There has again been a decrease under the head of cattle-theft of 27 cases. This is attributed to several noted bad characters amongst the gangs being proceeded against under the vagrancy law, and also to the exertions of the police. The result of police operations was not so good as last year, the percentage of cases detected to cases reported, and of convictions to arrests, being 49 and 59, against 46 and 63 in 1875.

There has been a marked decrease in the number of thefts ordinary in the district of Manbhoom, but this decrease is more apparent than real. It simply arises from a change of procedure, the Deputy Commissioner having ordered the police not to investigate any dhan-cutting cases, but simply to enter them in the diary. If reference be made to my remarks on the Dacca division, it will be found that a large increase in thefts in the Mymensingh district is accounted for by the Sub-divisional Officer of Attiah having ordered the police to investigate all cases of dhan-cutting, thus giving precisely contrary directions to those issued by the Deputy Commissioner of Manbhoom. General orders of this kind of one purport or the other are mischievous, inasmuch as they unsettle the minds of the police and make them believe that their procedure is not to be regulated by law so much as the particular interpretations of the law by particular officers. Both orders, it appears to me, are wrong. It is equally wrong to say that the police are never to investigate, and always to investigate, such cases. There are many dhan-cutting cases which the police may very properly investigate when mere questions of fact are concerned, and where the denial of inquiry on the criminal side often places the poor man at the mercy of the rich; and there are many cases in which distinct questions of right are involved, which can only with propriety be decided in the Civil Court. But the police cannot determine à priori, and without investigation, which cases are cognizable by them. To investigate all is a waste of time; but to deter the police absolutely from investigating any, amounts not unfrequently to a denial of justice to the complainant.

Class VI. Other offences not specified above.

221. There has been a large increase during the year under this class, as will be seen from the figures given below:—

	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
Cases true	13,304	13,272	15,206	18,257
„ detected	10,869	10,968	12,582	14,959
Persons punished	13,438	13,775	16,501	18,856

There is thus an increase of 3,051 cases, which has taken place under headings of—

	1875.	1876.	Increase.
Vagrancy	3,387	4,957	1,570
Excise cases	1,651	1,775	124
Nuisances	8,066	9,640	1,574

Such increase, unlike that in other classes, does not point to any real increase in offences, but simply to more stringent working of the laws to repress them; to more vigorous repressive action in the case of vagrancy, and more successful detective measures with reference to breaches of Excise Laws and Nuisances' Acts.

222. As noticed in last year's report, the extension of the repressive measures under the provisions of the law relating to Vagrancy and bad character.

bad characters is viewed with approbation by every Commissioner in the province who has expressed an opinion on the subject. In fact vigorous action under these provisions is looked upon as an essential part of successful police administration. It is therefore not surprising that there should have been a large increase of cases under this heading, the figures showing that in the year under review there were 4,957 cases instituted, against 3,387 of last year. The results of such institutions were as follows :—

			True cases.	Cases in which convictions ensued.	Persons tried.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1875	3,387	2,275	3,490	2,480	831
1876	4,957	3,370	5,154	3,618	1,243

That is, there was an increase in the number of cases; the same percentage, 67, of convictions in cases; and a slight diminution in the percentage of conviction of persons, 70, as against 71 per cent.

Considering, therefore, the unanimity with which police action under these vagrancy laws is recommended, it seems strange that in hardly a single division is there any particular system of working these laws laid down. Each District Magistrate is apparently left to do as he likes in this matter; and considering the very small part now-a-days taken by Magistrates, with some conspicuous exceptions, in criminal administration of their districts, it may be said that the working of these vagrancy sections, which all Commissioners unite in considering to lie at the root of successful police administration, is practically left to the discretion of each District Superintendent. I draw this inference from the variations in practice which I notice in each district. The population of Hooghly, in the Burdwan Division, is 890,000; it is a criminal district, in which during the year 539 cases of burglary and 534 cases of theft occurred. In this district during the year 158 cases under the vagrancy laws were instituted. In the adjoining district of Howrah, with a population of 731,000, a notoriously criminal district, there were 11 cases instituted; in Beerbhoom, with a population of 695,000, only five cases were reported; while in Bankoora, with 526,000, there were 43 institutions.

Similarly, in the district of Nuddea, which possesses a distinctly criminal population in the Bediyas and Gowala cattle-thieves, and having a total population of 1,800,000, there were 86 institutions; while in the neighbouring district of Jessore, with a population of 2,072,000, and also having a specially criminal population in Bediyas, Muchis, and the Kayasts of Punka Chur, proceedings were taken in 201 cases.

In the Patna Division, again, we find in Sarun, with a population of 2,063,000, ninety-nine institutions; in Chumparun, the adjoining district, with 1,440,000, 228 cases instituted; while in Shahabad, with 1,700,000 inhabitants, no less than 645 cases were taken up.

In the Bhagulpore Division, too, we find in the district of Bhagulpore, population 1,820,000, proceedings under the vagrancy laws taken in 10 cases, while in the adjoining district of Monghyr, with 1,812,000 inhabitants, 244 cases were instituted. These figures establish the statement with which I started, viz. that there is no system pursued throughout the province with reference to the working of the vagrancy provisions of the law. I of course allow that there are differences of criminality in different districts; but in many of the districts which I have specified there is no such difference in the criminality of the population of each as to account for the striking differences observable in police action in them. The cause of the difference notoriously lies in the various systems adopted by individual officers.

223. Now, if the judicious working of these provisions of the law; as is universally admitted by Commissioners, lies at the root of all good police administration, it seems to me that some system should be laid down as to the way in which the sections of the law should be applied, and that all officers, police and magisterial, should have some definite instructions from Government on the subject. The variety of system pursued, from that of the district officer, who re-arrests 'dagis' before they are well out of jail, and before they have had a chance of living a better life—a system oppressive and unjust—to that of the Magistrate, who hesitates to convict a man on evidence as to reputation, although evidence as to reputation in bad character cases is all that the law requires,—this variety of system has a most mischievous result on the working of the police and on the inhabitants of districts. A police-officer finds that in one district he is expected to look up bad characters in one way, and in another in another; he has no principle to work on, and consequently, with that pliability which is only too common a defect in native character, he works, not in the way in which he ought, but in the way which he thinks will do in the district where he happens to be. Co-operation between the police of districts managed on such different systems is merely nominal.

224. To the inhabitants of districts, again, this diversity of system is most injurious. A change of officers meaning generally a change of system in dealing with bad characters, these latter are not slow to take advantage of it. If the officer who succeeds another is one who does not look up his bad characters, witnesses who have given evidence against budmashes in the preceding reign are made to feel the change. Their houses are singled out for thefts; their huts are not unfrequently burned; their cattle are taken away. Is it, then, wonderful that villagers become chary of giving evidence against bad characters when they know that after a year or two, under another system, the budmashes may revenge themselves upon them without much fear of detection? But let a system once be laid down for all districts, which under orders of Government will be carried out by all officers, then this feeling of insecurity on the part of villagers will disappear, and the police will be able to work on the same "lines" in any district in which they may happen to be.

225. It must be borne in mind that control of the bad characters in a district consists of two parts—first, looking them up by the police, and secondly taking judicial action with reference to those who, on being looked up by the police, are found to have no ostensible means of livelihood, or to be "habit and repute" bad characters in the opinion of their fellow villagers. Constant inquiry by the police will do no good without further action; and no judicial action can reasonably be taken without persistent supervision on the part of the police.

What we want, then, it seems to me, is first of all a display of personal interest on the part of the district and sub-divisional officers in this supervision of bad characters, which all Commissioners consider such an important part of police administration. I do not mean that every district officer is to try cases himself. I am aware of the many demands on a district officer's time; but if the principal duty of a Magistrate, as district officer and head of the police, is to look after the suppression of crime within his jurisdiction, which can hardly be denied, and if serious crime has been, and generally can be, best suppressed by the exercise of vigilance over bad characters, as all Commissioners admit, then a Magistrate, in my opinion, may fairly be called on to devote some of his time to the performance of one of his principal duties. He need not all the year round try cases himself, but he can see that the police are active in supervising bad characters, and that his subordinates try cases properly that are sent up.

226. The first matter to which attention is required is the collection of good and sound information with reference to bad characters and suspects. Much may be done in this respect by the police, more will be done when the rural police are improved, but most will be accomplished when the people at large trust their Magistrate, and believe that he is the representative and moving power in a system which is devised for their protection, which will continue even in his absence, and which will not terminate with his departure from the district.

227. Secondly, if good information be secured, the next point is to see that proper evidence is obtained. I have no hesitation in saying that most of the cases which fail before the judicial authorities fail, not because they are false, but because the police in many cases cannot, and in more cases will not, send up the best evidence procurable. It is well known that respectable villagers have a strong objection to attending our courts. The consequence is that in the majority of cases of bad character sent up the police do not send up the names of the respectable inhabitants, but summon the chowkidar and two or three cultivators to testify against the accused. With such evidence produced, it is little wonder that the courts refuse to convict; and the result of this in the present year is that 1,243 alleged bad characters have been judicially acquitted, many of whom, I have no doubt, have returned to their villages judicially whitewashed to prey upon the inhabitants without fear of detection.

My experience, if I may be allowed to refer to it, has all along been that in cases of bad character no satisfactory conclusion as to the good or evil repute of the accused can be arrived at in the great majority of cases unless the charge is tried in the village in which he resides. The general character of the man being the question at issue, it seems to me unfair to decide that point without the testimony of the great body of villagers amongst whom he resides. He should be tried, so to speak, by a jury of his fellow villagers, and such a trial is secured him in his village, amongst all the inhabitants who can testify as to his reputation. A trial in a village tells the investigating officer in a few minutes whether the case is true or not; it enables all the respectable inhabitants to come forward and give their evidence (and to giving evidence in their villages they have no objection), and it allows of the accused examining at once any witnesses whom he may wish to call in his defence.

228. It is often alleged that however desirable the adoption of such a procedure may be, officers have not time to carry it out. I am not disposed to assent to this view. With a joint-magistrate, sub-divisional officers, deputy magistrates, at head-quarters, and selected honorary magistrates throughout his district, I believe that a district officer could without much difficulty make arrangements to have these cases tried locally. And I am very sure of this, that the expenditure of the time of some officers for a year or two in such local trials would be amply repaid by a diminution of crime throughout every district in Bengal by a consequent reduction in the police force, and by increased security to property in every sub-division of the province. Energetic and judicious repression of bad characters has reduced crime in individual districts, as I could show if it were necessary to do so; and such energetic and judicious repression, systematized throughout the province, would, I have no doubt, lead to general diminution of crime in Bengal.

229. Thirdly, special attention is required on the conviction of a bad character as to the security which is required from him. The determination of this matter rests under the law with the judicial authorities; and I would only call attention to the fact that the release of a convicted bad character on the security of mookhtars and others, who are paid for becoming sureties, renders the whole of the preceding inquiry useless, is most discouraging to the police, and is most injurious to the villagers who have testified against the man. It may not be generally known that the professional surety, in addition to receiving from the budmash a commission (generally of 10 per cent.) on the amount demanded, insists on the deposit with him of the full sum required as security, so that in the event of the convicted budmash in any way forfeiting his bond the amount is at once paid up by the professional surety, without any expense to himself, from the funds at his disposal. I do not for a moment advocate the demand of excessive security; but what is necessary is that the sureties are men of substance, who know the man, and who are likely to exercise some control over his actions when released on their responsibility.

230. I trust I may be excused for having dwelt at such length on this subject; but I have a very strong belief that if the power given to magisterial officers were judiciously exercised on a recognized system, the benefit to the people at large would be very great. Were our police stronger in detective power than they are, I am not prepared to say that I would advocate such repressive measures so strongly as I in common with all the Commissioners of divisions do ; but with the police as they are, and with the people so averse to help in the detection of crime, I think prevention is better than cure.

Excise and Opium Laws. 231. As pointed out above, there has been an increase of 124 cases during the year—a trifling increase when the area over which the increase took place is considered. I cannot believe that the figures really represent, with anything like accuracy, the number of cases of actual breaches of the excise laws which are committed. When I find, for example, that in two districts of the Presidency division, where the population amounts to nearly four millions, where drinking has been steadily on the increase, and in one of which illicit distillation was actually carried on, ten cases of breach of excise laws were investigated during the year by the police, I must decline to believe that this result points to any thing but neglect by the police of their duty as excise-officers. It is simply impossible to believe in the existence of such deference to excise law on the part of four millions of inhabitants, amongst many of whom drinking habits extensively prevail. This belief is confirmed by the fact that in Bogra, where last year not a single case of breach of excise law occurred, during 1876 44 cases are reported. This points in my opinion simply to better performance, or, more accurately, less neglect in performance, of their duties in this district by the police, not to a sudden determination on the part of the drinking population of Bogra to break the law.

Railway police. 232. There has been a slight increase of crime during the year, which, considering the very unusual amount of traffic, is not to be wondered at. In all 1,001 cases were reported, in which 1,012 persons were concerned; of these 917 persons were sent up for trial, 709 being convicted, 181 acquitted; the percentage of convictions being 77 per cent. Of a sum of Rs. 10,660 reported stolen, Rs. 8,339 were recovered—a satisfactory result. In addition to these cognizable crimes, 464 cases of non-cognizable crime were reported; of these 372 were inquired into, 385 persons being brought to trial, of whom 366 were convicted.

Railway accidents. There has been a decrease in the number of accidents which occurred during the year, there having been 96, compared with 121 of last year. In 47 of these cases 49 persons were killed; in 26, 35 persons were wounded, 25 cases being of a petty nature.

Spike and fencing thefts. This class of crime still continues to increase, there being 99 cases as against 70 of last year. In 17 cases only was conviction obtained; 26 persons out of 36 sent up being convicted, and 10 acquitted. This crime is very difficult of detection, distance being no obstacle to the thieves, and receivers being always ready to relieve the criminals of the spoil. In one case a gang of four men, who confessed to stealing fencing posts last year, and who committed a similar theft in 1876, were detected and imprisoned for two years. The posts were found with a blacksmith twenty miles from the spot where they were stolen.

Obstructions on the line. Nine cases were reported, in which 18 persons were arrested; 15 were sent up for trial, who were all found guilty, eleven of them being children, who were let off with a warning. A very important case of removing a rail from the line took place near Assensole; but unfortunately sufficient evidence against the supposed perpetrators of the crime was not forthcoming to warrant their being sent up for trial. This case was specially reported to Government.

Running train robbery. Only one case of this kind occurred, in which the thief missed his footing, fell on the rail, and had his leg cut off—a warning of the danger attending this form of crime, which seems to have had good effect.

Pick-pockets. Nine cases occurred, in 7 of which 7 persons were sent up for trial and convicted.

Illicit opium. 233. Nearly double the amount captured last year was seized this year.

The figures being—

There has been a decrease, on the whole, of 78 cases as compared with the preceding year. The decrease is most marked in Midnapore, where the number fell from 570 cases in 1875 to 357 during the year under report. In Balasore, Chittagong, and Jessore the decrease has been slight, in Pooree very slight, but in Cuttack it has been considerable. In the 24-Pergunnahs, on the other hand, there has been a large increase, owing chiefly to increased activity on the part of the police in bringing to light numerous petty cases of illicit manufacture of salt within the Diamond Harbour sub-division, where it is said to be extensively and secretly carried on, apparently for home consumption. A large increase is also seen in Noakholly, mostly in cases under section 22 and breach of rule 35, neglecting to give up rowannahs after sale has been completed.

The percentage of convictions to arrests continues to be satisfactory, being 91.4 against 90.1 during the preceding year, and indicates that the police exercised great care and discretion in making arrests.

There has been a considerable diminution in the quantity of salt attached, namely, by 464 maunds; but the ratio of confiscation to seizure is very satisfactory, being 93.8 per cent. against 80.2 in 1875. In Howrah no attempts were made during the year under review to pass unprotected salt at the Bally pass station. The result is attributed to the successful operations of the guard boat stationed on each side of the river Hooghly.

The total amount of fines inflicted during the year was Rs. 6,764-14-5, against Rs. 9,956-0-3 in 1875.

The Magistrate of Howrah considers that there is not much work left to do in the way of shutting up bad characters. The figures for his district, however, show that of 580 true cases of theft reported, 270 were undetected, which looks as if there were still some bad characters to be supervised.

The results of trials in such cases in Midnapore were very unsatisfactory, only 67 persons out of 123 having been convicted. The Magistrate admits this, but remarks that this section can so easily be made an engine of oppression by the police and zemindars, that he does not think caution by magisterial officers is to be deprecated. I agree with the Magistrate that, as cases are at present sent up, the exercise of such caution is indispensable; but the necessity for it would be done away with if local trials were adopted.

Beerbhoom shows 2 persons convicted, proceeding from an excess of caution on the part of the district authorities in working the provisions of the Act.

Under offences against the excise laws there has been a considerable increase, there being 570 cases against 352. The increase is most marked in Beerbhoom, where there were 174 cases against 33 of last year. It is explained that this was due to the discovery of extensive illicit manufacture of pachwai by the Sonthals resident in the district. In Midnapore the convictions were very good, but the Commissioner remarks that in a large proportion of the cases the offence was bringing pachwai in excess of the authorized quantity, the least serious form of excise offence.

The following table shows operations under vagrancy laws. The result of operations in Moorshedabad was extremely satisfactory, and well illustrates the advantages of such cases being investigated and tried locally. The results in Nuddea, 45 convictions to 41 acquittals, are very unsatisfactory.

No specification of the class of cases is given; I conclude, therefore, that they were unimportant. Of 434 persons sent up for trial, 412 were convicted.

There has been a considerable increase, chiefly visible in vagrancy and excise cases.

Operations under the Vagrancy Act have been conducted with great vigour in all the districts of the division, says the Commissioner, "and notably by the Magistrate of Dinagepore, in whose district the results are particularly satisfactory." That the repressive measures adopted by the Magistrate have had good effect, is shown by the fact that the number of burglaries dropped from 805 in 1875 to 548 in the year under report. The Magistrate of Pubna observes:—"I have found excellent results from the practice of going out to a village and holding on the spot an inquiry into the character of alleged budmashes, which is sometimes denounced by acclamation, the most satisfactory test of all. In one outpost burglaries decreased from 25 to 6, I believe entirely on account of the procedure adopted and described above."

There has been an increase in the number of excise cases throughout the division, notably in the case of Bogra, in which district there were 44 cases reported, against none last year. For this the Magistrate gives credit to the police for their exertions; but this increase of cases only shows that in 1875 the police must have neglected their excise duties, for it is not likely that an outbreak of breaches of excise laws like this should have been sudden. It is also clear that in Pubna the police are negligent in looking after breaches of excise laws. It is impossible to believe that in a population of 1,200,000 there should only have been two cases of breach of the excise laws.

The District Superintendent of Rajshahye admits that in the performance of excise duties the police have shown indifference.

239. The Commissioner remarks:—"Under heading 50 (belonging to gangs of thugs, dacoits, robbers, and thieves) a very important case has been entered, and the following is an account of it as given by the Magistrate of Dacca. 'Information was received against four gangs of professional thieves which had come to Dacca, and inspector Bhagbut Churn Gangooly worked up the information with great credit, and succeeded in capturing two gangs; one other gang escaped during the hue and cry, and managed to get away. The District Superintendent followed them in the steam-launch, but failed to overtake them before they reached their home at Birhamgunge, in the Furreedpore district. He, however, arrested six of the men. The fourth gang escaped for the time, but some have since been caught. These gangs did not confine their operations to this district alone, but the neighbouring districts also had a fair share of their attention. They divided themselves into parties of five or six in small boats, and went about committing depredations both by land and water, dividing the proceeds fairly after their return. These gangs are said to have been in existence for upwards of 30 years, and their modus operandi, as elicited in one case, was to begin a quarrel about some trifle, and, while two or three kept up the row, the others helped themselves to whatever came in their way and got off; another method was to land at a crowded ghât, and, while some kept up a conversation at the bows of a boat with the boatmen, the others entered from the stern and took what they could lay hands on and then departed. From their method of operations it would appear that these gangs confined themselves chiefly to such operations as might be undertaken with the utmost impunity, and much facility is afforded by the audacious and careless manner in which boats are left at crowded ghâts in charge of a boy, while the rest of the crew are either sight-seeing or purchasing goods from the bazar. Such boats are an easy prey, and property is often carried off long before the discovery is made. Since the Penal Code came into operation such a case has never been discovered in the Bengal Presidency, and there is reason to believe that such gangs exist elsewhere.' Since the close of the year the case has been disposed of. Of the 27 persons committed 13 were acquitted and 14 were sentenced to seven years' transportation."

• When the case was first brought to my notice, I observed that many of the thieves were, as evidenced by their names, Kayasts, being intimately acquainted with the notorious Kayast gangs of Punka Chur and Lunka Chur on the Modhumati. I made inquiries whether the Dacca gangs were not connected with the Punka Chur dacoits, and the result of the inquiry clearly showed that they were so connected. I am now engaged in tracing the ramifications of these gangs.

The Commissioner remarks that there is a satisfactory falling off in cases under this class. If a falling off in this class meant really a diminution in the number of bad characters and a repression of illicit manufacture of salt, then the district officers might be congratulated on the reduced number of cases in this class. But when it is noticed by the Commissioner under class V that minor offences against property are rapidly increasing, that cases of theft in Noakholly rose from 192 to 518 during the year, and that illicit manufacture of salt, it is suspected, is being carried on in Sundeeep, I am afraid that the decrease of cases under class VI is no cause for congratulation, but for regret.

The results of operations under the vagrancy law are given below:—

The chief feature of the crime under this class in this division during the year is the exceptional number of prosecutions under the vagrancy laws in the district of Shahabad. I am not personally aware of the manner in which these prosecutions have been carried out, and I am not prepared to say, from what I have heard, that the prosecutions have in all cases been judicious; but there can be no doubt as to the very marked effect in the diminution of crime against property which these measures have had. There is no doubt that in Shahabad congregate the worst budmashes of Behar; and the lesson which has been taught them by the proceedings of the Magistrate must have had, and will have for a long time, I imagine, a most salutary effect in repressing crime. Some of the zemindars of these parts have long been notorious supporters of budmashes of every class.

242. Burglaries have dropped from 976 to 515—a most evident result of these measures. I give in detail the remarks of the Magistrate and District Superintendent with reference to these operations, with the opinion of the Commissioner on the same. Mr. Irvine writes thus:—“The steps taken during the year for the safety of the mails, the protection of traffic, the prevention of cattle-stealing on a large scale, and for the good of the public generally, have been separately shown in the departmental portion of this report; but by far the most important and salutary work done by the police has been the rooting out of the nest of daring thieves and villains who so long found shelter under the wings of the maliks of the ill-famed villages of Chowgaon, Girdhur, Baraon, &c., &c., all situated in pergunnah Bhojepore. The task was a difficult one, but it has been successfully accomplished, and the most fortunate thing of all is that the leading maliks, Baboo Santbeclash Singh with his son, Baboo Umbicapersad Singh, have been convicted under section 505, Criminal Procedure Code, and required to furnish security for good behaviour. As he has not been

* These men have since been released by the High Court. able to provide good and fit surety he is still in the Arrah jail.* The conviction of such a man as Santbeclash Singh has had a most marked effect not only in Bhojepore, but throughout the district. The budmashes, near and far, have been more or less overawed by this severe, but necessary, step. There is now good reason for believing that some of the mail robberies and other serious thefts reported in former years from eastern districts were perpetrated partly by the Aheers of Chowgaon and its vicinity. Baboo Bussunt Singh and Ameera Singh, two more maliks of Chowgaon, have lately been found and arrested. They will also be prosecuted shortly, together with some shopkeepers and others of the same place. Pusput, Palmand, and Nathooni Tewaris, three of the maliks of Nainijore, another notorious locality mentioned in the report of 1875, have been made to furnish security for good behaviour. It will be remembered that above two years ago these men were convicted under section 176, Indian Penal Code, for not giving information about the misdeeds of various Doshads and others who were punished for dacoities committed in Ghazeepore, Tirhoot, Purneah, &c. During the year Mundharce Tewari, one of the six maliks of Nainijore, who had long evaded arrest, was captured and duly prosecuted. Some notorious Aheers of Botowli and other villages in pergunnah Pawar, who used in former years to cross the Soane on thieving excursions, and some equally notorious Aheers of Kant, near Berhampore outpost, have likewise been prosecuted and convicted under section 505, Criminal Procedure Code.”

As to the effect of these measures, Mr. Wells, the Magistrate, reports thus:—“As the District Superintendent remarks, the conviction of the Chowgaon maliks under section 505, Criminal Procedure Code, has had an excellent deterrent effect on all classes throughout the district, as it has proved that the richest and most powerful men cannot evade the laws. These maliks, as also the chiefs of Nainijore, used notoriously to foster dacoits and criminals of the worst type, who under their auspices have so long and successfully defied justice. The sentence on Rajaram Ojha to seven years’ in the Titalyah mail robbery for receiving stolen property, and the successful prosecutions under section 505 of the rest of important criminals, have been of admirable effect. In my tours through the district I have taken the opportunity of impressing on zemindars and men of influence and responsibility the onus that rested on them in giving cover to criminals. The supervision of village chowkeedars, budmashes, and receivers of stolen property, has borne admirable fruit. We have still much to do, but have proceeded with circumspection and caution, which nevertheless has inspired a wholesome terror, as no bad character now deems himself safe, and they are right in their conclusion. We have been energetically aided by Inspector Makbond Singh, Sub-Inspector Mahomed Azim, and the subordinate police generally. The work has been anxious and heavy; but, the results show that the right men have been caught. What has to be yet done will be a work of time, but a severe regimé is still required, and our vigilance cannot be relaxed with safety or prudence."

The Commissioner remarks:—"I agree generally with the opinion that a judicious crusade against bad characters is the most efficient method of repressing crime that we possess. The effect of it is, as usual, most marked in the crime returns; but I am rather startled by the figures for Shahabad shown in these statements."

243. As a companion picture to the above, I note the remarks of the sub-divisional officer of Hajepore, in the district of Mozufferpore, where prosecutions for bad character have been fewer than in the preceding year, and where, in consequence, burglaries have increased. "It will be seen from the crime return that the burglaries, though somewhat below the average of five years, have become half as numerous again in 1876 as in 1875, whilst the number of ordinary thefts far exceeds the occurrences of last year's, and is quite abnormal. It is always difficult to argue as to the state of crime from figures supplied by the police; but I am of opinion that last year, owing to proper steps having been taken against local bad characters, a real check was given to burglary, and that the increase of this crime during the past year, perhaps partly owing to the release of certain convicts to bad livelihood, is chiefly due to the ignorance of the police, and their inability to detect or ascertain bad characters before conviction, in some cases, reveals their true mode of life. Remembering how unsuccessful the police are in the detection of this crime, it is sad to think of the number of thieves and burglars at large, whose habits must be well known to their neighbours, but tidings of whose character never reach the thana. Judging from the figures, the Hajepore thana has been left more at the mercy of these criminals than the others; from its position it is likely to be pre-eminent in this respect."

The District Magistrate himself has great faith in the good effects of prosecution of bad characters under Chapter XXXVIII of the Criminal Procedure Code. "Whenever," says Mr. Worsley, "these provisions have been vigorously applied, as for instance in the Kutrah thana, the decrease of burglaries has been quite surprising." He adds that "during the year 20 budnash cases were sent up from this thana (Kutrah), of which I tried 18 myself; and in the previous year, 1875. there was also a great number of prosecutions: The results have been that burglaries decreased from 100 in 1874 to 40 in 1875, and that there has been a further decrease of some 20 per cent. in 1876."

In this division there is the increase noticeable elsewhere, caused chiefly by activity in Monghyr and Purneah in instituting cases against bad characters. The Commissioner says that different views are held with reference to the advisability of prosecuting such cases vigorously.

The small number of cases which were instituted in Bhagulpore is due to the fact that the bad characters are strictly watched, but not arrested without good reason.

In Maldah the convictions were not so good, and the District Superintendent notes that it is difficult to procure evidence against bad characters, not from any sympathy for them on the part of the villagers, but from fear that they may be discharged on trial and return to do them some injury. The Commissioner remarks that he does not see the force of the reasoning, but I can most thoroughly support the view of the District Superintendent from my own experience.

The Commissioner has for some years past been urging on officers the adoption of the system of taking up cases against bad characters during the cold weather tour.

With reference to excise cases, there seems to have been no improvement on the part of the police in Purneah and Sonthal Pergunnahs to stop smuggling.

NON-COGNIZABLE CRIME.

247. There has been an increase in the number of cases instituted on complaint and taken up by the Magistrate, the figures showing 98,287 cases, against 95,766 of last year. The increase is chiefly visible in the districts of Gya, Noakholly, Dinagepore, which, as compared with 1875, show an increase of 901, 1,534, and 1,076 cases, respectively.

There was also an increase in the number of persons summoned, and who appeared before Magistrates, the figures being:—

Persons summoned	1875	1876.
„ who actually appeared	99,959	103,830
			73,471	75,691

It does not, however, appear that summonses have been issued without discrimination, as the percentage of convictions, both with regard to persons summoned and to those who actually appeared, has in the year under review slightly improved, being 43 and 59 per cent., as against 42·7 and 58 1 of 1875.

The police were employed to make inquiry in 4,964 cases, as against 5,569 of 1875.

There is a marked decrease in the division, caused almost entirely by the marked diminution of cases in the district of Howrah. Although the number of cases in this district fell from 6,287 in 1875 to 2,518 in 1876, and the number of persons summoned from 6,609 to 2,714, the Commissioner reports that no explanation has been furnished by the Magistrate. The Commissioner imagines that the operation of the bench system on the improved method, and the operation of the new Act, V (B.C.) of 1876, may have something to do with the result. Such a marked increase ought to have attracted attention, and I regret that I am obliged simply to note the fact for the information of Government, without attempting to account for it.

The percentage of convictions fell off as compared with last year, being 57·7, as against 63·1 in 1875. The reduction in the employment of police agency in inquiring into such cases still goes on, the police having been employed in only 371 cases, against 485 in 1875 and 783 in 1874. In Howrah especially the police seem to have been very sparingly employed in such investigations.

Total	15,394	16,285	11,757	17,221	10,814	6,256	3,792	156

There has been an increase in cases of non-cognizable crime throughout the division, visible chiefly in the two districts of Nuddea and Jessore, and having occurred principally in the class of minor offences against property and person, and also in miscellaneous proceedings under the Code of Civil Procedure.

The percentage of convictions is not so good as that of last year. The police have been employed to a larger extent in making inquiries in such cases, as will be seen from the figures given below:—

				1875.		1876.
24-Pergunnahs	375 cases or 9·2		352 or 9·2

In the sub-division of Bongong, in the district of Nuddea, the police were employed in 285 out of the 373 cases in which police agency was required throughout the district, thus showing that “in that sub-division the time of the police has been systematically wasted by the Magistrates.” Special measures are now being taken by the Magistrate to control the working of Bongong in this respect.

There is a considerable increase of cases, notably in the district of Dinagepore, where the number of cases has more than doubled: The bulk of these cases come under the head of offences against public justice, and the increase is the more remarkable as in 1874 and 1875 not a single case was taken up by the Magistrate of his own motion.

In 453 cases were the police directed to make inquiries; and the percentage of convictions of persons has improved, being 65 per cent. in 1876 to 59 in 1875.

In cases of perjury fair results were obtained in Rajshahye, where 27 persons were convicted to 13 acquitted; and in Pubna, where 12 were convicted to 8 acquitted. In Dinagepore, on the other hand, with 51 acquittals and 22 convictions, and Bogra with 50 acquittals to 39 convictions, prosecutions for giving false evidence have evidently been undertaken without due consideration.

The results under forgery were lamentable, only three persons being convicted and 22 acquitted in 18 cases during the year.

251. Rungpore is conspicuous for offences against the marriage laws, there being 252 cases of this kind during the year. The cause assigned is the low tone of morality amongst the lower Mahomedan population, parents of girls being apparently as much to blame in the matter as any one else. Not content with first selling their daughters to the highest bidder, they repeat the process, and when criminal proceedings follow, the first marriage is denied or a fictitious divorce pleaded. The new registration law, it is said, has taken good root in the sub-division of Kurigram, where, in consequence, cases have been few.

There has been a decrease of cases in this class throughout the division. This decrease is specially noticeable under the heading "minor offences against the person" in the Backergunge district, and is accounted for by the loss of life caused by the cyclone.

The agency of the police was employed in 1,395 cases, as compared with 1,453 in 1875. There is great variation in procedure in this respect noticeable in the different districts. Mymensingh, with 5,800 cases, employs the police in 160 cases; while Furreedpore, with almost the same number (5,724), uses police inquiry in 602 cases. I agree with the Commissioner in thinking that the number of police inquiries directed in Furreedpore is excessive. In no district, however, it is explained, have the police been so employed as to impair the efficiency of their more legitimate work; but I can hardly consider this remark altogether correct, when I see that in more than 10 per cent. of non-cognizable cases in Furreedpore the time of the police was employed.

During the year a professional forger, Kalli Kumar Dass, was captured in the very act of preparing a forged document, surrounded by the implements of his trade. He was convicted and sentenced to seven years' rigorous imprisonment, a sentence which, in the case of a professional, is, in the opinion of the Commissioner, inadequate.

Cases of miscarriage are steadily decreasing, owing, it is alleged, to the increase of the Brahmo sect of the Hindoos. The prejudice against re-marriage of widows, amongst whom these cases generally occur, is gradually, though slowly, disappearing.

Cases relating to marriage are also decreasing; but the decrease is so small (67) that it is in my opinion rightly attributable to merely accidental fluctuation of this species of offence. The operation of the new Registration Act, it is reported, has not caused any very great reduction in the number of cases; and the local officers, while admitting that it is hardly fair so soon to judge of the effect of the measure, are of opinion that no real good will be done until compulsory registration is insisted on.

There has been an increase of non-cognizable crime within this division in the district of Noakholly, where the number of cases has risen from 3,374 to 5,037. All that is said about this in the local report is as follows:—"There has been an unusual increase of non-cognizable crime, for which the Magistrate adduces various reasons; the prosperity of the lower classes being one which induces them to resent any slight insult by laying a complaint"—rather meagre notice and explanation of an increase of above 1,663 cases in one district.*

The Magistrate of Chittagong, in reply to the strictures passed last year on his action in rejecting so many complaints without issue of process, explains that such complaints are not at once dismissed under section 147; that on presentation of complaint, the complainant is ordered to bring in his witnesses that the case may be sifted before process is issued; that frequently the complainant cools down, resolves to abandon action, or cannot persuade his witnesses to come in, and that consequently it is only the earnest complainant (earnest implying vigour in prosecuting either a true or false complaint) who perseveres and secures the issue of process. It is noted, however, as last year, that the convictions in such earnestly prosecuted complaints were little more than the acquittals, a result which shows that the sifting process is not very successful.

All that is said about police agency in inquiries is that the "Magistrate reports a middle course has been observed during the year under report."

254. The Commissioner reports a case as an illustration of how "Hindoo Society can sometimes resent any moral or social wrongs committed against it, and what influence the Brahmins still retain over the mass of the people." The case briefly is that a sect of Jugis separated themselves from Hindoo tenets, gave up idolatry, and would have nothing to say to the Brahmins. The Brahmins interdicted the washermen from washing for the heretical Sanjugis, who promptly applied to the courts for redress. The Moonsif (Deputy Magistrate) imprisoned the orthodox washermen for a month under section 504, considering that "the refusal to wash the clothes was an insult that might lead to a breach of the peace!" The decision is as curious in a legal, as the case in a social, point of view.

There has been a large increase during the year, chiefly under class 4, and special laws; and notably in the districts of Gya and Shahabad. The increase is most marked in the following specific offences:—

	Cases.
Criminal force	798
Municipal offences	695

It is satisfactory to find that the agency of the police was employed only in 361 cases, or 3·7 per cent., against 443, or 5·5, in 1875, and 607, or 8 per cent., in 1874.

The result of convictions was a slight improvement on last year, being 60 per cent. as compared with 59 of 1875. The best results were obtained in Gya, where 77 per cent. of those brought to trial was convicted. In Chumparun the same result as noticed last year is observable, although process was not issued in so many cases, leading to the inference that those cases in which process was issued were selected. Still the result is that even in these sifted cases there are 517 acquittals to 441 convictions. No notice is taken of this in the divisional report; but there must be some peculiar feature hitherto undetected in the judicial administration of Chumparun to lead to such different results from those obtained in other districts of the division. The matter deserves the serious consideration of the Magistrate.

The same point also appears manifest from the figures for Mozufferpore, where, although 308 cases were rejected as not deserving issue of summons, the acquittals of persons summoned in the remaining 561 selected cases are 311 compared with 371 convictions.

There is a considerable increase throughout the division noticeable under the following heads:—

			1875.	1876.	Increase.
Class I	919	1,108	189
" IV	4,317	4,532	215
" V	1,212	1,446	234

Police agency was employed in only 319 cases, as compared with 344 of last year.

With regard to issue of process, the results in Maldah and the Sonthal Pergunnahs were exceptionally good. The results in Bhagulpore, ending in 759 convictions and 659 acquittals, were not satisfactory. The Commissioner remarks that this can be accounted for "on the theory which alone can support the excessively high percentage of false cognizable cases in the same district, viz. that the people are greater liars than in other parts of the division."

257.* The following figures give the result of prosecutions for giving false evidence and making false complaints:—

There was an increase during the year, spread over all districts of the division, and apparent chiefly under the headings criminal force and mischief.

Nothing worthy of remark is observable except the marked difference between the number of persons summoned and actually appearing before courts. This results from a large number of such cases being compromised; all that the person laying the complaint wishes being generally to annoy or coerce his enemy with the issue of summons, when the accused generally compromises the case. Amongst such a timid population as the Ooryas, it is particularly necessary that discretion should be exercised in granting summons. And this point appears to be fairly attended to.

261. This question is still in statu quo ante, the divisional report on the subject of the Bediyas not yet having been received or considered. Various schemes with regard to the Criminal tribes.

Mughya Domes have been proposed, some having in view the regeneration, and others the prevention of generation, of the species; but none to my mind are practicable without an expenditure of money, which, under present financial circumstances, it would be impossible to recommend. The smaller criminal colony of the Bediyas may, I think, be restrained and brought under the Criminal Tribes' Act, and on this point a special report will in due course be submitted to Government.

Re-convictions.

262. The following table shows the number of cases in which re-convictions have taken place during the year:—

The subject of procuring accurate information as to previous convictions of persons accused of offences against property is receiving great attention, and some progress has been made. Many difficulties, however, beset the subject, chief amongst these being the fact that notorious offenders give false names often when arrested, and that convictions recorded against them under such aliases cannot, as a rule, be proved. The sub-divisional system also throws considerable difficulties in the way of ascertaining re-convictions, inasmuch as no record of previous convictions beyond the bounds of the sub-division is, as a rule, recorded in the sub-divisional register. The jail authorities give all the assistance which they can, and the police have been specially directed to make inquiries as to a criminal's antecedents, and gradually, as the system of co-operation amongst the police of different districts extends, we shall have more success in identifying and proving previous convictions against habitual criminals. In connection with this subject, I think that it might do a great deal of good if notorious criminals—poisoners, druggers, habitual thieves, cattle-lifters, &c.—were photographed, as is now done in the case of prisoners transported for life. These photographs would be, I believe, of great use, distributed as they might be in various districts, and the cost would really not be more than is at present incurred by the constant deputation of police-officers to assist in identifying notorious or habitual offenders.

I wish, however, to bring prominently to the notice of Government that unless police action in the way of ascertaining and proving previous conviction leads to severer sentences being passed on habitual than on ordinary criminals, the trouble incurred in establishing the fact of such convictions is thrown away. Severity in such cases seems to me to be in reality mercy; mercy both to the people who suffer from the operations of the criminals, and to the criminal himself, who, in jail for a lengthened term, has some chance of being taught a trade which he may turn to account when released.

263. I have selected some instances in which it appears to me the sentences passed on re-convicted offenders have been altogether inadequate, give no protection to the inhabitants of the various districts, and act rather as an encouragement than as a deterrent to offenders:—

I could without any difficulty multiply instances similar to the above, in which the sentences awarded to criminals on re-conviction appear to have been altogether inadequate, but the particulars above given show with sufficient clearness, I think, that it is necessary to direct the attention of Magistrates to the plain provisions of section 315 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In that case it is clearly laid down that a person who, after being once punished for offences under Chapter XII or Chapter XVII, is again accused of any offence under these chapters punishable with imprisonment for a term of three years, "shall ordinarily, if the Magistrate considers him an habitual offender, be committed to the court of session." The figures given above, and those which I could without difficulty produce, show, in my opinion, that many habitual offenders are ordinarily tried by Magistrates, and not unfrequently inadequately punished by such Magistrates, who do not commit habitual criminals to the sessions, thereby disheartening the police, encouraging criminals to continue in the commission of offences, and affording insufficient protection to the owners of property.

BURDWAN DIVISION.

Conduct of the police.

264. The Commissioner thinks the results of police administration satisfactory.

PRESIDENCY DIVISION.

The general conduct and working of the police in the division is reported to have been satisfactory.

RAJSHAHYE DIVISION.

The general character and conduct of the police has, with one or two exceptions, been good, or fairly good, in each district. The Magistrate of Dinagepore has had to "find fault with them in the performance of their miscellaneous duties, respecting public roads and ferries, arrangements for the convenience of the Commissioner, myself, and other officers when travelling." If this is all that can be said against the Dinagepore police, then they may be said to have worked well.

In Bogra the opinion of the Magistrate is favourable with regard to the conduct of the police during one-half of the year, and unfavourable as to their behaviour during the other half.

In Rungpore the inspectors and sub-inspectors are reported efficient, and the head-constables just the reverse.

DACCA DIVISION.

The report of the Commissioner is on the whole favourable to the police.

CHITTAGONG DIVISION.

The report is unfavourable; several of the Noakholly police, including an inspector and two sub-inspectors, behaved badly at the time of the cyclone and inundation.

PATNA DIVISION.

Generally favourable.

BHAGULPORE DIVISION.

The police are well reported of; the Monghyr force specially so.

ORISSA DIVISION.

Favourably reported of on the whole.

CHOTA NAGPORE DIVISION.

Good.

265. As I was not personally in charge of the police during any part of the year under review, I cannot from my own experience state how the police have behaved.

The returns which accompany this report, and the illustrations of police action given throughout the report itself, will show forth the merits and shortcomings of the police better than any remarks of mine can do. They are still entitled to the credit of having repressed serious crimes; of having taken vigorous, and on the whole successful, action against bad characters, although they are still baffled by burglars and petty thieves to an extent which certainly gives grounds for dissatisfaction. They have failed in murder cases. They have not, in the Dacca division, succeeded in repressing the turbulence of the population, although the responsibility for failure in this respect, in my opinion, lies more with the Magistrates than with the police. They have not succeeded in gaining any more than before the confidence of the police; but they have done much good honest work, and on the whole I think that they deserve commendation.

What they want is not merely detective ability, but direction of their detective efforts at the hands of their District Superintendents. This is a point on which, in my opinion, too much stress cannot be laid. I have seen many cases in which a little judicious supervision on the part of District Superintendents of the working of their subordinates would have contributed in no small degree to the success of cases. But the tendency on the part of District Superintendents has been to leave all the conduct of cases to investigating officers, to register the result of such investigations when completed, but not to direct or control investigations while in progress. Than the proper direction by superior officers of investigations there is, in my opinion, no more important part of police administration.

That the police will ever secure the confidence of the people, so as to receive from them cordial co-operation and assistance, is not to be expected so long as the people are what they are. So long as police operations must be directed not merely to discovering thieves, robbers, and murderers, but to putting a stop to riots, kidnapping, wrongful confinement, the instigators and abettors of the real criminals in which cases are to be found not amongst the lower orders, but amongst the landed proprietors of the country, so long it is absurd to expect that the police can ever be regarded as the friends of order by those who unfortunately are too often engaged in promoting disorder. And so long as the zemindars think it no disgrace to employ lattiyals and to protect budmashes—so long as they do not give cordial and substantial assistance to the police, but act in opposition to them as enemies, so long will the discovery of crime be seriously interfered with.

One of the chief blots in the police administration is the necessary employment of illiterate, and too often unscrupulous, head-constables at outposts. Financial considerations have hitherto made this necessary, but I am not without hope that, by a redistribution of the higher grades, and opening of the same to educated young men who have not previously served in the force, the police service may be made more popular than it at present is. This, however, is not the place in which to discuss any such proposals.

266. The following statements are herewith submitted:—

Return A (Part I).—General statement of cognizable crime.

Return A (Part II).—General statement of non-cognizable crime.

Return B.—Comparative statement of cognizable crime, with result of police operations.

Statement of Additional Police collected for the protection of Persons and Property,

[illegible]

The punitive police was rendered necessary by the murder of a zemindar by the disaffected ryots of the villages. The enmity between the ryots and zemindar arose because of certain demands made by the latter which the former united to resist payment of.

* These men are not regularly paid, and most of them find considerable difficulty in getting anything at all.

† The increase in the number of chowkidars is owing to new appointments to those villages which were transferred from other districts, and because chowkidars were appointed to those villages where there was none before.

‡ The number of men has decreased owing to the introduction of the new Chowkidaree Act.

§ The new Chowkidaree Act has been introduced throughout the district. There has been a slight improvement in the attendance of, and reporting by, chowkidars. The average number of houses in each beat and the average pay of each man is increased, while the number of chowkidars has decreased.

|| This includes seven chowkidars of the Goalundo Bazar under the khas mehal management.

¶ Thirty-four of these hold land to the extent of 118 beeghas. Average 3 beeghas 9 cottahs and 8 dhoons per head.

 The new Chowkidaree Act is now being introduced and some changes have been made.

†† Eighty new chowkidars were appointed during the year.

‡‡ The new Chowkidaree Act has not yet been introduced.

§§ The Chowkidaree Act is not extended in the Gurjhata.

POLICE.

CALCUTTA, THE 26TH DECEMBER 1877.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Administration Report of the Police Department for the year 1876.

Read again—

The Reports for 1872, 1873, 1874, and 1875, and the Resolutions recorded upon them.

MR. MONRO explains that in submitting the report on the police administration for the year 1876, he labours under the double disadvantage of having had no charge of the department during the year, and of having been even absent from the country on furlough during almost the whole of the period. He has therefore been compelled to base his opinions and suggestions on the record of the work of the police as it came before him on taking charge of the department.

2. The total sanctioned strength of the force for the year was 89 officers (including eleven employed in Assam) and 18,835 men. The strength of the Chittagong Hill Tracts frontier force, including the establishment for miscellaneous civil duty, was 653. Of the total number, 15,797 men were employed on general police duties, 1,661 in guarding jails, 974 in guarding treasuries, 261 as salt preventive police, 168 as opium guard, and 627 as frontier guards. The total cost of the Police Department for the financial year 1876-77 was Rs. 38,74,363, against a gross budget grant of Rs. 39,56,625. The saving thus effected was Rs. 82,262. During the current year the Lieutenant-Governor has been enabled, by the loyal co-operation of Mr. Monro, to effect permanent reductions which will further diminish the cost of the police without injuring its efficiency. The cost of the purely civil police was Rs. 25,27,809, or 8 pies per head of population. The rate, however, varied in different parts of the Lower Provinces from 6·1 pies per head in Behar to 11·7 pies in Orissa and one anna in Chota Nagpore. The proportions borne by the civil police to area and population also exhibit considerable divergences. In Bengal the former is one to every 8 square miles; in Behar it is one to every 10·7; in Orissa one to every 7·2, and in Chota Nagpore one to every 21·1. The latter is one to every 3,701 persons in Bengal, to every 4,959 in Behar, to every 2,365 in Orissa, and to every 2,505 in Chota Nagpore. It will be observed that the civil police bears a much higher numerical proportion to the population in Orissa and Chota Nagpore than in Bengal or Behar. This is explained, as regards Chota Nagpore, by the very low proportion to area, the police force being distributed over a vast extent of country. But in Orissa the proportion both to area and to population is higher than in any of the other three provinces. This is a circumstance which requires careful consideration. The people of Orissa are probably the most law-abiding in these provinces, and organized crime is practically unknown among them. It seems probable that a much smaller force should suffice for the preservation of order and detection of offences in this division, and the Inspector-General should consider whether it is not possible to make considerable reductions in the strength now allotted to it.

3. The strength of the municipal police was reduced during the year by two sub-inspectors, three head-constables, and sixteen constables. No statement is given of the gross expense incurred by municipalities in maintaining their police. The Inspector-General remarks on the number of casualties in the municipal police, arising chiefly from resignations, desertions, and dismissals, particularly in the municipalities of the Howrah, 24-Pergunnahs, and Dacca districts. The casualties in Howrah were 75 per cent. of the gross strength, in 24-Pergunnahs 46 per cent., and in Dacca 45 per cent. The Inspector-General rightly observes that no force can possibly be efficient if it be renewed every two or three years, and that there must be something radically wrong in the organization of a body of which the members desert or resign in this wholesale manner. If lower pay is given in Howrah and the municipalities of the 24-Pergunnahs than in Calcutta and the suburbs, the large number of casualties in the former is easily explained. It is undoubted, moreover, that the great recent expansion of the trade of the port of Calcutta and of the local manufacturing industry has, by raising the price of labour, tended to unsettle the conditions of service generally on low fixed salaries. It is probable that somewhat similar causes are in operation in many districts in Eastern and Central Bengal. The Lieutenant-Governor has been informed that men who are found incompetent in the district police are sometimes transferred to the municipal police. This should not be allowed. Deserving members of the municipal police force should be taught to look for promotion to the regular police when it is not available in their own body, and some stimulus to good conduct would thus be given.

4. Act VI of 1870, for the regulation of village chowkeedars, has now been introduced into most districts in the province, with the exception of the Chota Nagpore and Orissa Divisions. The Inspector-General is not prepared to express an opinion on the merits of the system. Such Commissioners, however, as have noticed the subject in their reports appear to expect favourable results as soon as the Act shall have been in operation for some time. In some districts, it is said, the chowkeedars do not receive their pay with regularity. As the Act, however, provides a specific procedure for the enforcement of this payment, it would seem that there must be some want of vigour or regularity in the administration of the law. This subject should have the earnest attention of the police and the district authorities generally. It is only through the means of an efficient rural police that successful police administration is possible. Such a result will certainly never be attained solely through the efforts of the small body of regular police scattered throughout the country. The best test of a really efficient police officer is his acquaintance with the rural police of his jurisdiction, and the extent to which he utilizes their local knowledge to keep himself informed of the condition of their villages and the movements of suspicious characters. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to learn that during the past year the chowkeedars are said to have generally presented themselves for periodical report at the police-stations to which they belong with more regularity than heretofore. This is a point to which the attention of all inspecting officers should be constantly directed. Only 182 village policemen were rewarded during the year, while the number punished was very much greater. In the Burdwan district alone as many as 950 were punished for various derelictions of duty. This is very unsatisfactory, and appears to point to the infliction of either capricious or petty and insufficient punishments. No explanation is offered on this point. On the whole, the Lieutenant-Governor gathered from the officers whom he spoke to on the subject when on tour that there is every prospect that the Act will work well when it is judiciously enforced.

5. The Railway, Cantonment, and Salt Preventive Police call for no special notice. Road patrols have been maintained in a condition of efficiency, and the highways have generally been free from robbery. The boat establishment in the eastern districts is not on as satisfactory a footing as might be wished, but such as it is, it has been fairly utilized. Much more extensive use was made of the provisions of the law relating to the quartering of punitive police on disturbed villages during the past than during the previous year. Of the 12 parties of police entertained for the purpose of suppressing local crime, three were located on certain villages in the Shahabad district in consequence of the frequency of robberies which had been traced to the villagers and the landowners.

6. It is satisfactory to find that almost all the inspectors and sub-inspectors and most of the head-constables are able to read and write. The number of constables in the metropolitan districts, who can speak English, is said to be increasing. The Lieutenant-Governor is not sure that their efficiency as policemen is in any way increased by an imperfect knowledge of English ; but, except under very special circumstances, no constable should be promoted to be a head-constable unless he can read and write his own language easily and freely. The health of the police, as shown in the hospital returns, which necessarily exclude all cases of temporary or trifling illness at outlying stations, was bad in many districts. The admissions to hospital were 100 per cent. or more in the Chittagong Hill Tracts, Julpigoree, and amongst the Railway Police. The death-rate was 5·7 per cent. in Backergunge, and exceeded 4 per cent. in Maldah, Dinagepore, and Noakholly. It was singularly low in Mozufferpore and Shahabad. Resignations were most numerous in the Railway Police, and in the districts of Howrah, Chittagong, and 24-Pergunnahs, owing doubtless to superior attractions in the local labour market.

7. The conduct of the police during the year shows no improvement on the previous year. The Railway, Gurjhat, and Noakholly police again head the list in respect of bad conduct. In Howrah, also, dismissals were very numerous. Altogether 631 policemen were convicted judicially, against 600 in the previous year, and 3,832 were punished departmentally, against 4,189. Of officers, 1·5 per cent., and of men 1·7 per cent., were punished for offences under the Penal Code ; convictions under the Police Act were 1 and 1·5 per cent., and departmental punishments were 32·1 and 16·2 per cent. respectively. The Lieutenant-Governor considers these figures, especially those relating to officers, to be unsatisfactory. One sub-inspector, one head-constable, and four constables were punished after judicial enquiry for torture or maltreatment of prisoners, and one head-constable and eleven constables were convicted of extortion. In addition to these, one inspector, two sub-inspectors, four head-constables, and four constables were put on trial for torture or extortion, but were acquitted. The inspector was honourably acquitted. The number of policemen holding good-conduct rings was increased by 421 during the year. The list of policemen specially rewarded for distinguished ability, courage, or address includes 10 inspectors, 28 sub-inspectors, 58 head-constables, and 175 constables. It would appear, however, that no occasion for the bestowal of reward arose in 27 districts. Inspectors Green and Haraprasad Das were selected for special reward for distinguished success in the detection of dacoities. The services of the last-named officer have been repeatedly brought to the notice of Government, and he has recently been promoted to the grade of inspector in recognition of them.

8. The aggregate number of cognizable cases reported during the year was 117,559, against 120,838 in 1875 ; 126,122 in 1874 ; 110,627 in 1873, and 104,121 in 1872. The Inspector-General remarks that there were exceptional circumstances in 1874 which tended to increase the amount of crime. But, though the figures for the past year show an improvement on 1875 as well as on 1874, they are still largely in excess of those reported for 1872 and 1873. If false cases are deducted, the total numbers are 85,205 for 1872 ; 90,882 for 1873 ; 99,121 for 1874 ; 94,783 for 1875, and 95,747 for 1876. It is thus seen that the actual amount of crime committed during the past year shows a small increase on 1875 and a very considerable increase on 1872 and 1873. The proportion of crime to area was 1 to 1·6 square mile, and to population 1 to 629 souls. The decrease in the number of false cases instituted is satisfactory. The number of such cases instituted was 21,812, against 26,055 in 1875. The Lieutenant-Governor is not sure that the number of false cases reported from each district is at all a fair test of the extent to which unfounded accusations are really made. It certainly does not correspond with what is known of the general litigiousness of the people of different parts of the province. Thus, while Chittagong shows only 9·2 per cent. of false cases, the adjoining district of Noakholly has 18·8 ; whereas in 1873 the proportion was reversed, Chittagong having 53 per cent. and Noakholly 39. Eastern and Central Bengal have always been noted for the tendency of the people to fight out their battles in the civil or criminal courts, and it might be presumed that a larger proportion of the cases reported would prove to be false in these tracts than elsewhere. Yet, while Tipperah and Mymensingh only show 16 per cent. each, Chittagong only 9, and Pubna only 13, Beerbhoom has 30, Bhagulpore 37, and Cuttack,

Balasore, and Pooree, 36, 34, and 31 per cent. respectively. There is too much reason to fear that in many districts the habit exists of returning hopeless or troublesome cases as false. This is a mode of proceeding on the part of the police which a really active, efficient Magistrate would at once check. The Lieutenant-Governor is quite unable to believe that of 2,186 cases reported in Bhagulpore, 809, or 37 per cent., were absolutely false, while in the neighbouring district of Monghyr the larger number of 2,761 only produced 343, or 13 per cent. of such cases. The number of cases reported as false in Bhagulpore has for several years been large. The Commissioner explains this on the theory "that the people are greater liars than in other parts of the division." This statement contrasts strangely with the results of prosecutions for false complaint. In Bhagulpore only fifteen persons were convicted last year, or less than in any other district of the division. The theory of the Commissioner and the practice of the Magistrate should be reconciled. The Lieutenant-Governor gladly observes that, with the conspicuous exception of Dinagepore, false cases are nowhere markedly on the increase, and that as a rule a decrease is reported; but there are still many districts in which an unduly high percentage is maintained. That Bengal will always show a large number of false cases is to be expected; but it is quite necessary that on the one hand such charges should not be brought with impunity, and on the other the police should not be allowed to shirk their work on such pretence. The Commissioners' reports have not provided the Inspector-General with materials from which to place before Government a statement showing the results of prosecutions for false complaint. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that full information on this subject may be supplied in future. Meanwhile, a report should be submitted, showing how many of the 1,684 persons who brought false charges in Backergunge, and of the 2,198 who acted similarly in the Orissa Division, were brought to justice. The Inspector-General remarks that in the great majority of instances Magistrates have to adopt the view put forward by the police. But this is true rather of individual cases than as a general rule. Every Magistrate, by personally investigating a fair number of cases taken at random, has it in his power to establish an effectual check. Careful supervision of the police, and determined prosecution of persons shown to have deliberately and maliciously set the machinery of justice to work on false charges, could not fail to remove to a great extent what is still a decided reproach to the criminal administration of Bengal.

9. The Lieutenant-Governor entirely concurs in the Inspector-General's remarks on the subject of cases in which no enquiry is made. These cases numbered 10,864, or no less than 9·2 per cent. of the total reported. It is said that in some districts an arbitrary money standard of investigation is fixed, the police availing themselves of the discretion allowed them in all cases in which the value of the property stolen is less than Rs. 5. Such a practice is most irregular, and Mr. Eden finds it difficult to believe that any Magistrate could sanction it. The police are provided for the protection of the poor as well as of the rich, but such an order as this practically involves the exclusion of the most helpless class from some of the benefits of good government. The punishment of offenders and the prevention of further crime is even more important than the restoration of stolen property to its rightful owners. The petty thief may cause in the aggregate a greater amount of suffering than even the professional dacoit, and nothing more surely leads to an increase in the numbers and confidence of this class than the systematic neglect by the police of petty depredations. The Inspector-General justly remarks that the very fact of information being given shows that the informant desires enquiry, and that police reports in which the contrary is stated should always be received with caution. A careful police enquiry, though it may not attain the precise object with which it was instituted, will often, if properly conducted, lead to important collateral results, and will never be without a good effect on the local bad characters; while the encouragement of the police in refraining from enquiry on every possible pretext cannot but make them indolent and worthless. The returns for the year furnish an illustration of this. The Gya police refrained from enquiry in 32 per cent., and the Sarun police in 38 per cent., of the cases reported, while the police of the neighbouring districts of Patna and Chumparun enquired into nearly every case, the instances in which no enquiry was held being only .4 per cent. and .2 per cent. respectively. But the results of the year show that the Patna police had 64 per cent. of convictions to arrests, and the Chumparun police 65, while Gya had only 59 per cent. and Sarun only 53. The Lieutenant-Governor admits that no hard-and-fast rule can be laid down in such cases ; but he would prefer an enquiry in every case, however hopeless or petty, to the manifest abuse which has been allowed in Bankoora, Rajshahye, Bogra, Gya, Sarun, Monghyr, Bhagulpore, and Manbhoom.

10. The net total of cases under enquiry during the year, inclusive of cases pending from the previous year and exclusive of false cases, was 87,015. In 34,092, or 39.2 per cent., of these convictions were obtained, against 38.9 per cent. in 1875 and 39.8 per cent. in 1874. The total number of persons in custody was 95,770, and of these 57,092, or 59 per cent., were convicted. The percentage of persons convicted on the number put on trial was 62, against 61.3 in 1875 and 61.7 in 1874. The results were most unsatisfactory in Backergunge, Jessore, and Cuttack, where less than half the number of persons arrested were convicted. In Howrah the results, judged by this standard, were especially satisfactory. Of 91,253 persons actually placed on trial during the year, 30,146 were acquitted either by the Magistrates or by the Sessions Courts. In the Resolution on the Police Report for 1875, Sir Richard Temple drew attention to the apparently inferior results obtained in Bengal compared with those of other provinces. It has since been shown that this was owing to a difference of system in the interpretation of some of the terms used in the returns, and Mr. Monro has found that, calculated on the system pursued in some of the sister Administrations, the results for the past year in regard to acquittals are 2 per cent. in favour of Bengal. Sir Richard Temple at the same time animadverted very strongly on the large number of persons whom the results of trials showed to have been wrongly arrested. There has been a slight improvement in this respect during the past year ; still the unfavourable proportion is so large as to require very careful consideration, though no doubt circumstances beyond the control of the police do often lead to the failure of cases which an investigating officer may have honestly believed to have been proved before him. That ignorance and dishonesty on the part of the police are responsible for many apparent failures of justice is undeniable ; but to account fully for all the acquittals that take place, it is also necessary to take into consideration the ignorance and dishonesty of the witnesses. The first cause is that to which the attention of Magistrates and District Superintendents must be primarily directed. As far as may be possible, ignorant head-constables, to whom a vast number of the less important cases are entrusted for enquiry, and who, even in the more serious cases, are generally first on the spot and have opportunities for mischievous meddling, should be weeded out, and on no account should illiterate men of this class be placed in charge of outposts. Unceasing vigilance in the scrutiny of reports and constant inspections are duties of which the last, at least, is avowedly neglected in several districts. With reference to the remarks made by the Inspector-General in paragraph 88, pointing out how entirely the existing system under which prosecutions are conducted fails to counteract the shortcomings of witnesses, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that the attention of all Magistrates may with advantage be drawn to the orders issued on the subject in 1871 (circular orders No. 60 of 15th November), in which it was pointed out to all officers that it was by no means the law or the spirit of the law that functions really judicial should be exercised by the police, and that trials before Magistrates should be of the nature of small sessions trials. District Magistrates must see that the orders then issued are attended to. Very serious cases should, whenever possible, be investigated by Joint and Deputy Magistrates on the spot, and these officers should moreover be made to understand that it is an essential portion of their duty to take up every serious case at the earliest convenient stage, to sift the evidence brought before them to the bottom, and not merely to sit as judicial officers deciding cases on the evidence sent in by the investigating officers. It is of the utmost importance that the Court Inspector's staff should be formed of picked men from among the sub-inspectors and the head-constables of the district. District Superintendents should satisfy themselves that proper arrangements are made day by day for the prosecution of such police cases as come up for trial, and that the officer deputed to conduct each case is thoroughly conversant with the facts. They should test the capacity of each officer by attending in person from time to time in the courts of the different Magistrates. District Magistrates should endeavour to establish more cordial relations between the higher officers of police and the native Magistrates. At present intercourse between officers of this class is too purely official and formal, and no doubt many misunderstandings would be avoided by a freer interchange of views and opinions.

11. The results of sessions trials are again reported to be unfavourable. The high percentage of acquittals in Patna (63), Burdwan (52), and Moorshedabad (51), jury districts, and in Maldah (60), Bhagulpore (58), Tipperah (52), and Durbhunga (51), all non-jury districts, is specially unsatisfactory. An attempt was recently made to procure through the Legal Remembrancer some information on the subject of the constant failure of sessions cases before the Patna sessions. This attempt was not successful, and, as the Inspector-General is not able to state the results of the trials with reference to each class of crime, the Lieutenant-Governor is compelled to suspend his judgment on the subject for the present. It may be remarked, however, that recent reports show that the results of session trials in Patna have been more satisfactory. Looking to the results exhibited in this report, the Lieutenant-Governor is not prepared to admit that the whole fault lies with the juries. The proportion of acquittals in Maldah and Bhagulpore was higher than in any non-jury district, and this cannot be owing to any prejudices against the police on the part of either of the Judges, as the same Judges, sitting in Dinagepore and the Sonthal Pergunnahs, convicted, the former in a considerable, and the latter in a very large, number of cases.

12. The proportion of stolen property recovered was generally fair. Applied to any individual district for any particular year, this is a very unsafe test of police efficiency. An accident entirely unconnected either with the negligence and stupidity or the vigilance and ability of the police may make the result appear extremely favourable or the reverse. But when the want of success in this respect is conspicuously sustained in any one district during a series of years, there can be no question of the incompetence or indolence of the police. This is the judgment which must be passed on the police of Bankoora, where the percentage recovered was only 12 in 1874, 5 in 1875, and 3·9 in 1876. This district, which is one of the lightest in Bengal, is prominently mentioned more than once by the Inspector-General as exhibiting discreditable results.

13. The following table shows the number of true cases reported under each class during the past five years :—

		1872.	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.
Class I	Offences against the State and public tranquillity	3,120	2,929	2,606	2,755	2,700
„ II	Serious offences against the person	4,018	4,302	3,905	4,184	4,108
„ III	Serious offences against person and property or against property only	20,210	24,531	28,615	23,957	22,380
„ IV	Minor offences against the person	3,994	4,126	6,495	9,869	9,073
„ V	Minor offences against property	38,767	40,207	43,343	38,083	38,832
„ VI	Other offences not specified above	14,497	13,765	13,272	15,306	18,257
	Other special laws	599	873	951	728	465
	Total	86,205	90,892	99,187	94,783	95,745

14. The number of cases of false coining and cognate offences increased from 135 in 1875 to 160 in 1876. Convictions were obtained in 83 cases. No instance of extensive organization appears to have been brought to light. Under “rioting and unlawful assembly” there is a satisfactory decrease from 2,044 to 1,933 cases. Indeed, with the exception of 1874, the past year shows a smaller number of cases than any of its five immediate predecessors, and it may be said that the gradual decrease from 2,502 cases in 1873 is being fairly sustained. In the Dacca and Patna Divisions alone do the statistics of this class of crime call for any further special remarks. The former division contributes no less than 736 to the total of 1,933 cases reported in the province, and a steady increase is shown from 589 cases in 1873. Furreedpore and Backergunge give 188 and 210 cases respectively. No less than 19 cases in these two districts were attended with loss of life, and in Furreedpore one resulted in a cowardly and brutal murder of a zemindar by his tenants. Such a state of things as this is most discreditable to the local authorities. The law contains ample provision for the prevention of such disorders at the expense of those who assume a turbulent or threatening attitude. It is too often the custom for the police only to take cognizance of dangerous disputes after a breach of the peace has actually occurred. But a timely report, followed by the exaction of security from the landholders, and especially from their subordinate agents, the promoters and fomenters of such disturbances, and the appointment of special police, would prevent the great majority of the serious riots which occur. This class of crime could not have increased so seriously in Furreedpore and Backergunge had there not been great laxity on the part of the police, and an absence of vigour and judicious action on the part of the Magistrates. The Government will always be ready, on proper representation, to sanction the quartering of punitive police on specially turbulent villages. But the Lieutenant-Governor will hold the local authorities responsible if every effort is not made to remove what Mr. Monroe justly calls a blot on our administration. In the Patna Division 272 cases occurred, or 13 less than during the previous year. Out of 153 of these which were decided judicially during the year, convictions were obtained in 137. This is very satisfactory. The riot in Durbhunga was followed by vigorous and judicious action on the part of the Magistrate, Mr. MacDonnell; but the antecedents of the case afforded a striking example of the ease with which occurrences of this kind might often be prevented, and the Lieutenant-Governor pointed out at the time that the police had been culpably negligent and the sub-district officer less energetic than might have been desired.

15. The gross number of serious offences against the person was 4,108, against 4,184 in 1875 and 3,905 in 1874. Convictions were obtained in 39·6 per cent. of the cases only, against 41 and 42 respectively in the two previous years. The percentage of convictions to arrests was only 44. These unsatisfactory results are in great measure attributable to the failure of the police in murder cases. The total number of murders was 342, against 302. The number of cases of murder by dacoits is again very small, but in murder by poison and in "other murders" a considerable increase is reported. The Inspector-General rightly observes that it is impossible to account satisfactorily for fluctuation in this crime. All that the police can do is to have as many offenders as possible punished. The want of success, however, which attends the police action in this class of offence is deplorable. Only 36·3 per cent. of the cases were detected, and only 273 persons out of 994 arrested, or 27·4 per cent., were convicted. The Inspector-General cites several instances to show that, as usual, juries are very unwilling to convict on a capital charge. One case which attracted much attention during the year showed that Judges sometimes share this feeling. There is much truth in what Mr. Monroe says of the tendency of police officers to remain content with the confession of a prisoner, without procuring corroborative proof on the various points connected with it. This circumstance no doubt accounts for many failures of justice in cases where confessions made before the committing officer are retracted before the Judge. The great importance of giving instructions and directions on this point to the subordinate police when conducting difficult investigations should be impressed on both Magistrates and Superintendents. Only two of the three cases of murder by dacoits were brought to trial during the year, and in both of these convictions were obtained. Eleven out of 16 cases of murder by robbers were successfully prosecuted. Of 23 cases of murder by poison, only seven resulted in the conviction of the guilty persons. "Other murders," as has already been observed, show a considerable increase, while culpable homicide and the cognate offences of grievous hurt and hurt by dangerous weapons all show a decrease. In all these cases the Dacca Division heads the list. The turbulence and disregard of life which appear to prevail in this division require very special attention. Out of 42 cases of ordinary murder which occurred in the two districts of Backergunge and Furreedpore, 20 resulted in convictions. The results of the police enquiries were very unfavourable to the force in Nuddea, Chittagong, Rungpore, and Mymensingh. In Patna only two out of 21 persons committed to the sessions, in Moorshedabad only three out of 26, and in Dacca only three out of 31, were convicted. These are all jury districts. Under culpable homicide only 79 convictions were obtained in 203 cases. The results were specially bad in Bhagulpore, where 11 cases occurred without one being detected. The most striking feature in the returns of grievous hurt is the extraordinary variation in the number of cases accepted as false in the different divisions. Burdwan, Rajshahye, and Chittagong show 67, 68, and 86 per cent. respectively, while Bhagulpore has only 9, and Patna and Dacca, where nearly half of the total number of charges were laid, have only 12 and 15 respectively. The Lieutenant-Governor thinks it possible that in the first three divisions charges of grievous hurt, which on enquiry turn out to be cases of simple hurt only, are erroneously entered as false instead of being transferred to the appropriate sub-head of the statement. There has been a considerable decrease in cases of administering stupefying drugs, and it is specially satisfactory that the Patna Division, which has hitherto been generally conspicuous for this class of crime, shows only one case. Cases of kidnapping have fallen from 216 to 178, and the decrease is remarkable in the Dacca Division, which formerly headed the list. The case referred to by the Commissioner of Rajshahye seems to point to a system of domestic slavery known to and connived at by the police. The Lieutenant-Governor wishes to have a full report on the result of the sessions trial. The more grievous forms of wrongful confinement and restraint, of which 170 cases occurred, are only of frequent occurrence in the Dacca Division. This division contributed 106 cases, of which only six were successfully prosecuted. It is discreditable that outrages of this description should be so common, and, in the vast majority of cases, should be committed with impunity.

16. There has not been much fluctuation in minor offences against the person, 9,073 cases having occurred against 9,862 in the previous year. The result of prosecutions in cases of wrongful restraint was very unsatisfactory, 1,821 persons being acquitted against 1,484 convicted. The Dacca Division takes the lead in these as in most other offences of this nature. The Dinagepore district shows 265 cases false out of 335 reported. The Lieutenant-Governor must decline to believe that these figures represent actual facts.

17. The actual number of dacoities which happened in each of the past four years was—

1873	325
1874	421
1875	236
1876	137

The decrease has been general, but it is most marked in the Rajshahye and Chota Nagpore Divisions. Nine districts are said to have been entirely free from this crime during the year. The districts in which the reported decrease is most conspicuous are Beerbhoom, Moorshedabad, Mymensingh, Dinagepore, and Rungpore. The number of cases under trial during the year was 154, against 254 in 1875, and 397 persons were convicted against 347. The results of trials were satisfactory in Midnapore, Hooghly, Nuddea, Balasore, and Lohardugga, and most unsatisfactory in Mymensingh, Patna, and Manbhoom, where every prisoner was acquitted. The Midnapore Police, under Inspector Haraprasad Das, appear to have specially distinguished themselves in dealing with this crime. Convictions were obtained by them in 19 out of 24 cases, and 73 per cent.

of the persons sent up were committed to the sessions. They also operated successfully against the offenders in a case which occurred in the 24-Pergunnahs. In the Dacca Division the detective action was feeble, and convictions were only obtained in two out of 16 cases. The police appear to be generally baffled in river dacoities, but the Inspector-General believes that he has found a valuable clue in the connection between some of these gangs and the professional Kayast dacoits of Punka Chur, on the Madhumati. In the Patna Division only five cases out of 18 were successfully investigated. Similarly unsatisfactory results were reported in 1875, and it is evident that in this division dacoits have little to fear from the detective ability of the police. The great decrease in dacoity throughout the province may, it is hoped, be to some extent the direct outcome of the orders of 30th November 1875, in which Sir Richard Temple expressed his intention of no longer tolerating the prevalence of this crime in Bengal; but a decrease in this crime is also to be expected during seasons of prosperity and commercial and agricultural activity. In the orders alluded to, attention was directed to the various means at the disposal of the police by which it might be made impossible for dacoits to pursue their profession with impunity, and crime might thus be checked by the probability of subsequent detection. The police, however, have not confined themselves to supervision of bad characters. In most districts they have found it more convenient to have them locked up in jail and supported at the cost of the State on suspicion of bad livelihood. A large reduction in the number of dacoities was under the circumstances naturally to be expected. The Lieutenant-Governor will have occasion to remark on this subject further on. It is to be observed, however, that, except in Midnapore, Hooghly, and Moorshedabad, no special measures of prevention, beyond an indiscriminate crusade against persons said by the police to be bad characters, appear from the report to have been taken. In Midnapore a thorough acquaintance with the movements of the dacoits brought them promptly to justice; in Hooghly the decrease in dacoities is attributed to general vigilance and to an effective system of patrol; in Moorshedabad special measures were taken to watch the Gowallahs of the Hijulmat, and these marauders found no opportunity for committing their usual depredations.

18. In robberies there was a decrease from 171 to 141, but only 37 per cent. resulted in convictions. None of the cases have been specially noticed by the Inspector-General. Mr. Monro draws attention to the burning down of the Moonsif's cutcherry at Khoorna. In connection with a similar case of incendiarism, the attention of Government was drawn in the report for 1875 to the danger of keeping judicial records in combustible buildings. The subject of providing fire-proof safes or chambers for this purpose is now being considered in the Public Works Department.

19. The gross number of cases of lurking house-trespass or burglary, theft, theft of cattle, and receiving stolen property during each of the past two years was—

	1875.	1876.	1876—CONVICTIONS.
			Cases.	Persons.
Lurking house-trespass	22,185	20,619	1,564	2,435
Theft ...	24,450	24,589	7,281	11,326
Cattle-theft ...	1,999	1,823	867	1,342
Stolen property ...	2,277	2,087	1,526	2,623

The results of enquiries were very unsatisfactory in burglaries, and not creditable in thefts. In cases of stolen property the outturn of prosecutions was good, but it must not be forgotten that charges under this head are rarely made except by the police, and then only in cases where property has actually been discovered in the course of other enquiries and success is generally assured. The failure of the police in burglary cases is most lamentable, and Mr. Monro confesses that he cannot hope to repress petty crime of this class by any fear of detection by our police, and he proposes to deal with it, as dacoities have been dealt with, by locking up all whom the police believe to be likely to steal.

20. This is a conclusion which Mr. Eden cannot at all accept; nor, indeed, is the Inspector-General's exposition of his view free from much inconsistency. In treating of dacoities he attributes the decrease to the more systematic repressive measures which have been taken against bad characters, the chief among which is their incarceration in default of security for good conduct, and takes much credit for the action of the police in working these sections of the law. But in discussing the subject of petty crime, where he has to account for an increase of offences, he states that "the result of our police operations has been to drive the perpetrators of serious crimes, committed at intervals and on the property of the well-to-do, to take to petty thefts and burglaries committed constantly, and on the rich and poor indiscriminately;" and he elsewhere remarks with much justice that the people probably "prefer taking the chance of a dacoity or two happening at intervals in their villages to being systematically plundered of small sums or property of small value by old dacoits converted into local petty thieves." It appears, then, that, although 3,618 bad characters were locked up last year in pursuit of the object of exterminating dacoity, a very large number of dacoits are still at large, of whom some committed the 137 dacoities which occurred during the year, and the others, prevented by the vigilance of the police from committing crime in numbers of five and upwards, have taken to solitary burglaries and thefts. With apparent inconsistency the decrease in the number of burglaries in Dinagepore is attributed to the working of the vagrancy sections of the law by the Magistrate of that district. Enquiries have convinced the Lieutenant-Governor that the law has been grossly abused in that district, and a review of the cases by the Commissioner showed that the bulk of the convictions were not warranted by the evidence. Mr. Monro remarks that if we stop here, we leave half our work undone, and he advocates measures of repression which will largely diminish petty, as they have largely diminished serious, crime. In other words, having, by locking up for various terms or requiring security from 7,765 persons in three years, succeeded in reducing the number of offences against property from 64,808 in 1873 to 61,112 in 1876, we are to go on until we have locked up the offenders in the great majority of the latter. This is a sufficiently appalling prospect, and, apart altogether from the question of accommodation for the vast multitude of suspects whom it proposes to imprison, the Lieutenant-Governor is quite unable to understand how any one with the results of the last year's police action before him could support such a scheme. It is not clear how it happens that, while the police by mere force of supervision have been able to deter large numbers of criminals from associating in gangs of five, and thus committing dacoity, their success stops abruptly at this point, and they are powerless either to prevent criminals from committing burglaries alone, or in twos or threes, or to lay their hands on those over whom they are said to keep so strict a watch. The evil is probably greater, and the result more demoralizing to the lower classes, than the continuance of dacoity. Mr. Eden does not in the least doubt that the efforts of the police in watching the movements of bad characters were productive of much good during the year, and that they prevented the commission of much organized crime. But he believes that such efforts properly guided would have sufficed for the whole object which has been attained, without the aid of wholesale locking up of suspects; and further, that legitimate supervision of bad characters and the utilization of the knowledge thus acquired of their habits and movements should, and must, suffice for the prevention and detection of petty as of serious offences against property. The extent of the injustice and oppression which has been occasioned by prosecutions for bad livelihood is apparent on the face of the returns. Of 4,861 persons who were actually tried for bad livelihood during the past year, no less than 1,243, or more than 25 per cent., were acquitted. These are very different from acquittals for specific offences. It may often happen that an innocent man is sent up for trial for a specific offence by a perfectly honest investigating officer. But where the charge is one of general bad livelihood, depending chiefly on the repute in which a man is held by his neighbours, an ordinarily careful police officer can rarely be deceived. But this is not all. It appears that the number of cases of cognizable dishonest crime, serious and petty, was 938 less in 1876 than in 1875, and Mr. Eden is willing to admit that this may possibly be to some extent the result of the imprisonment of 1,138 more persons on suspicion in the former than in the latter year, though even this is very doubtful. In some districts, however, such as Monghyr, a positive increase in burglaries has followed on the imprisonment of a large number of suspects. After allowance is made for the fact that the proportion of convictions to detected cases shows that on the average three persons are concerned in every two cases, it is still quite evident that a large number of persons, confined for bad livelihood during the year would, according to the police statistics, not have been concerned in a single offence had they been left at large. The essence of the offence supposed to be proved against bad characters is that they are habitual criminals; whereas it is only by supposing that the great majority would only have committed one offence each that all those convicted are shown to have been rightly punished. Mr. Eden fears that very many of the persons convicted were really innocent, and an examination of some cases which have come before him quite confirms him in the belief that a vast amount of bitter wrong and oppression has been wrought upon the people. Apart, moreover, from the grievous injustice done to the innocent, this wholesale system of prosecutions must defeat its own object in the future. Nothing more certainly leads to the formation of organized bodies of marauders than the congregation of bad characters for comparatively short periods. The really guilty are thrown together and have ample time for maturing future schemes, while those who have been wrongly convicted, knowing the stigma which will always attach to them, and surrounded by evil influence in jail, will, in the majority of cases, return to society hardened criminals. Any man once in jail is, without much analysis of the nature of the crime for which he was confined, entered in the police records and known in his village as a "dagi" or marked man. He is for the rest of his life subject to the persecution of unscrupulous police subordinates and to denunciation by any of his neighbours with whom he happens to quarrel. Nothing could express more clearly the Lieutenant-Governor's view of the manner in which these investigations are conducted than the following description in the Inspector-General's own words: "The consequence is that, in the majority of cases of bad character sent up, the police do not send up the names of the respectable inhabitants, but summon the chowkeedar and two or three cultivators to testify against the accused," and yet the Inspector-General considers it a matter for congratulation that during the year 1876 no less than 5,154 persons were sent up for trial under such circumstances, that 3,618 of them were thrown into jail, and 1,243 persons were dragged away from their houses and after judicial inquiry declared not to be the bad characters they were charged to be by the police. Mr. Eden finds in the bare figures of the present report abundant proof that a lamentable amount of suffering and wrong has been caused; and, looking to the vast number of false cases of different kinds instituted all over Bengal, he is determined that this fearful engine of oppression shall not be left uncontrolled in the hands of the police, but shall only be used under most effectual safeguards. All enquiries of this nature should be most full and searching, and should as a rule be held by the Magistrate in the village of the accused. Mr. Eden will leave it to the judicial officers to satisfy themselves most fully, on the spot, not that the accused is a person who may possibly, if left at large, commit some offence, or that he is a person who has some time of his life been in jail on some charge or other, but that he is really a criminal who supports himself by preying upon society.

21. Mr. Monro justly remarks on the neglect of the police in some districts to take cognizance of breaches of the excise laws. The Lieutenant-Governor is quite unable to believe that only thirty-nine offences of this class were committed in Burdwan, thirty-four in Howrah, nine in Nuddes, eight in Jessore, three in Dinagepore, two in Pubna, four in Furreedpore, four in Backergunge, five in Mymensingh, six in Noakholly, and nine in Sarun. Without special stimulus from their superiors, the police will not interest themselves in this very important department of their duties. The fact that forty-four cases were reported last year in Bogra, while the return for the previous year was blank, shows, not that no offences were committed in 1875, but that the police entirely neglected their duty. In salt cases also there appears to be some fitfulness in the efforts of the police, especially in Midnapore and Cuttack.

22. The number of non-cognizable cases instituted on complaint and taken up by the Magistrate was 98,287, against 95,766 in the previous year. The police were employed to make inquiry in 4,964 cases, against 5,569 in 1875. In some sub-divisions and districts it is to be feared that the time of the police was thus unnecessarily taken up, notably in Bongong in Nuddea, and in Furreedpore. Non-cognizable crime appears to have fluctuated considerably in some districts. In Howrah cases of this class fell from 6,287 in 1875 to 2,518 in 1876, and no explanation whatever is offered by the Magistrate. In Dinagepore there was an increase from 1,084 to 2,263. This appears to have been due to capricious and indiscreet action on the part of the Magistrate. It is reported that the bulk of the increase comes under the head of offences against public justice—a class of offence of which not one was taken up by the Magistrate of his own motion in 1874 and 1875. The prosecutions for giving false evidence resulted in 22 convictions only, with 51 acquittals. The Magistrate of Noakholly makes a foolish attempt to explain the increase in non-cognizable crime in that district, adducing as a leading cause the prosperity of the lower classes, “which induces them to resent any slight insult by laying a complaint.” It appears that the remarks of the Magistrate under all heads have been scanty and unsatisfactory. The Commissioner of Chittagong will be requested to submit to Government the record of the case under section 504 to which the Inspector-General draws attention. The Commissioner of Patna will be asked to report on the circumstances which led to the large proportion of acquittals in Chumparun and Mozufferpore. The table given by Mr. Monro shows that the proportion of persons convicted of non-cognizable crime to population ranges from one in 5,898 in Mozufferpore, to one in 663 in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, one in 623 in Noakholly, and one in 531 in Howrah. Among the quarrelsome people of Eastern Bengal and in the metropolitan districts a high proportion is to be expected; but the Lieutenant-Governor regrets to observe the very large number of cases instituted and of persons convicted in the Sonthal Pergunnahs. There is reason to fear that, in criminal as in civil matters, an unhealthy spirit of litigiousness is springing up amongst the people. Every effort should be made to discourage to the utmost all frivolous and vexatious complaints. The Lieutenant-Governor also notices with regret that a much greater number of persons were convicted of giving false evidence or making false complaints in this than in any other district of the Bhagulpore Division. Mr. Eden would take this opportunity of earnestly impressing on all officers concerned in the administration of justice in these Pergunnahs, the desirability of encouraging in every way the settlement of petty village disputes by resort to arbitration. The submission of formal written petitions and explanations through mukhtars should be in every way discouraged, and cases, whenever it is possible, decided by Government officers on the spot. The Lieutenant-Governor has already taken occasion to point out to the Commissioner the mischief of substituting the machinery of regular courts, with large establishments of amlah, for the old system of bringing the people face to face with the district officers which the non-regulation system of the Sonthal Pergunnahs was designed to introduce. The intervention of the Nazirs’ establishments is, Mr. Eden believes, especially mischievous and obnoxious to the people. There is in the Sonthal Pergunnahs a regularly organized system of heads of villages and heads of groups of villages, and they should be employed in serving processes and settling petty quarrels.

23. The Inspector-General has supplied a long list of instances in which Magistrates have not only themselves disposed of cases in which several previous convictions were proved, but have passed most inadequate sentences on the offenders. This subject will require further elucidation. The worst case, perhaps, is that in which a prisoner, against whom five previous convictions were proved, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. The question of the best means of ensuring proof of previous convictions against old offenders has recently engaged the attention of Government; but it is obvious that the police will not exert themselves to place such cases properly before the courts if habitual criminals are not only not committed to the sessions, as the law requires, but are sentenced by the Magistrate to manifestly inadequate punishments. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that the names of the officers by whom the thirty sentences in Mr. Monro's list were passed may be communicated to Government.

24. Except from the Chittagong Division the reports on the general character and conduct of the police are favourable. The Magistrate of Dinagopore so far misapprehends the relative importance of the general efficiency of the police and his own convenience that he has given prominence to a complaint that they do not make sufficiently satisfactory arrangements for his comfort "when travelling." There is much in the facts disclosed in Mr. Monro's report to show that in more serious respects the condition of the Dinagopore police is unsatisfactory, but this does not appear to have attracted the Magistrate's notice. The misconduct of the Chittagong police was chiefly exhibited at the time of the cyclone. To see that his subordinates do not abuse their power by oppressing the people is the first duty of a District Superintendent, and this can only be effected by repeated inspections and by constantly moving about among the people. Some District Superintendents are reported to have neglected their inspection duties to a great extent; many others seem to prefer inspecting police-stations situated on good roads and within easy reach of head-quarters. But such inspections are of little value, and the Inspector-General is requested to analyse carefully the diaries of District Superintendents, and to discriminate between those who obtain a false reputation for activity by driving out to police stations easily approached and spending a few hours there, and those who conscientiously and thoroughly inspect frequently all their stations. What is really required is that the police of the outlying stations, who have the most scope for acting as they please, may be constantly kept in check. The Inspector-General should insist on every District Superintendent spending one or two days at every such thana at least once a quarter. There is no part of a District Superintendent's duty so important as frequent and full inspection of his police-stations and outposts. Nothing else will enable him to gauge the capacity of the various officers, to stimulate the honest to careful and zealous work, and to keep the unscrupulous from preying on the people, or to distribute his officers and men with reference to the special wants of the various localities. A District Superintendent who only sits in his office at head-quarters, passing formal written orders, and who is known only by name to the majority of the men under him, might as well not be in the district. To render the police efficient as well as innocuous is, the Lieutenant-Governor believes, within the power of every intelligent and industrious District Superintendent. Mr. Monro remarks with much justice that what the subordinate officers of police require is not so much detective ability as direction of their detective efforts. A District Superintendent has no more important duty while he is at head-quarters than the direction of police enquiries after careful and prompt examination of the diaries of investigating officers. If he really knows his district, he will often be able to offer suggestions which may change the entire course of the investigation and ensure success. Even where this is not the case, the knowledge that his proceedings are being narrowly and critically watched will keep the investigating officer from indolence and fraud. Instances have repeatedly come to the notice of Government in which cases have failed through sheer force of dishonesty, where genuine evidence has been twisted and distorted, and the progress of the enquiry misrepresented, until the whole case for the prosecution has been discredited and lamentable failures of justice have ensued. Numberless instances in which the subordinate police overreach themselves would probably never occur if the investigating officer knew that the prompt submission of his diary would be insisted upon, and that it would be carefully scrutinized by his superior.

Efficiency and honesty cannot be expected if ignorant officers are left to their own clumsy devices, and the dishonest are encouraged to believe that the record of their tamperings with facts will remain buried and unknown in a vernacular report. For a District Superintendent to admit that his police are "wanting in detective ability," while those of a neighbouring district have distinguished themselves, is to confess his own incapacity. The police of adjoining districts in the same province are composed of practically the same material. The difference in the results attained by different officers is simply due to the difference in their ability, their industry, and their knowledge of men.

25. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to observe that the District Superintendents of Burdwan, Chittagong, Midnapore, Jessore, Moorshedabad, and Lohardugga are reported to have attended "very insufficiently" to their inspection duties. Mr. Eden must insist on a complete change in this respect. His Honor specially regrets to observe in the list four of the most important districts of Bengal, and he desires that the special circumstances of each case may be separately reported. The Lieutenant-Governor has taken note of the officers selected for commendation by the Inspector-General. Mr. Hankey, who held office during the greater part of the year under report, rendered much valuable assistance to Government during his administration of the department. Mr. Monro, by whom the report has been prepared, is about, to the regret of Government, to retire from the service in consequence of failing health. The Government of India has been good enough to permit him to remain in the service for a few months beyond the date originally fixed for his retirement, that the Lieutenant-Governor may have for a longer period the benefit of his advice and assistance in reorganizing some branches of the police administration. During his tenure of office, Mr. Monro has fully justified the high opinion of his capacity and experience which induced the Lieutenant-Governor to select him for the post.

REPORT.

I RECEIVED charge of the office of Inspector-General on the 10th April from my predecessor, Mr. Hankey, who, after having held the appointment from the 19th February, when he returned from England, was obliged shortly afterwards to leave the country in ill-health.

Introductory remarks.

Receipt of Commissioners' reports.

2. The Commissioners' reports were received on the following dates:—

Burdwan	Division	15th May 1878.
Presidency	ditto	29th April „
Rajshahye	ditto	10th May „
Dacca	ditto	18th „ „
Chittagong	ditto	15th „ „
Patna	ditto	20th „ „
Bhagulpore	ditto	23rd April „
Orissa	ditto	1st June „
Chota Nagpore	ditto	No divisional report was received.
Owing to the death of Mr. Taylor, the Commissioner, I offered, to save time, to compile the report from the district reports, and Mr. Mangles accepted my offer.

Sanctioned strength of district police.

3. The sanctioned strength of the police force for 1877 was—

Inspector-General	1
Deputy Inspectors-General	2
District Superintendents	53*
Assistant Superintendents	33*
Total					89
Inspectors	203
Sub-Inspectors	697
Head Constables	2,352
Constables	15,389
European Constables	2
Mounted Constables	60
Total					18,703

Havildars	27	34
Naiks	42	42
Buglers	12	12
Privates	446	550
						540	653

4. The force, at the close of the year, was below the sanctioned strength by six Inspectors, 15 Sub-Inspectors, 38 head-constables, 176 constables, and 2 mounted constables, or a total of 237 men. This represents 1·2 per cent. short, or 1·59 per cent. short, inclusive of Chittagong Hill Tracts and Government railway police, at the close of the year. The details with regard to this will be given further on in this report.

* The figures include one Personal Assistant, one Assistant Inspector-General, and 11 District and Assistant Superintendents employed in Assam.

5. The police budget grant for the Lower Provinces (including extra grants) was Rs. 38,42,647, distributed as follows:—

	Rs.
Regular police	36,82,647
Chittagong Hill Tracts	1,60,000
Total ...	38,42,647

The pay of District Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents amounted to Rs. 4,84,800. The grant Rs. 31,69,997 for the executive police, apart from the above, was distributed as under:—

	Rs.
Bhauglpore Division	3,02,727
Patna ditto	5,22,203
Rajshahye and Cooch Behar ditto	4,00,438
Burdwan ditto	4,35,665

Chittagong ditto	1,30,574
Orissa ditto	2,66,546
Chota Nagpore ditto	2,44,241
Total ...	31,69,997*

6. The actual expenditure for the financial year 1877-78 under each of the different heads is given in the following table, as compared with the estimate:—

HEADS OF CHARGES.	Budget grant for 1877-78, including extra grants.	Actual expenditure.	Increase.	Decrease.	Net increase.

GRAND TOTAL ...	38,42,647	38,58,762	81,008	64,893	16,115¶

* This increase is due to the cost of the establishment of the Minx in the 24-Pergunnahs not having been budgeted during 1877-78. The excess will be adjusted by the Accountant-General, Bengal, by transfer from other heads.

† This increase is more than covered by the sum sanctioned in Government order No. 2345, dated 4th May 1877, for the construction and repairs of police buildings destroyed by the cyclone of October 1876 in the Eastern districts.

‡ This increase is due to the Board of Revenue having under-estimated expenditure on account of compensation for lands. The Accountant-General, Bengal, includes this item in the police budget without reference to the Inspector-General's office.

§ This increase is due to a large sum sanctioned for replacing stores damaged by the cyclone of 1876 in the police-stations and outposts in several of the Eastern districts in Bengal.

|| This increase is due to the Chittagong Hill Tracts having worked during the year under review without a detailed budget. Government directed that the budget should not exceed Rs. 1,60,000, though actual arrangements for the necessary reductions were not made till early in 1878-79.

¶ The actual increase of expenditure of Rs. 16,115 over the sanctioned budget grant is due to the extraordinary charge sanctioned by Government on account of the cyclone damages in the Eastern districts of Bengal—vide items † and § in "increase column."

7. The cost of the force employed on purely police work may be approximately put down at Rs. 22,17,696, or seven pies per head of population. The amount was thus distributed:—

	Rs.	Pies.
Bengal	13,16,586, or	7·5 per head of population.
Behar	5,52,708, "	5·2 ditto.
Orissa	1,68,654, "	10·1 ditto.
Chota Nagpore	1,79,748, "	10·4 ditto.

It will thus be observed that there is a general decrease as compared with the figures of 1876.

*. This sum represents the aggregate grants sanctioned under several heads, but a sum of Rs. 1,21,585 was shown by Government against the amount as anticipated savings.

Distribution of force.

8. The general distribution is as follows :—

10. An addition of one Sub-Inspector, three head constables, and eight constables, or a total of 12 men, was made in the following districts for reasons noted against them :—

Districts.	Sub-Inspectors.	Head-Constables.	Constables.	REMARKS.
24-Pargunnahs	1	8	Increase for the Inspector-General's orderly establishment, the former chup-prasees being abolished. Revision of force on account of the abolition of certain outposts. Redistribution of police force in certain stations and outposts.
Mymensingh	2
Chittagong	1
Total increase ...	1	3	8

On the other hand a reduction of 10 Inspectors, six Sub-Inspectors, six head-constables, 121 constables, two mounted constables, and one European constable, was made in the districts noted below :—

DISTRICTS.	Inspectors.	Sub-Inspectors.	Head-Constables.	Constables.	Mounted Constables.	European Constables.	REMARKS.
Burdwan	1	General reduction. Reduction on account of introduction of warder system in the central jail.
Midnapore	1	18
Hooghly	1	...	5	The Sub-Inspector was reduced on account of general reduction, and five constable-boatmen abolished.
Moorshedabad	1	General reduction.
Dinapore	1	Ditto ditto.
Rajshahye	2	...	1	20	The two Inspectors were reduced on general reduction, and one head-constable and 20 constables reduced on account of warder system being introduced into the jail.
Mymensingh	1	34	The Inspector was reduced in consequence of general reduction, and the 34 constables discharged on account of revision of force and abolition of certain outposts.
Chittagong	1	4	...	1	In consequence of the redistribution of police force in certain stations and outposts.
Patna	1	The Patna Inspector was transferred to Lohardugga. In Sarun and Chumparun the appointments were abolished.
Sarun	1
Chumparun	1	The Inspector and Sub-Inspector were reduced from the reserve, one head-constable and 14 constables were reduced from the central jail, owing to the introduction of warders.
Bhagulpore	1	1	1	14
Purneah	1	4	Reduced from the Moniharee station.
Cuttack	1	General reduction.
Hazareebagh	1	18	2	...	Reduced from the central jail on account of the introduction of warders. Two sowars abolished.
Lohardugga	1	General reduction. Reduced on account of the re-distribution of police force.
Singbhoom	1	1	...	4
Total ...	10	6	6	121	2	1

From the above it will be seen that the net decrease amounts to 10 Inspectors, five Sub-Inspectors, three head-constables, 113 constables, one European constable, and two mounted constables, or a total of 134 men.

In Patna, Shahabad, Gya, Sarun, Chumparun, Mozufferpore, Durbhunga, Bhagulpore, and Monghyr, on account of the abolition of the Rs. 6 grade of constables, which was reduced to Rs. 5, a modification was made in the other grades.

11. The following statement shows the strength of the Municipal police during the year under report, as compared with the previous year :—

YEAR.	Inspectors.	Sub-Inspectors.	Head-Constables.	European Constables.	Constables.	Chowkydars not marked under Act V.
For 1877	4	14	348	1	6,029	44
For 1876	4	13	327	3	6,105	54
Increase ...		1	21		76	10
Decrease ...

In Backergunge one head-constable and 16 constables were reduced on account of the abolition of Dowlutkhan and Bowful municipalities. In Hooghly one Sub-Inspector was increased and 11 constables were reduced in several municipalities under sanction of Government on the representation of the Municipal Commissioners. In Moorshedabad one head-constable was increased, and two constables decreased in the Kandi Union. In consequence of the abolition of the Dowlut Bazar Union three constables were transferred to the regular police, and the remainder appointed as chowkeydars. In Rajshahye six constables were reduced in Nattore Town Municipality in consequence of the removal of one of the municipal stations to a place near the Nattore railway station. In 24-Pergunnahs 19 head-constables were increased, and one Sub-Inspector and 27 Constables were reduced in several Unions under orders of the Magistrate. In Cuttack and Chittagong 10 chowkeydars and two European constables, respectively, were abolished. In the former district one head-constable was sanctioned for the Cuttack town force. In Rungpore 16 constables were reduced for want of funds, and one head-constable was increased, and 13 constables were reduced in the Jamalpore Municipality of the Monghyr district.

Some petty reductions were made in the districts of Dinagepore, Pubna, Mozufferpore, and Hazareebagh, which, together with some trifling alterations in other districts, brought down the net decrease to 76 constables.

12. Casualties in the Municipal police still continue to be very heavy, being 26·6 per cent., against 23·4 in the year before. Resignations, discharges, and desertions, were 14·1, or an increase of one per cent. when compared with 1876, while deaths amounted to 2·31, dismissals 9·7, and discharges on pension and gratuity 4 per cent. : all these figures again compare unfavourably with those of 1876.

The casualties in the districts of 24-Pergunnahs, Dacca, and Howrah continue to be high. In the first they have risen from 42 to 67 per cent. ; in the second they remain the same as last year, viz. 45 per cent. ; but in the last district they have fallen from 75 to 66·5 per cent., which, however, is still very high.

Service in the Municipal police is by no means popular. The work is hard : the pay small—smaller, in fact, than in large places like Howrah and Dacca,—can be earned by other labour, without the restraints of 'discipline. Under such circumstances it is not a matter of surprise that the inefficiency of the Municipal police is a general subject of complaint. The inhabitants of towns, however, forget that they have the remedy in their own hands. If they will pay the men sufficiently, they will secure efficient servants ; but they prefer the indirect taxation, which falls upon some of their numbers in the shape of thefts, to submitting to a slightly increased general taxation for the good of the community.

13. I give a brief abstract of the opinions of Commissioners as to the working of the Act.

14. In the Presidency division, it is reported, although not fully extended to all villages in any of the districts, to work satisfactorily. The chowkeydars are stated to prefer the present to the former system, to receive their pay regularly, and to have fewer complaints than previously.

In the Rajshahye division, the Commissioner holds a strong opinion that the new system will be an improvement on the old one or absence of one, though the village police will, under the present system, be village police and no more. A general improvement in the working of the Act is reported. Chowkeydars are stated to have been much more regular in their attendance and more regular in the discharge of their duties. Those appointed under the new Act are said to be a better class of men than the old watchmen, and to take more interest in, and pay greater attention to, their work; and it is specially noticed that in some districts the diminution in cattle-lifting, house-breaking, and petty thefts, is attributed to the stricter watchfulness of the chowkeydars. It is also stated that complaints of non-payment have been less frequent, although the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, when on tour in Rajshahye, found that many chowkeydars had not been paid for months.

The Commissioner of Dacca reports:—"There is no doubt the Act has done good on the whole. Before its introduction there was absolutely no law by which the pay of chowkeydars could be realized, and without proper pay the chowkeydars naturally did not do their work properly, and Magistrates were not disposed to be hard on them under these circumstances. Even chowkeydars, who have not come under the law, are spurred into greater activity by the hope of being brought under it, and thus the improvement has become more extensive than the mere number of villages into which the Act has been introduced would indicate. The Act is, however, by no means a perfect one, and the situation of the bulk of the chowkeydars is exactly what it was. The great difficulty is supervision. All Magistrates agree that punchayets require looking after, and the difficulty is to secure this necessary supervision with existing establishments. Another difficulty is the small number of men in many villages fit to be punchayets. . . . The complaint that is still made in some cases of want of punctuality in the payment of chowkeydars will, no doubt, as the men get to know their rights, also cease to be made. . . . Of course, any difficulty in the matter lies in getting the chowkeydars to complain, being, as they are, just in the hands of the punchayets."

The Commissioner of Chittagong reports that the Act has not yet had a fair trial, and nothing can properly be said of its merits or otherwise. The Commissioner's own opinion is that it "is a complete mistake, and not calculated to work well anywhere, least of all in a litigious district like Chittagong."

In the Patna division the Act is reported to have worked everywhere successfully, except in the district of Sarun, where it was a failure owing to want of supervision on the part of the executive authorities. The Commissioner reproduces some very interesting remarks of the District Magistrate of Durbhunga, which are, however, too long to reproduce here in extenso. Mr. Macdonnell's conclusions, after seeing above 2,000 chowkeydars and hearing what the people had to say on the subject, are that the Act has effected a great improvement in the position of the chowkeydars; that they get their pay regularly, if not monthly, at least quarterly; that they perform their duties better; that they attend more regularly at the thana. He is not prepared, without further experience of the working of the Act, to say "whether the influence which punchayets unquestionably exercise over the chowkeydars, will ultimately prove effectual in causing the latter to look up to the police less than to the punchayets." In Chumparun, too, the working of the Act is most favourably reported on.

In the Bhagulpore division the Act, on the whole, has worked successfully, although in Purneah it has not succeeded. The chowkeydars, as a rule, are better paid, attend more regularly, are better dressed, and report deaths and births more correctly. All apprehensions that the new system will weaken the power of the regular police are groundless. The Magistrate of Purneah has introduced a system of "dividing each thana into circles of from 12 to 20 villages, under a head-man, called a jemadar. Each circle has its own day in the week for appearing at the thana. The jemadar's business is to muster his men, and he is answerable with the punchayet for having the reports of deaths, &c., from the villages made at the thana in the absence of the chowkeydar."

In the Burdwan division the Act has been in operation too short a time, and within too limited areas in several of the districts to which it has been extended to enable the Commissioner to pass a decided opinion on the success of the experiment.

15. These extracts contain briefly the opinions of the various Commissioners on the Act. I am not yet in a position to report fully on my own experience of its working. During last cold weather I was obliged to confine my visits to the head-quarters of districts, in consequence of the question of reductions in the force necessitating the collection of information in the offices at head-quarters. I was only able to make a few visits to outlying thanas and villages. What I did see led me to believe that unquestionably, on the whole, the chowkeydar gets more pay than he used to; that he does not in many instances get what he is supposed to get, the accounts of the punchayets being fictitious; that naturally he will not complain to the Magistrate of under-payment, as he is too much under the control of the punchayet to do so; that the reported successful working of the Act is due to a considerable extent to the punchayets receiving an amount of assistance from the police which is not contemplated by the Act; that the punchayets are in many instances unfit to have anything to do with a post which gives them a control over village crime in which they may be interested; that there is a great danger and a practical mistake in separating between the rural and regular police as the Act does; that such separation, now only commencing, is likely to increase, and to be mischievous; and that, in my opinion, the punchayet ought to be used simply to collect the money, the chowkeydar being paid at the thana as a member of the regular police force posted for a special purpose on detached duty in the villages.

16. I merely indicate the conclusions at which, from what I have seen, I have arrived. I hope to be able to illustrate them more fully after my present season's tour. If I find that my views are inodified on further experience, I shall be the first to express such modification.

Ghatwals. 17. The necessity for legislation on the important subject of ghatwals and ghatwali land is as pressing as ever.

18. In Bankoora, where there is a large force of ghatwali, crime is detected with less success than in any district of Bengal, and the ghatwal force, instead of strengthening the regular police, is practically a hindrance to its successful working.

19. In Manbhoom the ghatwali lands are disappearing,—the ghatwals, in collusion with zemindars, and under the pressure of creditors, allowing these lands for some trifling temporary advantages to be incorporated with the revenue-paying possessions of the landholders.

20. In Orissa there is a large force of paiks, rahbars, and others, whose services are not nearly to the full extent utilized. In fact, for want of a law on the subject, we are losing the services of a large body of men who might be most useful as police, and the difficulties which beset the determination of the question will increase instead of diminishing every year that legislation is deferred.

Railway police.

21. The force consists of—

Assistant Inspector-General	1
Inspectors	7
Sub-Inspectors	9
Sergeants	10
Head-Constables	56
Class A.	92
Constables „ B1 and B2	57
„ B3 and B4	302
Total						534*

Changes were made in the constitution of the railway force and the allotment of the various stations. The number of head-constables was reduced from 64 to 56, and that of constables from 457 to 451, inclusive of four extra constables. One European constable was permanently appointed for the Howrah approach-road, the cost being divided according to the sanctioned scale between the Government and the Company, and two other extra European constables were sanctioned for watching goods at Howrah, the cost being entirely borne by the Company.

22. The casualties were 32·8 per cent. during 1877, or 6·8 per cent. more than in the preceding year. Sickness in the force was also much greater, the total admissions into hospital having been 179·9 per cent. of the force, or 34·9 in excess of that of 1876. In addition to the above admissions into hospital, a number of men were treated by native doctors at stations where there are no hospitals, as sick in quarters. The season was a very unhealthy one no doubt, especially on that part of the line between Burdwan and Howrah. At one time in Burdwan all the officers and men who could read and write were prostrated by illness, and the station diary was not written up for three days. In Hooghly head-constable after head-constable fell sick. Pundooah also was very bad. Howrah was frequently working 30 or 35 men below its strength, owing to sickness.

Including four extra constables.

The accommodation generally is wretched on this side of Burdwan, where to the natural unhealthiness of the climate is generally added the risk of living in a small, damp, ill-ventilated room of about nine feet square, without very often any verandah, and no cooking-place. It cannot be doubted that the high death-rate and broken health causing men to be discharged as unfit for further service, or to submit their resignation, is in a great measure due to the nature of the accommodation. Pundooah, Bhuddressur, Biddabatty, Chandernagore, and Serampore, may specially be quoted as wretched instances of Government Railway Police buildings. But nearer still there is Howrah, than which nothing worse can be imagined. In the Salt Golah Road, at a long distance from the railway station, and opposite the Sulkea Salt Golah, a small two-storied house, containing two moderately sized rooms and seven smaller ones, with three bath-rooms, is rented for the accommodation of about 205 men. The Assistant Inspector-General is now in communication with the Agent, East Indian Railway, on the subject, and it is to be hoped that measures will be adopted for obtaining a proper site for a new building to secure the health and comfort of the men. The great unpopularity of the force is of course much to be attributed to the facts above given, but an additional one is the severity of the duties. At times there is great difficulty in getting approved men, and, as a rule, a third of those selected in Arrah, Bankipore, and other places in Behar, change their minds before leaving, or immediately on arriving at, Howrah; while many others resigned after a few months' service in Bengal Proper. It is almost impossible to get Bengalees to serve as writer constables, or even as head-constables.

23. In Dum-Dum the cantonment police was reduced by seven constables in consequence of the bazar chupprases being exempted from police duties, and being kept exclusively for conservancy purposes. The cantonment police at Barrackpore was increased by two head-constables and decreased by 14 constables.

In the town police of Dinapore the number of constables was increased by three for duty at the lock-hospital. They are paid from cantonment funds. In Lohardugga four municipal constables were withdrawn from the Dorundah cantonment.

24. By a redistribution of the district allotment the police told off for salt preventive duties now number—showing a reduction of one Inspector, two head-constables, and six constables, who were withdrawn from this special force during 1877.

25. The system of patrols, as existing in former years, has been generally adhered to; and considering the length of the roads and the vast numbers traversing them, their freedom from robbery is a matter for congratulation. In Hazareebagh, during the course of the year, 109 new road posts were formed. A force of 26 sirdars and 331 digwars was raised from funds supplied by the zemindars, and from it the new posts were manned; the plan received the sanction of Government, and, if properly worked, there is no doubt that it will have a beneficial effect in the prevention of crime.

26. Under this head changes in certain districts with reference to the head-quarters' boats have been made, in consequence of Government of India, Financial Resolution No. 3665, dated the 31st October 1876; but the question is still under consideration, and final arrangements have not yet been made.

27. The patrol boats in the Dacca district are reported to be in capital working order, and regularly perform their beats. The Commissioner, however, strongly represents, as last year, that the numerical strength of the establishment is insufficient to put down the crimes ordinarily committed on the rivers. In the districts of Tipperah and Backergunge, especially, more boats and men are required. In the former two good boats for patrolling the Megna are much needed; and the crews of the boats in the latter district require strengthening to give them speed in cases of emergency.

The following statement shows the working of the patrol boats during the year 1877:—

28. An extra force of one Sub-Inspector, four head-constables, and 56 constables, for temporary jail guard duty at Mozufferpore, was entertained from the 1st November 1874 at a monthly cost of Rs. 514, and withdrawn on the 1st July 1877. Under orders of the Government of India the duties of the preventive establishment for the illicit manufacture of Pooree kurkutch salt will now have to be done by the regular police, and the cost (Rs. 3,688-4-3) for the extra force which will have to be entertained during the manufacturing season for four months in the year will now have to be borne by the Police Department. It has been proposed to distribute the force as follows:—

Names of Aurungs where kurkutch salt is manufactured.						Head-Constables.	Constables
Gurbai	3	30
Malood	2	24
Sathparah	6	60
Huridas	2	15
Total						13	129

In Pubna an extra force of six head-constables and 40 constables were entertained for quelling agrarian disturbances. The force was still employed at the close of the year, but has since been withdrawn.

29. In 1876 there were 12 bodies of police located as a punitive force, but during 1877 there were 30 in all, aggregating one Sub-Inspector, 23 head-constables, and 163 constables, thus showing an increase of 18 parties, five head constables, and 15 constables, when compared with the figures of 1876. In Jessore this measure was necessary, as the kaist bad characters had to be watched; for many years they were, and still are, notorious as thieves and river dacoits; in Rajshahye a special force was needed to check injury being done to the railway line, as also for the prevention of disturbances between the Rancee of Nattore and her people; in Balasore a similar party was located to prevent feuds among the members of the Rajah's family; in Pubna and Furreedpore, to prevent riot and breaches of the peace between villagers; and in Backergunge, Chittagong, Tipperah, and Gya, to check feuds arising out of quarrels between zemindars and ryots.

30. In Shahabad the force was maintained for the suppression of robberies committed by certain villagers. The punitive police employed during the year has had most beneficial results, as they have been the means of preventing offences and overawing bad characters; and the principle of making the inhabitants of special tracts pay for special turbulence, instead of repressing such exceptional disturbance at the cost of the general public, is most salutary and equitable.

31. In the Chittagong Hill Tracts, although there were several rumours of intended raids by the frontier tribes, and the posts at Demagree and Sorthay had to be strengthened, yet the district has enjoyed immunity from raiding parties during the year under review, as well as in the two preceding years.

32. The 152 fairs held in the Lower Provinces last year were attended by over three millions of people; all passed off peaceably, and without the occurrence of any accident worthy of note. No serious crime of any kind was reported in connection with the above gatherings, and of the 132 petty offences committed, convictions followed in 95. The aggregate value of the property stolen in the above fairs is returned at Rs. 1,653, of which Rs. 739, or 42·2 per cent., were recovered by the police. Thus among every hundred thousand persons attending fairs in Bengal three petty offences were reported, and the loss suffered through thefts, deducting the recoveries, was at the rate of Rs. 2·7 for every ten thousand. It seems to me that the expense rendered necessary by the deputation of considerable bodies of extra police at these fairs should be defrayed by a small tax levied either from the people who attend them or from the owners of the land on which the fairs are held.

In Bogra, at the fair at Gopinathpore, a gang consisting of 21 persons, professional thieves from Beerbhoom, who practised shop-lifting, was arrested and all convicted. In this case Inspector Gobind Chunder Chakravarti and the constables under him did good service. In Pooree, on the 25th February, a new festival took place, called Gobind Duadasi; but as it took place only two days before the Dole Jattrā, no more than the usual number of pilgrims was expected. An unusually large number, however, flocked into the town simply because the festival is said to come round only once in 70 years, and though every possible care was taken for the safety of the crowd during the bathing operations yet 16 people were drowned.

33. Reading and writing in the vernacular continues to be given whenever it is practicable. The criminal law and procedure is explained, together with the Abkaree and Instructions.

Salt Regulations. The men at stations and outposts are also instructed as to the habitation and whereabouts of the bad characters residing within their jurisdictions. The rules with regard to the promotion of uneducated men to the rank of head-constable are still strictly adhered to. The percentage of those in this grade who can read and write and are under tuition amounts to nearly 92 per cent. of the total employed.

The numbers who can read and write in the regular police are—

Inspectors	215 or 99 per cent.	A.
Sub-Inspectors	684 or 98 "	B.
Head-Constables	2,093 or 85 "	C.
Constables	6,063 or 37 "	D.
A includes Subadars of the Frontier Police.
B	"	Jemadars	"	"	"
C	"	Havildars and Naiks	"	"	"
D	"	Sepoys	"	"	"

34. In addition to the above, the following officers and men can read and write a little, or are being taught:—

Sub-Inspectors	3
Head-Constables	145
Constables	3,157

35. The municipal police are comparatively more ignorant, and the following only read and write:—

Inspectors	6 or 100 per cent.
Sub-Inspectors	11 or 84 "
Head-Constables	219 or 71 "
Constables	711 or 11 "

showing an increase of two Inspectors, 22 head-constables, and 39 constables, when compared with the figures of 1876. Nine head-constables and 965 constables are still under instruction.

36. In the 24-Pergunnahs, Jessore, and Howrah many constables now read, write, and speak English, besides having a good knowledge of the vernacular; and it is satisfactory to note that this class is increasing. To increase the numbers of this class, to do away with irregularities which had attended the introduction of a class called writer constables, and to attract a better set of men to the force, orders were issued during the year regulating the enlistment of educated young men as constables on probation before receiving promotion. As far as it has gone, the system introduced has worked well. If possible, the system of examination, which works well in the Upper Provinces, will be introduced by-and-by.

37. The men at the reserve in nearly all districts have been regularly drilled in company movements, in the manual and platoon exercises, and practised at butts, wherever available. The weakness of the reserves and the numerous calls on them for escorts, &c., prevent the men being put through a regular and steady course of instruction; but every day sees those present in the lines undergoing drill suited to their numbers. The subject of drill has been regularly noticed in inspection tours, and no unfavourable remarks received.

38. A new police-station at Sultangunge in Bhagulpore, a pukka magazine at Shahabad, new lines and Sub-Inspectors' houses at Cuttack, and a new reserve line at Buildings.

Chittagong, are in course of construction, and will, it is expected, be completed before the close of the year. A new police-station at Onda in Bankoora and the Bulpore police-station and Paroi outpost in Beerbhoom, which were commenced last year, were completed this year. Besides the above, the stations and outposts the names of which are given below were constructed this year :—

39. In Furreedpore, an addition was made in the shape of a verandah to the Khangunge outpost, and the removal of the Goalundo station to a better site was sanctioned. The following buildings at Rangamatee, in the Chittagong Hill Tracts, were also constructed during the year :—

1 Civil medical officer's house.
1 Mulo shed.
1 Masoury magazine.

6 Temporary barracks.
4 Parade-ground and clerks' houses.
36 Temporary sheds.

40. The aggregate expenditure and distribution on account of police buildings during the year will be found in the table below :—

* Casualties in 1873 12·4 per cent.
Ditto in 1874 13·1 "
Ditto in 1875 11·5 "
Ditto in 1876 13·0 "

41. The casualties in 1877 in the regular police were the same as in the preceding year, and amounted to 13 per cent.* of the entire strength of all ranks.

Retirements on pension or gratuity	91
Resignation	4·80
Dismissal	2·76
Discharge	1·30
Desertion	·90
Death	2·33

Dismissals only were fewer than in the year before, but under all other heads (deaths excepted) the casualties were more numerous. With respect to resignations, the following districts show the greatest number :—

Regular police	{	Railway police	82 or 15 per cent.
		Howrah	43 „ 14 „
		Hooghly	56 „ 14 „
		24-Pergunnahs	97 „ 11 „
		Julpigoree	33 „ 11 „
		Pubna	39 „ 10 „
		Moorshedabad	66 „ 10 „
		Jessore	52 „ 8 „

The dismissals are numerous in the districts of—

Regular police	{	24-Pergunnahs	42 or 5 per cent.
		Rungpore	26 „ 6 „
		Howrah	20 „ 6 „
		Railway police	48 „ 8 „
		Moorshedabad	34 „ 5 „
		Purneah	25 „ 5 „
		Noakholly	20 „ 5 „

It is worthy of note that out of a total of 267 dismissals from both the Regular and Municipal Police force in the 24-Pergunnahs, the District Superintendent observes that no less than 187 were on account of not rejoining at expiration of leave ; dearth of living and constant hard work have a good deal to say to the number of desertions.

Mortality.

42. Deaths in the force during 1877 amount to 468, or 2·3 per cent., or 1 per cent. less than in the preceding year.

43. The death-rate was particularly high in the following districts :—

Regular police	{	1. Dinagepore	6·5 per cent.
		2. Maldah	5·5 „
		3. Moorshedabad	4·4 „
		4. 24-Pergunnahs	4·0 „
		5. Hooghly	3·9 „
		6. Pubna	3·5 „
		7. Bogra	2·8 „
		8. Purneah	2·8 „
		9. Chittagong Hill Tracts	2·7 „
		10. Howrah	2·6 „
		11. Rungpore	2·6 „
		12. Chittagong	2·6 „

In Nuddea, however, the year has been far from healthy, and the number of deaths in the Regular and Municipal Police has risen from 9 in 1876 to 20 during the year under review. But fever and cholera were prevalent throughout the district. In Moorshedabad the number of deaths from all causes, both in the Regular and Municipal Police were 52, against 34 in 1876. Exposure, with constant and fatiguing duty in Lower Bengal, tells much on up-country men at first, and the mortality is principally amongst them. The following are the districts in which the mortality has been least :—

Regular police	...	{ Gya	...	4	Regular police	...	{ Shahabad	...	6
		{ Monghyr	...	5			{ Lohardugga	...	9

44. The general health of the force has been very bad throughout the year, the admissions into hospital having risen from 49·5 in 1876 to 63·7 in 1877. The statement below shows a considerable increase of admissions, but it does not disclose the real state of matters, for many were ill for days at police-stations. No special reasons can be assigned for the increase of sickness last year.

Admissions into hospital.

45. Admissions into hospital are numerous in the following districts :—

Chittagong Hill Tracts ...	300·9	Rajshahye ...	93·0
Government Railway Police ...	179·9	Pubna ...	89·3
Dinagepore ...	153·5	Howrah ...	84·8
Beerbhoom ...	100·0	Burdwan ...	84·2
Maldah ...	97·0	Jessore ...	83·0
Bogra ...	97·4	24-Pergunnahs... ..	82·0
Gurj hats ...	96·1	Julpigoree ...	80·0

In the Chittagong Hill Tracts the number of patients admitted into the hospital during the year exceeded that of 1876 by 594, and that of 1875 by 516. Many of the men withdrawn from the frontier posts to Rungamattce during the rainy season for drill suffered considerably.

46. In the following districts the hospital admissions are few :—

	Per cent.		Per cent.
Darjeeling ...	14	Balasore... ..	20·4
Mozufferpore ...	15·7	Patna... ..	22·0
Shahabad ...	17·6

47. In Midnapore a Sub-Inspector was tried judicially and discharged for trying to extort a confession by torture. He has, however, been departmentally punished by degradation to the lowest grade of Sub-Inspectors. A constable and a chowkeydar also were judicially punished by five and two years' imprisonment for putting a heavy stone on a woman's breast and sitting on it with a view of extorting a confession. In Hooghly two head-constables were charged with having tortured a woman to obtain a confession or evidence against her husband. They were judicially convicted and sentenced to two and one and a half years' imprisonment. In Nuddea in a theft case a woman was supposed to be possessed of the stolen property. She was taken to the police-station and was afterwards allowed to be taken away from police charge by the complainant; she was tortured by the plaintiff and her brothers to make her confess to the receipt of the property. The woman ultimately committed suicide. The constable was a silent spectator of the torture, and on trial was sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment, and the head-constable was dismissed the force. In Bogra two constables were convicted by the Sessions Judge of having beaten and assaulted two men with batons to compel the production of certain property in a theft case. They were sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment each. In Furreedpore, in a serious case of house-breaking and theft, a head-constable, two constables, and the complainant in the case, were charged with torturing and wrongfully confining the accused to extort confessions, and were convicted at the sessions. The head-constable was sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment and Rs. 50 fine; the constable to two years' and Rs. 10 fine; and the complainant to four years' and Rs. 100 fine. In Mymensingh one head-constable and two constables were charged with torturing a man to obtain a confession in a theft case. The torture resulted in death, and the men were convicted on trial and sentenced to 14 years' rigorous imprisonment. In Lohardugga a head-constable was sentenced to 18 months' rigorous imprisonment, and fined Rs. 50 for ill-treating a man while investigating a theft case. The man died, but as no evidence was forthcoming, the constable was not charged with culpable homicide. Thus in all one Sub-Inspector, six head-constables, eight constables, and one chowkeydar, received punishment for torture or maltreatment of prisoners during 1877.

Cases of extortion.

48. In the following districts cases of extortion occurred :—

Burdwan.

Midnapore.

Howrah.

None of the cases were such as to require special comment, and it would only needlessly swell this report if details were given of each case. Briefly seven head-constables, 20 constables, and one chowkeydar, were convicted of this offence throughout the Lower Provinces.

Punishments.

49. The following figures show the punishments inflicted during 1877:—

					Judicial convictions under Penal Code.	Under Act V.	Departmental punishments.
Inspectors	3	...	10
Sub-Inspectors	12	3	325
Head-Constables	53	16	903
Constables	296	200	2,971
Total					364	219	4,209

Thus 68, or two per cent. of officers, and 296, or 1·7 per cent. of constables, were punished for offences under the Penal Code; and 19, or ·5 per cent. of officers, and 200, or 1·1 per cent. of constables, under Act V of 1861; and 1,238, or 36·5 per cent. of officers, and 2,971, or 17·8 per cent. of constables, were departmentally punished. The punishments under Act V are less than in the two preceding years, but under the other two heads they are greater, as will be seen from the table below:—

					Judicial convictions under Penal Code.	Under Act V of 1861.	Departmental punishments.	Total.
1875	332	268	3,589	4,189
1876	341	290	3,832	4,463

50. In the districts below the offences under the Penal Code were most numerous:—

1. Railway police	27	5. Dacca	14
2. Midnapore	23	6. Moorshedabad	14
3. Balasore	16	7. Purneah	13
4. Jessore	16	8. Gurjhat	11

As remarked upon in the annual report for 1876, Gurjhat police stands at the head of the list, considering the numerical strength of each of the above districts; the railway police comes next.

51. Departmental punishments were most numerous in—

1. Cuttack	252	9. Midnapore	119
2. Railway police	250	10. Noakholly	134
3. Gya	230	11. Sarun	122
4. Jessore	184	12. Burdwan	114
5. Hooghly	182	13. Backergunge	112
6. Rajshahye	175	14. Purneah	110
7. Dinapore	154	15. Beerbhoom	106
8. Nuddea	151

52. Punishments under Act V, though comparatively rare, are most common in the following districts:—

1. Noakholly	15	6. Chittagong Hill Tracts	11
2. Chittagong	14	7. Moorshedabad	11
3. 24-Pergunnahs	14	8. Mymensingh	10
4. Government railway police	11	Rajshahye	10
5. Rungpore	11

53. The Railway, Gurjhat, and Noakholly police still continue to be the worst conducted, heading the list with the greatest number of punishments of all sorts as compared with their strength. This is the third year in succession in which these districts occupy the same position.

Good conduct allowance.

54. The allowance for good conduct was distributed as follow:—

						Rs.
Bengal	2,924
Behar	1,940
Orissa	430
Chota Nagpore	120
Total						5,416

At the end of the year under review 5,306 men were one or more good conduct stripes, the particulars of which are as follows:—

More than three rings	78
Three rings	476
Two "	601
One ring	4,153

or 736 more than at the end of the previous year.

55. In 42 districts 20 Inspectors, 216 head-constables, and 812 constables, Special rewards by promotion or money. were specially rewarded in money, or by promotion for distinguished ability, courage, or address. These figures, when compared with those of 1876, show an increase of 23 districts, 10 Inspectors, 78 Sub-Inspectors, 158 head-constables, and 637 constables.

56. In Howrah constable Inul Huq received promotion for arresting a murderer. The constable was directed to serve a summons on a village school-master. He did so, and his suspicions were excited by the school-master's appearance and by the fact of his attempting to move off as soon as he saw the police. He made further inquiries, and ultimately found that the school-master was an absconded offender in a riot-with-murder case. The school-master was arrested and sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment.

In Dacca, Inspector Bhuggobuth Churn Gangooly was presented with a watch and chain for his distinguished services in the capture of several gangs of professional thieves. In Mymensingh, Inspector Ram Koomar Ghosh, with the assistance of Sub-Inspectors Dino Nath Kooshari and constables Bodan Singh, Omed Khan, and Dwarka Nath Roy, was successful in bringing a gang of twelve coiners to trial, who had for 10 years carried on this trade with impunity. The case is still pending, and, if it terminates favourably, the men will be suitably rewarded. In Shahabad, Inspector Makoond Singh has again distinguished himself, and in February last was promoted to the 3rd grade of Inspectors. With much skill and labour he succeeded in detecting the "Malmuttah" mail robbery case, which was committed in 1874, near Hajipore, in Tirhoot, by some Shahabad Ahirs of very bad character. He also arrested some other Ahirs, and a Sonar from Dumraon, from whom he received some of the currency notes stolen in the Titalyah and Ranchi mail robbery cases. Altogether he has done good and valuable service. The Magistrate of Shahabad considers Makoond Sing to be the best detective he has seen in the country. In Champarun Sub-Inspector Mahomed Ariff was presented with a silver watch and chain by Government for his successful and good service in connection with the Bhatkowl and Misserpokhoriah dacoity cases, which resulted in the conviction of the notorious dacoit Nunkoo Gir and 20 of his accomplices. This officer has since been successful in another frontier dacoity which occurred in September last at Zumaneah, and which resulted in the conviction of seven dacoits.

57. Besides the above, many other officers exhibited conspicuous ability in similar cases, and were rewarded either by promotion or by donations of money.

58. The following table gives the percentage of different religions and castes, calculated on the total strength of constables, as they stood on the 31st December 1877 :—

Religion and castes.

					Regular Police.	Municipal Police.
Christians...	6	2
Mahomedans	29.6	31.6
Brahmins	15.1	13.4
Rajpoot and Khettrees	18.8	18.5
Goorkhas	2.7	3
Sikhs	4	...
High caste Soodras	10.6	6.7
Low caste Soodras	5.7	6.6
Hill-men	1.4	...
Hindoos of all other castes	12.8	22.6
Other religions	2.3	1

It has been found most difficult to adhere to the rules with regard to the limit of having only 30 per cent. of foreigners in each district force. In the districts noted below, the percentage of foreigners has been over the sanctioned scale :—

Enlistment of foreigners.

Bankoora	...	36.92	Lohardugga	...	37.1
Beerbhoom	...	48.9	Maldah	...	44.22
Bhagulpore	...	58	Manbhoom	...	67.53

Chittagong Hill Tracts	...	73.08	Moorsshedabad	...	49
Darjeeling	...	45.41	Noakholly	...	89.5
Dinagapore	...	31.08	Nuddea	...	39.4
Hazareebagh	...	46.6	Pubna	...	47.4
Hooghly	...	54.7	Rungpore	...	43.42
Howrah	...	68.78	Sonthal Pergunnahs	...	72
Julpigoree	...	59.1	24-Pergunnahs	...	59

In Howrah and the 24-Pergunnahs, especially, where watch and ward in towns forms a principal part of police duties, it is necessary largely to employ up-country men, owing to the cowardice of the Bengalees generally; and it seems to me that the limit of 30 per cent. cannot be attended to under the present and increasing difficulty of getting recruits:

Escapes and recaptures.

59. The total number of escapes from the custody of police was 255, of which 23 were from jails, 88 from lockups, 64 from police buildings, 49 from other places, and 81 from police escorts. The escapes from the custody of warders were 42 from jails and 19 from lockups. It is highly satisfactory to find that out of 316 escapes the recaptures were 246, or 77 per cent., viz. 15 per cent. more than in 1876. The punishments for allowing prisoners to escape were as follows:—

		Sub- Inspectors.	Head- Constables.	Constables.	Burkundazes.
Judicially punished	...	2	4	70	1	and 5 constables awaiting trial.
Departmentally ditto	...	1	10	58	0
Total	...	3	14	128	1	and 5 constables awaiting trial.

Loss of treasure.

60. No loss of treasure was reported during the year.

Escorts.

61. The following table shows the strength of police escorts furnished during the year:—

	Inspectors.	Sub- Inspectors.	Head- Constables.	Constables.	Mounted Police.	European Constables.	Total.
Treasure, stamps, &c.	4	70	1,215	8,580	17	9,806

Miscellaneous	19	17	285	2,764	47	3,133
Total	30	118	2,327	20,651	73	23,239

The total amount of treasure escorted by the police during 1877 was more than Rs. 14,04,64,872-1-5.

	Rs.	A.	P.
Bengal	9,45,77,680	15	11
Behar	4,21,05,612	0	0
Orissa	29,57,856	0	0
Chota Nagpore	8,23,723	1	6
Total	14,04,64,872	1	5

or an increase of Rs. 74,28,725-1-5 when compared with the figures of 1876. The number of prisoners escorted was 14,608, or an increase of 1,020 prisoners as shown in the figures of 1876. The escort duty in various districts is getting steadily heavier every year, and is a serious drain on the strength of reserves. I particularly wish to call attention to the necessity of remittances of small sums, pay of establishment, &c., being sent on fixed dates. Neglect of regularity in remittance is very common on the part of officers sending money through the police, and such irregularity adds very greatly to the difficulties of supplying escorts.

62. The number of suicides was 2,512,* or an increase of nearly 25 per cent. over the year 1876. The districts of Nuddea, Jessore, Gya, and Cuttack have the greatest number. Darjeeling, Chittagong Hill Tracts, and Bhagulpore, the smallest. The disproportion between those of males and females is again particularly noticeable in Gya, being 13 of the former and 163 of the latter. This district also heads the list of districts with four, in which suicides of children appear.

63. There were 24,380† deaths in all from accidental causes, or 4·2 per cent. less than in 1876. It will be observed that there is a marked decrease under all the heads with the exception of deaths resulting from “snake-bites.” The destruction of life during the year under review in Bengal by snake-bites and wild beasts amounts to 10,574, or 17 per thousand.

Railway accidents.

64. There were 129 accidents reported on the railway, in which 14 railway servants and 31 other persons were killed, and 32 servants and 13 others more or less injured.

Inspection.

65. The following districts were inspected by the Inspector-General and Deputy Inspectors-General:—

1. Backergunge.
2. Balasore.
3. Bankoora.
4. Beerbhoom.

1. Cuttack.
2. Hooghly.
3. Dacca.
4. Pooree.
5. 24-Pergunnahs.
6. Sonthal Pergunnahs.

18. Durbhunga.
19. Chumparun.
20. Bhagulpore.
21. Sarun.
22. Balasore.
23. Singbhoom.

In the following districts inspection was insufficiently attended to:—

1. Howrah.
2. Midnapore.
3. Noakholly.
4. Gurjhat.

5. Lohardugga.
6. Pubna.
7. Purneah.
8. Manbhoom.

The greatest attention is now paid to the supervision of the manner in which District Superintendents perform their inspection duties, and in next year's report I shall be able to show fully and clearly how the orders of Government on this most important subject have been carried out.

67. During the nine months in which I have had charge of the office of Inspector-General, I have been zealously assisted in inspection duties by Colonel W. R. Gordon and Mr. E. B. Baker, the Deputy Inspectors-General. Of the ability with which Captain Wilkinson, my Personal Assistant, discharged his duties I entertain as high an opinion as has been expressed by my predecessors. Captain Wilkinson went on leave in August, and his successor, Mr. W. D. Pratt, has during the year worked vigorously and conscientiously.

Of district officers, I would specially mention Messrs. Stack, Shuttleworth, Waller, Irvine, and Wilcox, officers who have hitherto been conspicuous for their devotion to duty, and who have during the present year worked as hard as ever. To Captain Ramsay and his Assistant, Mr. W. F. Smith, my acknowledgments are specially due for the thoroughly good police work which they have done in Patna. Mr. A. V. Knyvett deserves special notice for the successful way in which he directed and carried out police operations against the Mughya Domes. Messrs. Graves and H. Dawson did good work in the districts of Cuttack and Bogra.

Amongst the Assistants, Messrs. H. Munro, F. A. Dawson, Mohendro Nath Hazra, and G. D. Graham, performed their duties in a way which gives promise of their future usefulness as District Superintendents.

CRIME, GENERAL.

68. The number of cognizable cases reported during the year has been 108,989,* as compared with 117,559 of last year and 120,838 of 1875, showing a diminution of 8,570 cases as compared with 1876 and of 11,849 as compared with 1875.

While in some places in the province there has been pressure as regards food amongst the inhabitants, the present year, on the whole, may be considered an average one as regards the circumstances leading to crime. The diminution in the number of cases reported is very considerable.

This decrease is observable under all classes of crime, as shown below :—

	1875.	1876.	1877.	Decrease.
Cases against property	81,809	77,948	73,265	4,683
" " person,	19,249	17,351	15,535	1,816
Other cases	19,780	22,260	20,189	2,071
Total ...	120,838	117,559	108,989	8,570

The increase or decrease under the various headings in each class will be dealt with when I write of the classification of crime; meanwhile, it may here be noted that the decrease of cases against property and person is visible both as regards petty and serious offences of those classes. Under "other cases" the decrease is almost exclusively due to a diminution of prosecutions under the vagrancy provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Deducting false cases, the number accepted as true is 94,362, against 95,747 of 1876 and 94,783 of 1875.

69. In paragraph 8 of the Government resolution on the report for last year, the number of cases reported in 1876, after deduction of false cases, was compared with that of other years, and the conclusion was arrived at that the actual amount of crime committed in 1876 showed a very considerable increase on 1872 and 1873, the figures being for

1872	85,205
1873	90,882
1876	95,747

The same conclusion might in the same way be arrived at with reference to 1877, the figures for which are 94,362.

	Hurt.	Sections 428 and 429.
1872	85,205 + 5,302 + 484 = 90,991
1873	90,882 + 5,471 + 484 = 96,837
1877	94,362 = 94,362

It will thus be seen that there is an absolute decrease of upwards of 2,000 cases in 1877 as compared with 1873; and if the same calculation had been made with reference to 1876, there would have been a decrease of 1,090 in that year as compared with 1873, instead of an increase, as shown in paragraph 8 of the Government Resolution.

71. There is an increase of 3,371 cases in 1877 as compared with 1872. If it be remembered that, under nuisances alone, action in bringing which to light is creditable to the police, there was an increase of 1,912 cases as compared with 1872,—that, similarly, there was an increase of 448 in the number of excise cases in 1877 as compared with 1872,—the increase of crime, for which the police in 1877 may be held responsible, amounts to 1,106.

* Exclusive of some "direct" cases of Howrah, which were erroneously omitted by the District Superintendent, but which were afterwards detected by the Magistrate, too late, however, for the correction of the Provincial Statement A (Part I).

If, further, it be remembered that in 1872, 18,916 cases were pronounced false and excluded from the returns, while in 1877, 14,627 (or above 4,000 less than in 1872) were so excluded, the apparent increase may undoubtedly be accounted for by the fact that the greater caution in describing cases as false now under orders of Government exercised has led to a larger amount of cases being shown as true in 1877 than would have been shown had the former procedure been observed. Had the same amount of discrimination in pronouncing cases false been shown in 1872 as has been done in 1877, I have little doubt that at least half of the excess of 4,000 cases above alluded to would have been included in the returns as true cases.

I trust I have made it clear from the above remarks that the increase of crime in 1877 as compared with 1872 is only apparent, and not real.

72. The proportion of true crime to area and population has been nearly the same as last year,—to area 1 to 1.6 square miles; to population 1 to 638 souls.

73. The subjoined comparative statement shows divisionally the number of cases reported, those accepted as true, and the percentage of cases declared to be false:—

74. Looking at the above table, it will appear that although there has been a large decrease in the number of cases declared false the number of true cases throughout the province has fluctuated very slightly. There is a difference of only 1,386 cases between the figures of the preceding year and that under report.

In some of the divisions, however, there has been fluctuation deserving of notice. In the Presidency, Rajshahye, and Chota Nagpore divisions there has been a decrease, respectively, of 1,296, 989, and 1,443 cases, while in the Chittagong and Orissa divisions there has been an increase, respectively, of 992 and 1,624 cases. The causes of such fluctuations in divisions may be noticed when I come to the consideration of the Commissioners' reports. It is sufficient here to note that such increase is, as previously, in petty and not in serious crime.

75. The diminution in the number of cases reported false is striking:—

There is a diminution of no less than 7,185 false cases throughout the province. In every division the percentage of cases pronounced false has diminished, and in several districts the reduction in the number of cases declared by Magistrates never to have occurred is most striking. The only division in the province in which false cases seem to flourish with normal regularity is Orissa; and the people of that division, generally, judged from the figures, are entitled to the unenviable distinction assigned last year by the Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division to the people of the Bhagulpore district. In only four districts has the percentage of false cases increased, and in only one of these is the increase at all considerable. In Pubna, the percentage in 1877 has been 15.5 as compared with 13.6 in 1876; in Julpigoree 11.1 as compared with 8.3; in the Sonthal Pergunnahs 4.2 as compared with 2.1; and in Chumparun 10.1 as compared with 1. On the other hand, the decrease in some of the districts hitherto conspicuous for false cases has been most striking. In Bhagulpore the percentage has fallen from 37 to 8.6 and the imputation of singular untruthfulness cast upon the people of that district is no longer, according to the figures, deserved,—the inhabitants both of Maldah and Purneah distancing them in this respect. In Bankoorá, instead of, as last year, 14.4 per cent. being shown as false, only 2.7 have been in the present year so shown. In Beerbhoom, where last year out of 1,437 cases reported 440 were struck off as false, during 1877 only 24 cases out of 1,000 reported have been so excluded. In Dinapore the percentage has fallen from 25.8 to 8.5; in Dacca from 23 to 8.5; in Tipperah from 16.4 to 7; in Noakholly from 18.8 to 5.6; and in Maldah from 22.4 to 12.6. Mymensingh, in which, in 1874, 52 per cent., and in 1875, 55 per cent. of the cases reported were declared false, in 1877 shows only 10 per cent. so struck off; the diminution in the percentage of such cases noticed last year, viz. 16 per cent., being thus still continued in the year under report. It is of course impossible to believe that there has been any radical change within a year in the character of the people, such as would account for these results. The obvious conclusion is that there has been some change of procedure in dealing with charges laid at thanas, either on the part of the Police or Magistrates. Such a change has been introduced during the year by Circular No. 1 of 17th August 1877, in which a distinction was made between cases "intentionally false," cases "false through mistake of law or fact in which no crime is established," and cases which prove to be "non-cognizable." Only the first class of cases now finds entry in column IXa, whereas formerly all the three classes above described were shown under the head of false cases.

76. There can be no doubt that one very important result, which the issue of this circular has effected, has been to secure greater attention on the part of Magistrates in dealing with cases sent up by the police as false, and, in this respect, good will follow. For, now that all "C" form false cases must be sifted by Magistrates and classified as laid down in the circular referred to, police officers will be compelled to be careful in sending up such cases. I do not find that the issue of this circular has had any effect in increasing the number of cases on the non-cognizable side. It is possible, however, that non-cognizable cases may have decreased from other causes, and the addition to the number of such cases by the transfer of cases reported cognizable, but found to be non-cognizable, may thus have been neutralized.

77. I give below a table showing the result of prosecutions of complainants whose charges were found to be false.

Statement showing the result of prosecutions in false cases during 1877.

It is notoriously difficult to obtain sufficient proof to warrant convictions in such cases; but the figures given above show in my opinion that by no means sufficient efforts are made to bring persons who make false complaints to justice. They also show that when efforts in this direction are really made they may be to a considerable extent successful.—Witness the results in Bhagulpore, where prosecutions were instituted in 84 cases out of 126 declared false, and where convictions were obtained in 36 instances; so, also, in Monghyr, where convictions were obtained in 31 out of 54 cases instituted. The results in the Orissa division are specially unsatisfactory. In only 58 cases out of 2,265 pronounced judicially false were any proceedings taken against the persons who made false complaints, and in only 19 of these were convictions obtained. It seems to me either that too little care in this division is exercised before pronouncing charges false, or that too little energy is shown in taking proceedings against the parties who are declared to have brought false complaints.

78. In connection with this subject the Commissioner of Dacca observes:—
“I am afraid that the real reason for the paucity of these prosecutions is not so much the difficulty of obtaining convictions as the difficulty in finding the agency to dispose of them when instituted. If this is so, I am quite prepared to make all allowances for the shortcomings above noticed. The work that has been thrown upon district officers and their staff owing to the introduction of the Land Registration Act has been so great that I can well understand the former hesitating to add to the burden already imposed upon their subordinates by giving them cases to try which might never come to anything. I have, however, again called their attention to the subject that as soon as the pressure of work is reduced I shall expect to see every case palpably false on the face of it prosecuted, whatever be the result. As I said last year, the longer the people are allowed to bring these charges with impunity, the worse the evil will become.”

79. It is satisfactory to notice that the percentage of cases in which no inquiry was made is steadily diminishing, it being, for 1877, 7·8, as compared with 9·2 for last year, and 11·1 for 1875. Special attention has been called to the orders of Government on this point as contained in paragraph 9 of last year's resolution, and I have no doubt that the full effect of these orders will appear in next year's report. In the Burdwan Division the procedure has been satisfactory in all districts except in Bankoora, where out of 822 cases reported inquiry was denied in 132, or 16 per cent.

In the Presidency Division the percentage of cases not inquired into has been good. In the Rajshahye Division the results are remarkable for the striking decrease in the percentage of cases not inquired into in the district of Dinagepore, and for the high average of such cases in Bogra. It is evident that the police of Bogra have not had time yet to pay full attention to the remarks in the Government Resolution of last year.

In the Dacca and Chittagong Divisions the results are satisfactory. The Patna Division is again remarkable for the striking difference in procedure between the districts of Patna and Gya, in the former district almost every case having been investigated, while in Gya no less than 33·2 per cent. have not been inquired into. The procedure in Gya last year formed the subject of comment by Government in the resolution. The orders of Government, however, were not received till the end of the year, and no change in procedure was consequently effected. In Sarun, on the other hand, the high percentage of last year, 38·7, has fallen to 10·8.

In the Bhagulpore Division a diversity of procedure with reference to inquiry and non-inquiry into cases is still visible,—the percentage of cases not inquired into in the districts of Monghyr and Bhagulpore, 21 and 18·3, being double that found in Maldah and Purneah, 9 and 9·2. I see no reason why the two first-mentioned districts should be allowed to differ in procedure so greatly, and, in my opinion, so injuriously to the people and to the police. In the Orissa and Chota Nagpore Divisions the percentage is very high, and has increased, compared with last year, in the Gurjhat and in Manbhoom.

80. The table given below shows the results as to non-investigation of cases under all classes of crimes.

It is, however, well known that cases in which inquiry is not made are chiefly those of lurking house-trespass and offences coming under serial numbers 35 and 42 (sections 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, and 460 of the Indian Penal Code). Looking, therefore, at the results in the districts mentioned above, under the two serial numbers referred to, the number of cases not investigated rises in all districts but one very considerably, as shown below:—

District.	Percentage of cases not investigated in all classes.	Percentage of cases not investigated under serials 35 and 42.
Bankoora	16	45.9
Bogra	21.2	48.1
Gya	33.2	57.1
Monghyr	21	65.9
Bhagulpore	18.3	55.8
Gurjhats	28.5	19.8
Munbhoom	27.8	51.2

Not only is this the case with districts in which the general percentage of cases not investigated is high, but in districts which show creditably with reference to the general percentage of non-investigations.

81. The number of non-investigations under serials 35 and 42 is very large in the following districts—

Districts.	General percentage.	Percentage under serials 35 and 42.
Burdwan	8.1	36.5
Howrah	2.8	29.5
24-Pergunnahs	8.8	53.0
Rajshahye	2.3	52.8
Furreedpore	7.8	40.8
Dacca	11.7	28.1
Purneah	9.2	34
Hazareebagh	12.9	38.9
Lohardugga	14	54.2

Under the two serials given above fall the most unpromising cases,—attempts at burglary without property being stolen, burglary with theft of small amounts of property not easy of recognition,—and very considerable allowance must be made for the police in not taking up such cases. Still, making every such allowance, I think most of the above figures show that much still remains to be done in many districts in the way of giving full effect to the orders of Government regarding denial of inquiry into cases under section 117, Code of Criminal Procedure.

82. It must, however, be borne in mind that the more cases are investigated, the more unfavourable are the results with regard to detection, as shown by figures, likely to be. With a large number of cases excluded from inquiry under section 117, the police have in the remaining numbers, as it were, selected cases on which to exercise their detective powers,—those which appear ab initio hopeless, or not likely to end in detection, being put aside. If, however, a large number of these cases, although unpromising, is brought under police investigation and inquiry, it is but natural to suppose that the detective results will not be so good as when such cases are excluded from inquiry. It is, however, in my opinion expedient to have such unpromising cases investigated. If they are investigated without result, we have at the worst a certain number of cases undetected. If they are not investigated, we have the same unsuccessful results as regards detection, plus discouragement to the villagers and encouragement to lazy police officers. The percentage of cases not inquired into during 1877 being about 2 per cent. less than that of 1876, it will not be a matter of surprise if the results of detection of the remaining cases are affected by the corresponding increase in the number of unpromising cases brought under inquiry.

83. The total number of cases reported during the year was 108,989. The number which occurred in previous years but was brought under inquiry in the present year was 1,643;—grand total 110,632. Deducting from this total the number of false cases (14,627) and of cases not inquired into (8,595), the net total of cases brought under investigation was 87,410, almost the same number as that of last year (87,015). In 33,266 cases was conviction obtained, or 38.05 against 39.2 per cent. of last year and 38.9 of 1875. This falling off, about 1 per cent., I attribute to the larger number of unpromising cases which has been brought under investigation, owing to the decrease in the number of cases in which inquiry was refused under section 117 C. P. C. But the result cannot be called satisfactory.

The total number of persons arrested during the year (including those pending at the close of 1876, 3,870, and transfers 55), was 94,318, as compared with 95,770 in the preceding year. Of these, 55,977, or 59·3 per cent., were convicted, as compared with 59 per cent. last year. The number of arrests under Magistrates' orders was almost the same as last year—22,467 as compared with 22,625.

The number of persons actually put on trial was 90,744, of whom 55,977, or 61·6 per cent., were convicted, against 62 per cent. of last year, and 31,003, or 34·1 per cent., were acquitted, against 33 per cent. of last year.

85: I give below the results of police action with reference to arrests and persons brought to trial under the six classes of crime:—

		I.	II.	III.	IV.	V.	VI.
Percentage of convictions to	{ 1877 ...	60	44·6	47	52·6	51·1	85·4
arrests ...	{ 1876 ...	59·8	43·7	49·5	54·5	51	84
Percentage of convictions to	{ 1877 ...	61·8	45·9	52·8	53·7	54	85·8
men brought to trial ...	{ 1876 ...	61·8	46·3	55·7	55·8	54·7	84·5

The result is still very unsatisfactory as compared with other provinces. I am, however, not without hope of improving it gradually.

There has been a slight diminution in the number of arrests made throughout the province. The only districts in which the increase in number of arrests is worthy of notice are Chittagong, where the number has risen from 822 in 1876 to 1,322 this year; Noakholly, where we have, as against 985 of 1876, 1,402; and Pooree, where the number of arrests has risen from 1,811 to 2,799. In Pooree and Chittagong the increased number of arrests is to some extent justified by an increased number of convictions; but in Noakholly the percentage of convictions to arrests has fallen from 66 in 1876 to 60. In the district of Durbhunga the number of arrests under the orders of Magistrates has doubled, being 1,101 to 551 of 1876. The percentage of convictions has remained the same.

86. The districts in which the percentage of convictions to arrests is satisfactory are—

Howrah ...	79 per cent.	Chittagong Hill Tracts ...	68 per cent.
Patna ...	72 „	Julpigoree ...	67 „
24-Pergunnahs ..	71 „	Chumparun ...	67 „
Burdwan ...	68 „	Chittagong ...	67 „

while in the districts named below the results were very far from satisfactory—

Hooghly ...	51 per cent.	Gurjhat ...	48 per cent.
Midnapore ...	50 „	Balasore ...	47 „
Durbhunga ...	50 „	Sarun ...	47 „
Jessore ..	48 „	Mymensingh ...	46 „
Backergunge	43 per cent.

In four of those districts, Jessore, Backergunge, Mymensingh, and Durbhunga, similarly unfavourable remarks were recorded last year.

In the following districts the percentage of convictions to men brought to trial was satisfactory:—

Howrah ...	81·8	24-Pergunnahs ...	72·2
Patna ...	75·1	Burdwan ...	70·0
Chittagong	69·4

while the results were very unfavourable in—

Hooghly ...	53·9	Jessore ...	50·3
Midnapore ...	51·8	Mymensingh ...	48·3
Sarun ...	52·7	Backergunge ...	45·8

In only one district in Bengal has the percentage reached 80 per cent. or upwards; in three 70 per cent. or upwards, in twenty 60 per cent. or upwards, in nineteen 50 per cent. or upwards, while in two districts the percentage has not reached 50.

87. The orders of Government, under which greater attention will be paid by Joint-Magistrates and Deputy Magistrates to the investigation of cases, will no doubt have a most beneficial effect on the prosecution of cases. There has not, however, been time as yet to judge of the effect which has been produced. Outposts will also be officered gradually by a better class of men under a scheme which I shall shortly submit to Government.

88. I append a table showing the results of investigation by the police into cognizable cases, both as regards cases and persons,—the result in each class in each district being shown separately. This table will at once show the class of crime in which the police operations have been most successful or the reverse, and will serve more especially to direct the attention of police officers to the weak points of police administration in their districts.

In considering the results shown above, it must be borne in mind that the action of the police with reference to arrests has been shown in conjunction with that of magisterial authorities. It is a well-known fact in police experience that cognizable cases which are not brought directly at the thana, but in which the aid of the law is sought in the Magistrate's cutcherry, are to a large extent false. They are brought in cutcherry generally at the instigation of mooktars, or village lawyers, who are well aware that a summary inquiry at the police-station would reveal the real nature of the charge. In such cases Magistrates are often placed at a disadvantage, and, from the evidence before them, are often compelled to issue process for the appearance of the accused. On the appearance of the accused the case assumes a very different appearance, and the result in many cases is a discharge, which tells against the police.

89. I give below a table showing the results of arrests made directly by the police and under orders of Magistrates. I do not wish in any way to contrast the results, but I think it only fair to the police to show the results for which they are directly responsible, separately from those for which they are only responsible,—as carrying out the orders of superior authority.

The above figures show, firstly, that out of all the persons committed by Magistrates 39 per cent. were acquitted and 61 per cent. convicted—(the result last year was 63·1 per cent. of convictions and 36·9 of acquittals); secondly, that more than half of the acquittals were in commitments made under class II, or serious offences against the person; thirdly, that the districts in which the jury system is established stand, with reference to the percentage of acquittals, high on the list, but not so high as to warrant any general inference as to the tendency of the jury to acquit. The number of acquittals by juries under class II is large, but the same fact is visible in other districts where the jury system has not been introduced.

91. The fact remains that 39 per cent. of persons committed, i.e. against whom Magistrates considered that, in the absence of rebutting evidence, there was sufficient proof of their guilt to justify their being put on their trial, 39 per cent., I say, of such persons were on trial acquitted at the sessions. Now, it is well known that acquittal follows at the sessions not so much on account of the strength of the evidence offered by the defence to rebut that adduced by the prosecution as on account of the defects in the evidence offered for the prosecution, such evidence having been already tested and considered sufficient by the committing officers. I believe that the reason for the ill success of sessions trials is due partially to defective commitments—commitments made by judicial officers on the strength of a prima facie case of guilt being made out against the accused, without full and complete inquiry being made. But a much more common reason for acquittals is the demand, both on the part of mofussil Judges and the High Court, of a far higher standard of proof than can be afforded by the testimony of native witnesses. The standard required by English law is based upon the general truthfulness of the population; but when the population who appear in courts are not, as a rule, truth-telling—when the witnesses between committal and trial of a case are exposed to all kinds of efforts to tamper with them—when at the trial they resort with the utmost facility to lying to escape what appears to them causeless cross-examination,—when such is the character of the witnesses, it is hopeless to expect from their testimony the same high standard of proof which is demanded in the English law courts and under English law. So long as the people are what they are, so long it seems to me will the application of such a judicial test of veracity as we require now, before accepting their statements in sessions trials, result in the failure of commitments and in the acquittal of accused persons. The standard we require is greatly in advance of the people, and will not be reached until their habits and nature materially change. I do not, of course, mean to say that witnesses speaking falsely are to be implicitly, and in all points, trusted; all that I mean to deprecate is the total rejection of witnesses' statements, because they are not wholly true, or because they are often, as a result of harassing cross-examination, largely false in many or minor particulars.

92. In connection with this unsatisfactory state of matters in sessions trials, I give below a table showing the results of appeals against orders of Magistrates in cognizable cases. It will be observed that in 1,651 cases out of 2,059 (2,096 — 37 pending) the orders of Magistrates were upheld, i.e. in 79·6 of the cases appealed were the Magistrates' orders declared to be correct, while in 365 cases they were pronounced incorrect. It seems to me that the ill success attending sessions trials, compared with the favourable results of appeals in Magistrates' cases, which are quite as difficult often to decide as sessions cases, arises chiefly from the witnesses not being tampered with as in sessions trials, or from not being subjected to a test of veracity which, in the case of Bengali witnesses, is too severe.

93. I beg to call the attention of Government to the fact as shown in this table, viz. that in only 196 of the 2,096 cases appealed to the Judge was Government represented before the appellate court. It seems not unreasonable to suppose that if Government had been represented, and the case for the court of first instance clearly put before the Judge, the result of appeals in cognizable cases would have been more favourable.

94. While I have little doubt that the failure of commitments is due largely to the standard of proof required in the courts of sessions being too high, I am willing to admit that sufficient attention is not paid to the prosecution of important cases by police officers. With regard to the apparent want of judicious prosecution of cases before the courts, I called for information as to the number of cases in which either the District Superintendent or his assistant had personally conducted sessions cases either before the Magistrate or before the Judge. The following table gives the result of my inquiry:—

95. It is thus perfectly evident that these important cases have not been personally conducted either before the Magistrates or at the sessions by District Superintendents. I have little doubt that, even making allowance for the difficulties above alluded to, in connection with the standard of proof required in sessions trials, beneficial results would follow, both with reference to the result of cases, and with regard to the training in criminal work of District and Assistant Superintendents, if more attention was paid by them to the personal management of important cases before the courts. It is clear that the management of almost all these heavy cases must have been left either to the Court Inspector, to Court Sub-Inspectors at sub-divisions, or in some cases to the investigating officers. I am aware that District Superintendents cannot conduct all, or even perhaps the majority of important cases before the courts, owing to their frequent absence from head-quarters; but they might, without any interference with the performance of their other duties, do a great deal more in the way of personally conducting important police cases in the courts than, as shown by the figures above, they now do. And to this matter attention will be directed.

In the Chittagong Hill Tracts, 24-Pergunnahs, and Chumparun the results have been good; while in Bankoora, Dacca, Furcedpore, and Mymensingh the operations of the police have been far from successful. Bankoora, again, is conspicuous for failure, the amount of property recovered being six per cent. I have sent a sharp Inspector to Bankoora, and have got rid of more than one inefficient officer there. I hope the results in 1878 may be better.

97. The following table exhibits the classification of true crime reported during the last five years:—

Classification of crime.

			1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.	1877.
Class I			2,929	2,606	2,755	2,700	2,818
" II			4,392	3,905	4,184	4,108	4,141
" III			24,531	28,615	23,957	22,280	20,667
" IV			4,126	6,495	9,862	9,073	8,812
" V			40,267	43,343	38,093	38,832	41,095
" VI			13,765	13,272	15,206	18,257	16,348
Other special laws			872	951	726	495	480

The number in classes I, II, and IV is very much the same as in 1876; in class III, representing serious offences against property, there is a very considerable decrease of 1,613 cases; in class V, minor offences against property, there is a large increase of 2,263 cases; and in class VI there is a decrease of 1,909 cases. The decrease in class III is satisfactory. I am not prepared to say that in reality more offences of the description of those under class V really took place in 1877 than in 1876, for it seems to me that the increase has been caused by greater care on the part of judicial officers in pronouncing cases to be false during the current year. There were fewer cases reported during 1877 than in 1876, the figures being 50,539, as compared with 52,876; but while in 1876 no less than 14,044 cases were pronounced false, only 9,444 were in 1877 so excluded from the returns. The decrease under class VI is more than explained by the fact that, in the present year, there were 2,901 prosecutions under the vagrancy sections of the law, as compared with 4,957 in 1876.

99. Under this head there has been a slight decrease of crime, there being 139 cases as compared with 160. In no district or division has the fluctuation of crime under this head been such as to require remark. Convictions were obtained in 68 cases, or 48·9 per cent., as compared with 83, or 52 per cent., of 1876; and of 173 persons brought to trial 90, or 52 per cent., were convicted, as against 57·7 per cent. last year.

100. The progressive decrease which, for a series of years, had been noticeable in this crime, and which was touched upon in last year's report (vide paragraph 100), has not been maintained during the present year, in which there has been an increase of 174 cases in the province. I do not, however, think that there has been an increase in reality; greater discrimination in striking off cases as false has, in my opinion, produced the apparently larger number of true cases. In 1876, 538 cases were excluded as false, against 370 during the present year. A change of procedure in one district—Midnapore—has caused a large number of cases to appear under this heading which would not otherwise have been included; and, on the whole, I think, we may say that crime under this head has been stationary, if, indeed, it has not slightly diminished in reality.

101. In the notoriously turbulent district of Backergunge the Magistrate has, it is reported, made vigorous use of the provisions of chapter XXXVIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure; but much still remains to be done before we can congratulate ourselves on having put down this serious crime.

102. It is with reference to this crime that the culpability of those classes who ought to aid the police in preserving order, and who do not so assist, is conspicuous, and equally conspicuous with their culpability is the impunity with which they continue to commit crime. So long as the zemindars can abet and instigate such crimes, without being punished in their persons for so doing, so long it will be extremely difficult for the police to put a stop to them; but although much assistance can be given by Magistrates acting vigorously under chapter XXXVII against landholders and their amlah, such measures of repression are not taken to the extent which is required for the preservation of peace.

The proportion of cases in which conviction followed trial is unsatisfactory, the percentage being 41·1—the lowest percentage obtained since 1871.

103. As has been the case in almost all classes of crime, for the reason given in paragraph 75, the number of false cases under this class also has very considerably decreased, the percentage being 15·1 against 21·7 last year. In some districts, however, the percentage is still large, viz.—

Rungpore, where it is	56·2
Pooree, " "	55·3
Cuttack, " "	28·2
Backergunge, " "	23·4
Jessore, " "	23·2

Inquiry will be made whether the orders contained in Circular No. 1 have in these districts been fully attended to. The percentage of conviction of persons is almost the same as last year:—

1876	60·4
1877	60·6

The Dacca division still maintains its pre-eminence in turbulence, but during the present year there has been a large increase of cases in the district of Midnapore, which is worthy of remark. The explanation of such increase will be found in its proper place, when I review crime divisionally.

104. The largest number of cases occurred in the following districts:—

DISTRICTS.	Cases reported.				Declared false.				Convictions obtained.

105. The most satisfactory results were obtained in the following districts:—

while the results were unfavourable in the following districts:—

Midnapore	107	24	261	144
Furreedpore	157	52	331	219
Mymensingh	196	28	383	178

Durbhunga	24	11	102	50
Poorce	21	7	192	63
Lohardugga	11	3	66	23

Of these, the districts of Furreedpore, Mymensingh, Gya, Purneah, and Cuttack were unfavourably commented on in last year's report.

106. The results of sessions trials have not improved, there having been 257 acquittals to 145 convictions. In no division but Rajshahye have the convictions exceeded or equalled the acquittals. In the Presidency division there have been 65 acquittals to 20 convictions, in Dacca 83 to 77, in Chittagong 23 acquittals with no convictions, in Patna 55 to 24, in Bhagulpore 11 to 0, in Chota Nagpore 2 to 0, in Burdwan 1 to 0. These results are very unsatisfactory. It must be remembered, however, that in such riot cases connected with land, it is extremely difficult to get the evidence of unbiassed witnesses; witnesses even when procured are easily tampered with, and bought over to deny what they said before the police or before the Magistrate; those who do adhere to their statements are subjected to most stringent cross-examination from barristers and vakeels, whom the landholders, the parties generally interested in such cases, invariably employ (and Bengali witnesses, as a rule, stand severe cross-examination badly); and the whole influence of the zemindars is brought to bear in every way against the successful prosecution of such cases, whether by intimidation, bribery, or corruption. With such powerful adverse influences to contend against, success in prosecuting riot cases at the sessions is not easy of attainment.

Class I.

107. BURDWAN DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1876.	Cases reported in 1877.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.		Acquitted.
					Cases.	Persons.

Howrah	44	48	2	144	29	71
Total	265	379	29	1,120	178	680	3

There has been an increase in the number of offences under this class which is almost entirely due to a large increase in Midnapore under the head of rioting or unlawful assembly. The results are slightly below those of last year, the percentage of convictions in cases being 50·8 as compared with 53·9, and of persons 59·7 against 60·2.

108. The only heading which requires remark is that of rioting, &c. As above remarked, there is an increase of offences under this heading specially noticeable in the district of Midnapore. In that district there were no less than 107 true cases as compared with 28 last year. These figures would lead to the inference that the district was in a very disturbed state; but it is explained that this increase is due, partly at least, to a difference in the interpretation and application of the law by different magisterial officers. It appears that sections 143 and 147 have been more extensively worked to put down disputes about land; cases under section 447 and other dhan-cutting cases apparently having been brought under the operation of the previously mentioned sections, when the numbers of persons engaged warranted their application. The cases appear generally to have been of trivial importance, one only deserving notice. In this case a number of religious mendicants made an attack on some servants of a rice merchant. Seven persons, including the chief of the mendicants, were convicted.

109. In the district of Hooghly there has also been a considerable increase of cases. In one, serious hurt was inflicted, the rioters being adherents of rival zemindars who quarrelled about some paddy. The Commissioner notices that in only four cases of threatened rioting were recognizances or security to keep the peace demanded,—a very small number considering that there were 21 true cases of actual riot or illegal assembly during the year.

110. In Beerbhoom also there has been an increase, the cases being 11 against three. In one case, in which serious hurt was caused, 35 persons were sent up for trial, and all were convicted, three being sentenced to imprisonment, and 32 being fined. Either the sentences passed were inadequate to the offence committed, or the offence must have been much exaggerated.

111. In Howrah it is satisfactory to learn that the knowledge that dhan-cutting cases will be taken up by the police, and not treated wholesale as matters for action in a civil court, has led to a decrease in the number of offences of this description coming under this class.

112. The results of police action were satisfactory in Burdwan, where convictions followed in 35 out of 44 cases, 76·9 per cent. of persons sent up being convicted. In Hooghly, Howrah, and Midnapore the results were unsatisfactory. In Midnapore 24 cases out of 107 resulted in conviction. I cannot say whether this result is to be attributed to the new procedure adopted; if it is, the advantage of following this procedure is doubtful. I should think that convictions would with much greater difficulty be obtained under sections 143 and 147 than under 447, the common object of the persons accused, and the fact of their acting in pursuance of such common object being often difficult to establish.

Class I.

113. PRESIDENCY DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1876.	Cases re- ported in 1877.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.		Acquitted.
					Cases.	Persons.
24-Pergunnahs	83	85	5	433	52	303	123

Jessore	114	143	28	426	64	249	174
Moorsshedabad	86	66	4	234	21	116	93
Total	365	418	52	1,554	193	969	528

Crime in this class has been almost stationary, during the year 366 true cases having occurred as compared with 365 in 1876.

None of the cases of coining were of special importance. Of 22 cases which occurred convictions were obtained in 10, and of 20 persons arrested and sent up for trial 12 were convicted and 8 acquitted.

114. Under the head of rioting and unlawful assembly there has been an increase of 15 cases in the division. The only district in which there has been any increase demanding notice is Nuddea, where there were 22 cases in excess of the number of cases which took place in 1876. Most of these cases were unlawful assemblies, not riots, and were of trifling importance in their objects and results. There were seven cases attended with loss of life, four of which occurred in Jessore, and the remaining three in the districts of 24-Pergunnahs, Nuddea, and Jessore, one case in each district. In two cases, one of which took place in Nuddea, and the other in Jessore, serious hurt was caused. Most of these cases had their origin in trifling disputes. In one of the Nuddea cases a zemindar, Shibu Dass Banerjee, in whose interest the riot occurred, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of Rs. 1,000. In the Moorshedabad case, in which loss of life occurred, the contending parties were neither rich nor influential, being mere ryots. Neither tulwars nor spears were used, and if the police had only acted as promptly and as fairly as they did in all other cases throughout the year, the riot would never have occurred. The dispute, it appears, took place about a tank; a constable was deputed to preserve the peace, while proceedings were being taken in the Magistrate's court to bind over both parties to abstain from violence. The Sub-Inspector of the thana removed the constable from the tank meanwhile, and a riot took place in which one man was hit with a lattee and killed. The Sub-Inspector was degraded for his culpable conduct.

115. The results of police action in riot cases are shown below:—

	Cases.	Number of cases in which convictions were obtained.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
24-Pergunnahs	57	35	410	285	109

Jessore	89	39	391	220	168
Moorshedabad	36	12	198	95	81

As compared with last year, the results are not so good in the 24-Pergunnahs and in Jessore, in both of which districts the percentage of convictions is lower than in 1876; while in Nuddea and Moorshedabad the percentage has improved. In both Jessore and Moorshedabad the percentage of convictions is very small.

Total							...	345	420	113	1,040	161	670	345

There has been a decrease of crime generally in this class, and it is satisfactory to find that such decrease is visible chiefly in cases of rioting and unlawful assembly. The most marked decrease is in Pubna, in which 75 cases were reported as against 109 last year, and as compared with an average of 226 per annum during the last five years. This decrease is attributed to the adoption of stringent preventive measures by binding down persons to keep the peace, and by appointing special constables. There was one serious case of rioting in the Serajgunge sub-division, in which one man was killed; one man was sentenced to death, and seven to various terms of imprisonment. The report does not mention whether the rival zemindars, in whose interests this riot took place, were punished; and it may be presumed that, as usual in such cases, they got off scot-free.

117. The Magistrate of Pubna notices that the agrarian dispute between landlord and tenant has now almost ceased to be a cause for disturbance, the chief elements for dispute now being with regard to the rights of different shareholders, quarrels among villagers, and claims of rival zemindars to newly-formed churs. This is so far satisfactory; but when rival zemindars quarrel, the ryots come in for the consequences of their disputes in the criminal courts; and, as regards crime, disputes between rival landlords are generally more prolific of foudari cases than combination of ryots not to pay rents, except in very exceptional instances.

The results of police action, on the whole, were fair. The best results were attained in Rungpore and Bogra;—in the former 125 persons out of 168, and in the latter 175 out of 215, sent up for trial, being convicted.

There has been a slight increase, on the whole, in crime under this class; but such increase is more in name than in reality, being due, I have no doubt, to the operation of the circular regarding false cases elsewhere referred to. The number of cases reported is less than that of last year, but the number of cases struck off last year as false being considerably larger than in 1877, viz. 199 as compared with 107, the number of cases left this year for investigation has increased.

119. As usual, the great majority of cases in this class fall under the head of rioting or unlawful assembly, 802 of the whole number of 941 true cases having been of this description. The increase in rioting cases, which was pointed out last year by the Commissioner to be steadily taking place in Dacca division, still continues. "Of course," says the Commissioner, "a large number of these cases are very petty, and call for no remark. The origin of nearly all is, as usual, disputes about land among co-sharing zemindars and talookdars, feuds between ryots as to the possession of land, quarrels arising out of caste questions and other social matters. Putting aside, however, the petty nature of the majority of these cases, it is not satisfactory to find that, notwithstanding all our endeavours to check them, they are steadily and yearly increasing. The inhabitants of Eastern Bengal have always had an evil reputation for turbulence, vindictiveness, quarrelsomeness, and a strong tendency to take the law into their own hands on very slight provocation; and this no doubt they will continue to have until an improvement takes place in their moral condition." It is satisfactory to find that in Backergunge and Furreedpore there has been a slight diminution in the number of cases. The diminution is ascribed by the Commissioner to the action taken by the Magistrate in demanding recognizances and security to keep the peace, the result of which has been, in the words of the Magistrate, that "no man here remembers a rice-cutting season to have passed away so peaceably and with so few riots as the one just finished." In this district recognizances and security to keep the peace were demanded from 604 persons, and this policy might with great benefit be adopted in the other districts of the division. In the district of Mymensingh, in which there was almost the same number of cases of riot, &c., as in Backergunge, recognizances were demanded from only 26 persons; in Dacca, with 127 cases of riot, only 40 persons were bound down to keep the peace; and in Tipperah, with 123 cases of unlawful assembly, &c., only 38 persons were so treated. If such beneficial results followed in Backergunge from the adoption of this preventive policy by the Magistrate, I have no doubt similar effects will be produced in the other districts of the division, if the same course is followed; and I imagine that the moral improvement in the condition of the people will be materially hastened by bringing forcibly before them the certainty of physical pains and penalties following breaches of the peace and of the law.

120. There were 25 cases of riot attended with loss of life, as compared with 27 in 1876. Of these—

50 occurred in Dacca.	12 occurred in Backergunge.
3 " " Furreedpore.	2 " " Mymensingh.
3 occurred in Tipperah.

In mostly all these cases disputes about the possession of land caused the disturbances. The results of trials were satisfactory, but none of the cases require special remark.

121. An important case of coining was brought to light during the year. A gang of 12 men had carried on this trade for upwards of 10 years, manufacturing the spurious coins in Dacca, and then importing them into Mymensingh, where they were sold for, or put into, circulation. Since the close of the year 7 out of 12 men arrested have been convicted and punished. The case was very intelligently worked out by the police, and the investigating officers deserve credit for their exertions.

There has been an increase of crime under this class in the district of Noakholly, the increase being chiefly visible under offences against public justice and rioting or unlawful assembly. "No special reason," the Commissioner observes, "has been assigned by the Magistrate for the increase of this particular class of crime, but it would appear that petty quarrels about lands, the boundary marks of which were washed away by the storm-wave of 1876, led often to disputes, while most of the offences against public justice were cases of escapes from lawful custody, which, in the absence of any express explanation, can be attributed only to negligence on the part of the custodian."

There was only one serious case of rioting in which loss of life occurred. It took place in the district of Chittagong, and was the result of a dispute about land. It is discreditable to the police, or to the prosecution, that not one of the eleven men forwarded were punished, no sufficient proof of guilt being obtainable.

The Commissioner adds, "The district crime reports are meagre, and I am myself new to the division and unable to supplement deficiencies from personal knowledge."

There has been a slight decrease in crime under this class, and the results as regards convictions in cases are better than last year, being 58 per cent. as compared with 54·5 in 1876. The percentage of convictions of persons was slightly below that of last year, being 57 as against 58·8.

Under "rioting" there has been a decrease of cases in all districts of the division, except in Shahabad, where there has been an increase of 37 cases, all of a petty nature. There have been no cases of rioting connected with indigo during the year.

No cases calling for special remark are mentioned in the divisional report.

The results of prosecutions were 48·8 per cent. of convictions in cases, and 52·8 of persons—not so good results as followed in 1876.

Cases of coining have diminished, there having been 14 as compared with 25 last year. In one case the Patna police having got intelligence of the operations of a gang of coiners in the city, watched their opportunity and arrested two men in the very act, with all their implements, counterfeit coin, and base metal in various stages of preparation. They were convicted and transported for life.

There has been a slight increase, on the whole, in cases under this class. The increase, however, is not such as to excite remark, except under riot or unlawful assembly, in the district of Bhagulpore. In this district there have been 47 true cases, as compared with 18 of 1876. "All cases," the Commissioner observes, "originated in land disputes, or the possession of grain, &c. They occurred chiefly in the Gangetic portion of the district. The rents there are low, and the ryots very substantial. The landlords are poor and in debt, and have been trying to raise rents. Hence occasional collisions take place. There does not appear to have been any very serious case of rioting."

125. In connection with an observable decrease of cases relating to stamps, it is noted by the Commissioner, as a complaint of one of his district officers, that civil courts will not take the trouble to report the cases of evasion of stamp duty, which certainly come before them. "One of the moonsifs, whose attention he had drawn to the Government circular on the subject, told him that he did not consider he was compelled to comply with the circular, unless it was enjoined on him through his immediate superior, the Judge." No doubt, the Judge, if the matter was reported to him, would bring the moonsif to a sense of his duty.

126. The result of cases before the judicial authorities has not been so good as last year. Convictions were obtained in 77 cases, or 42 per cent., as compared with 57 per cent. last year; and of 638 persons put on trial, 57·3 per cent. were convicted, as compared with 63·7 of 1876.

None of the cases call for special notice.

Crime under this class is always light in this division.

None of the cases were of such importance as to demand special notice.

The results, both as regards persons and cases, were satisfactory.

129. According to the figures, the number of crimes under this class has been almost the same as that of 1876, viz. 4,141, as compared with 4,108. The number of cases reported was considerably less than in 1876; but, owing to the change in striking off false cases, previously referred to, only 927 cases were excluded as false, compared with 1,385 in 1876. It seems tolerably clear that, owing to judicial officers being now compelled to classify C false forms sent in by the police, not nearly so many are now struck off as false as formerly. This is evident when we compare the number of cases declared false under some of the principal headings of this class.

Cases declared false :—

	1876.	1877.

131. There has been a decrease, under this heading, noticeable chiefly in murders by poison and other murders, but the fluctuation is small:—

Total ...	312	349	302	302	342	315

The results of police action have been extremely unsatisfactory; in fact, they are worse than has been recorded for several years past. Compared with 1876, the results are as follows:—

	Cases.	Convictions.	Percentage.	Persons arrested.	Convicted.	Percentage.
1876 ...	342	141	41·2	994	273	27·4
1877 „	315	105	30·4	828	208	25·1

The greatest number of acquittals took place at the sessions, where 228 persons committed by Magistrates were acquitted; and by the Magistrates themselves 179 out of 828 arrested by the police were discharged.

132. Analysing these figures more closely, it appears that of 801 persons who actually appeared before the Magistrates 72 remained pending either before the police or the Magistrate. Of the remaining 729, 179 were discharged, that is, the evidence produced by the police was not considered by the Magistrates sufficient to warrant committal of 24·4 per cent. of the men sent up. In the case of 546 men, however, of the 729 sent up, i.e. in nearly 75 per cent., the judicial officers in the lower courts considered that the proof of guilt of the accused was sufficient to justify their committal. This opinion of the Magistrates, with reference to the value of the proof adduced against the accused, was in 208 instances confirmed by the Sessions Court; in 228 instances it was not so confirmed, the accused being acquitted; and in 110 cases the result is not yet known. These results strikingly illustrate the remarks made above as to sessions trials.

133. The four cases shown occurred in the districts of Jessore, Julpigorce, Chittagong, and Noakholly. In the Jessore case no clue was obtained; in that of Julpigorce three persons were committed, but acquitted at the sessions; both the cases in the Chittagong division were successful, and of 17 persons brought to trial 12 were convicted at the sessions, five being acquitted.

134. Although the diminution in this crime, above noted, is satisfactory, the results obtained in the cases which occurred during the year are far from good. In only two of the nine cases ascertained to have been committed were convictions obtained, and of 15 persons who appeared before the Magistrates four were discharged by the Magistrates and 10 committed to the sessions. At the sessions, however, only two were convicted and eight acquitted. These unsatisfactory results followed in the districts given below:—

Midnapore ...	2	...	3	...	2

135. More than half of the cases under this head, viz. 11, occurred in the Dacca division, and no less than 10 were reported from Backergunge. Of these 10 however seven on investigation were reported false. It was noticed last year that the greatest number of cases of murder in this form occurred in Backergunge; and if seven out of 10 reported during the present year were false, it is clear that the Backergunge people, who are notorious for getting up false cases, have added this description of false charge to their other methods of annoying their enemies.

The results were very unsatisfactory. In only three cases out of 19 was conviction obtained, and of 37 persons who appeared before the Magistrate only six were finally convicted, 13 having been discharged and 13 having been acquitted after commitment to the sessions.

136. There was a decrease, throughout the province, of 13 cases. In the Dacca division, which, as usual, heads the list, with its districts notorious for murder, there has been a large increase of cases in Backergunge, where there have been no less than 44 cases, as compared with 24 of last year. In this district occurred more than double the number of murders shown in any other district of Bengal. The districts in which the largest number of murders took place are—

In 105 cases out of the 283 ascertained to have occurred the police succeeded in finally obtaining conviction at the sessions—a result inferior to that of last year. In the following districts there was total failure as regards convictions:—

while in those following the results were good:—

Pubna	8	...	Darjeeling	7	2
Lohardugga	10	1	Backergunge	39	19

In the following districts the result of sessions trials was most unfavourable:—

Furreedpore	8	11		21	95
Tipperah	2	14		—	—
Chittagong	0	3

In these 10 districts the results at the sessions were lamentable, and police action is accordingly condemned. I compare the result of the sessions with what took place before the Magistrates in these districts:—

District.	Persons sent up.	Discharged by Magistrate.	Committed.
Midnapore	38	13	25
Howrah	8	0	8
Jessore	15	2	13
Dacca	20	5	15

Chittagong	3	0	3
Noakholly	8	3	15
Patna	19	2	17
Sonthal Pergunnahs	7	2	5
	173	32	141

That is to say, with regard to 14·7 only of the persons sent up by the police did the Magistrates consider the evidence furnished by the police insufficient to warrant the accused being put on their trial, while with reference to above 85 per cent. of the persons arrested the Magistrates considered that the police had adduced sufficient evidence to justify the committal of the accused. At the sessions, however, with reference only to 18 per cent. of the persons committed did the Judge or jury consider the evidence sufficient for conviction.

No figures could more strikingly show the difference of standard of the value of evidence required for committal and for conviction.

137. There is again a slight decrease in the number of cases, there being 51 as compared with 55, and the results are better than last year :—

Attempts at murder.

			Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1876	55	17	78	31	20
1877	51	23	76	32	32

138. There has been a decrease in cases, as compared with last year, the number being 199 as against 203. The results have been better than 1876 :—

Culpable homicide.

			Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1876	203	79	468	164	214
1877	199	93	486	187	238

Of 486 persons who appeared before the Magistrate 101 were discharged and 348 committed. Of those committed, however, only 57 per cent. were convicted and 43 per cent. acquitted.

In the following districts the results have been satisfactory :—

		Cases.	Convictions.			Cases.	Convictions.

In eleven districts—Hooghly, Howrah, Jessore, Dinagepore, Bogra, Pubna, Chittagong, Sarun, Bhagulpore, Cuttack, and Pooree—in which there was an aggregate number of 40 cases, there was not a single conviction obtained.

Rather better, both as to cases and persons, than last year, but still not much to boast of.

Unnatural offences.

140. There has been a slight increase in the number of cases, and the results are inferior to those of last year :—

			Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1876	51	22	51	26	23
1877	56	20	57	22	30

This result is chiefly due to the failure of cases in the Dacca division, as below :—

Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
12	2	14	2	11

141. There is an increase of 23 cases throughout the province, which is visible chiefly in the Patna division, where there were 80 cases as compared with 63 in 1876.

The results, as shown below, are not quite so good as those of last year with regard to cases, but considerably better with reference to persons:—

In the Patna division, the home of this description of crime, the result of police action was good, except in the case of Mozufferpore, where out of 15 cases conviction followed in only four.

142. There is an inconsiderable increase of 31 cases throughout the province, with improved result of police action, both as to persons and cases:—

Grievous hurt to extort confession

144. Crime under this head may be said to have remained stationary, —there being 634 cases as compared with 627 of 1877. The results, this year, have been better than last year, as shown below:—

The diminution in the number of false cases is very marked, and the cause of this, no doubt, is the necessity of greater care in excluding cases as false which has resulted from the orders contained in Circular No. 1 of 1877.

This falling off in the percentage of false cases is noticeable in every district, except Dinagepore, which still keeps up its reputation for false cases, eight out of eleven being, during the year under report, so shown.

Results were good in the districts given below:—

145. The number of cases this year is the same as in 1876; and the results, although rather better than last year, are still unsatisfactory. The detection of this crime is extremely difficult. Every effort is made to warn people in the Patna division, where cases principally occur, of the danger of fraternizing with strangers on the road, who may claim acquaintance with, or wish to accompany, them on journeys. But travellers pay but little attention to these warnings: they allow strangers to accompany them, and, when food is offered by these strangers, it is accepted, with the usual result. After the meal the travellers wake up to find that they have been plundered by the strangers who have drugged them.

The results are as follows:—

	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1876	15	3	19	6	13
1877	15	5	23	9	10

Here, again, we find failure at sessions trials. Of 59 persons sent up, the Magistrates discharged six only, and found evidence sufficient to warrant committal of 46. Of these 46, however, only 18 were found guilty at the sessions, and 28 were acquitted.

Hurt by dangerous weapon.

147. The results of the year's operations compare unfavourably with 1876, as shown below:—

The results in the divisions of Rajshahye, Chittagong, Patna, and Cuttack are specially unfavourable. In the district of Rajshahye out of 39 true cases conviction was obtained in only four, and of 31 persons sent up for trial 18 were discharged by Magistrates. In the district of Sarun, of 32 persons sent up for trial, 30 persons were acquitted by Magistrates; in Pooree of 28 sent up, 20 were acquitted; and in Hooghly 26 were discharged out of 35 brought to trial.

Such results in Magistrates' cases tell most unfavourably against the police of the districts mentioned.

In none of the districts were the results so favorable as to deserve special notice. In Furreedpore, Dacca, Nuddea, and the 24-Pergunnahs the best results are visible.

There has been a slight decrease in the number of cases, but the results have fallen off with the decrease in the cases reported. The percentage of cases detected to cases reported is only 28·6, as compared with 31·1 of last year, and of persons convicted 41·6, as against 45·8 of 1876—unsatisfactory results, attributable chiefly to the signal want of success under murder and culpable homicide.

There were 37 true cases of murder, as compared with 39 last year, classified as follows :—

Murder by robbers	2
„ „ poison	1
Other murders	34
				37

The two cases of murder by robbers occurred in Midnapore. In the first case two persons were committed, one of whom was acquitted by the Judge, and the other by the High Court. The second case was pending at the close of the year.

The case of murder by poison occurred in Beerbhoom, and was unsuccessful.

The cases of other murders were distributed as follows :—

False cases	3
				34

154. With the exception of Burdwan, the results in all the districts of the division are lamentable. In 25 cases of murder convictions were obtained in only five cases. In these 25 cases 65 persons were arrested. Of these 21 were discharged by the Magistrate, and 39 were committed to the sessions. Of 32 persons whose cases were decided, 27 were acquitted either by the Judge or the High Court, and five were convicted.

155. In connection with these deplorable results, I can only refer to my remarks last year in paragraph 149 of the report for 1876. The Commissioner remarks:—“ In the sessions court a case of murder very often breaks down in consequence of contradictions in the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution, and on this point I cannot help agreeing with the Assistant Magistrate of Contai that the main cause of the acquittals is that the witnesses come from the dregs of the people. Furthermore, they may be tampered with between the committal and the trial. The examinations before the Magistrate, conducted without any knowledge of the place of the occurrence, or sufficient information of the circumstances which led to the crime, are perfunctory. Uneducated villagers, ignorant of the procedure of our courts, and unaccustomed to cross-examination, fail to remember exactly transactions seen under excitement. For this reason, if witnesses are examined where the crime took place very shortly after the occurrence, such examination tends greatly to recal and impress on their memories the facts that transpired in their presence." There is a great deal of force in these remarks, and the advantages of local investigations by Magistrates have been clearly pointed out by Government. But it must be remembered that such local investigations by judicial officers often do harm, unless the courts bear in mind that in many, if not in all, difficult cases witnesses will not tell the whole truth when first examined. They will suppress much of what they know, will distort much of what they have seen, and give particulars of what they have never seen. They will, in fact, answer a judicial officer just as they will answer an executive officer when seeking information on the most simple matters, that is, in any way rather than a straightforward way. These defective or misleading statements once reduced to writing by a judicial officer are looked upon as a record of all that the witnesses know, and if afterwards they vary in their statements, they are at once looked upon as unworthy of belief; whereas, as a matter of fact, their subsequent statements contain very frequently more truth than what was recorded at first. It is an axiom with many judicial officers that the statement first made by a witness is the most trustworthy. It is an axiom which may safely be acted on in a country where the first impulse of a witness on being asked a question is to give a truthful reply. It cannot, in my opinion, be acted upon in this country, where the impulse of the vast majority of witnesses is to tell as little of the truth as they possibly can. Almost every witness in this country in a difficult case is either an unwilling or a too willing witness, and hence the danger of placing too much reliance upon the statements first made before a judicial officer at a local investigation as containing the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. I appreciate fully the dangers which may arise, and do arise from witnesses being tutored before they come before a judicial officer to give their evidence some time after the occurrence. All that I wish to point out is the opposite danger of believing that a witness not tutored, and examined at once after the commission of an offence, will tell all he knows, and that any statement subsequently made is necessarily the result of tutoring.

156. The most important case, which occurred in Midnapore, was the murder of Nobin Chunder Nag, a zemindar, who had adopted a course of action towards his ryots which rendered them desperate, and led them deliberately to murder him. The whole case has been already before the public. The accused, who were convicted by the Sessions Judge, were acquitted by the High Court, who severely censured the police for their action in investigating the case. The view taken by the High Court was, however, not adopted by Government who, in letter No. 1083, dated the 28th February 1878, expressed the opinion that the manifest failure of justice was not owing to any want of care and attention bestowed on the investigation by the local officers.

Another extraordinary case also occurred in Midnapore. A boy of about 10 years was murdered with the view of procuring the pregnancy of a childless woman, which, it was supposed, would result from the performance of a ceremony in which the flesh of the eldest child of a deceased mother was to be burnt. Two persons were committed, one of whom was convicted and capitally sentenced.

157. The following figures give the results obtained in cases of culpable homicide. It will be observed that, as in murder, the results of culpable homicide cases in Hooghly and Howrah have been most unfavourable. None of the cases require special notice:—

District.	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.

158. There has been a considerable increase in the number of rape cases, there having been 26 true cases, as compared with seven last year. The increase is chiefly visible in Midnapore, in which 13 true cases, or half the number in the division, took place : convictions were secured only in five cases.

159. There is still a decrease observable in kidnapping cases, there being 34 against 38 of last year. The results obtained are very unsatisfactory, only 19 per cent. of persons brought to trial being convicted.

There has been a decrease of 47 cases in this class, as compared with last year, and of 113 cases, as compared with 1875,—a satisfactory state of matters. With reference to results, there has been a slight falling off as regards convictions in cases, 37·5, as compared with 39 per cent., while the percentage of conviction of persons has slightly improved, 43·9 as compared with 40 per cent. last year.

161. There has been a large decrease in cases of murder, there being 23 cases as compared with 49 last year. Of these, two were cases of murder by robbers, 21 other murders. There were no cases of murder by poison during the year.

Unfortunately, with the satisfactory decrease in the number of murders, there has been a very marked falling off in the proportion of cases detected and persons convicted. Of the 23 cases accepted as true, only five were detected, and of the 61 persons arrested, including two of the previous year, 10 only were convicted during the year. Five cases, in which 19 persons were accused, remained undecided at the close of the year. In all the districts the results are very unsatisfactory.

The two cases of murder by robbers occurred in the 24-Pergunnahs. In one case a municipal constable, known to carry a small sum of money always about with him, was decoyed into a lonely place and there murdered; in the other a prostitute was murdered for the sake of her ornaments. In the first case a clue was obtained, and three men were committed to the sessions, but they were acquitted. In the second case a man, arrested on suspicion, was discharged by the Magistrate.

Under “other murders,” the case of Ghunnoo Halder is worth remark. He strangled his wife, throw her body into the fields, and then gave information to the police charging a naib and some other persons with the crime. He was acquitted by the jury, but, on the case being referred to the High Court, he was convicted and hanged.

In Jessore, on the 2nd of January, the body of an unknown Mahomedan was found in an empty house in the town. A prolonged inquiry was made in this case, first by the local police, and subsequently by a special detective; but although every effort was made, and strong suspicion fell upon one of the bad characters of the place, sufficient evidence of his guilt could not be procured.

162. The number of cases of culpable homicide is almost the same as last year, being 23 against 24. In 13 of these, convictions were obtained, 26 persons being punished—a result slightly better than that of last year. In the 24-Pergunnahs, as last year, the result of trial of cases was satisfactory, conviction following in seven out of 10 cases. With regard to persons, the result was not so good, 16 being convicted to 27 acquitted; a large number of acquittals in one case of rioting led to this unfavourable result.

163. The results of trial in rape-cases was as unsatisfactory as in other divisions of the province.

164. Under “grievous hurt” convictions were obtained in 35 out of 47 cases decided, the results being especially satisfactory in the 24-Pergunnahs, where 13 out of 14 cases were prosecuted to a successful issue.

165. There has been an increase of 12 cases under the heading kidnapping or abduction. None of the cases, however, call for special notice. The result both in regard to cases and persons was slightly better than last year:—

As last year, there is a considerable decrease in the number of cases reported, but the tendency to greater caution in striking off cases as false keeps the number of true cases almost stationary. In 1875, 1876, and 1877, the number of true cases has been, respectively, 531, 527, 506, although the cases struck off as false in each year have been 387, 297, 164.

The results are rather better than last year, but are still unsatisfactory. Dinagopore is still conspicuous for failure in cases under this class, only 23 persons out of 76 brought to trial being convicted.

167. Under the heading of murder there were 45 true cases, as compared with 49 last year, classified as follows:—

Murder by dacoits	1
„ by robbers	1
„ by poison	2
„ by other means	41
Total	45

Three cases of former years were brought to trial during the year, and 46 cases in all were decided, of which 25 resulted in conviction. Of 95 persons put on trial, 48 were convicted and 38 acquitted. The results in Pubna, where eight out of 10 persons were convicted, and in Darjeeling, where seven out of nine were punished, were good. In Dinagopore and Rajshahye the results were satisfactory; in the former district eight out of 13, and in the latter 13 out of 33 persons brought to trial being acquitted.

The case of murder by dacoits took place in the Western Dooars of Julpigoree. Dacoits broke into the house of a villager, plundered property, and so severely beat his father, that he died. Three Meechis were committed to the sessions, but were acquitted.

The case of murder by robbers occurred in Nattore, district Rajshahye. A prostitute was murdered by a Mahomedan, who passed the night with her, for the sake of her ornaments. He shared the plunder with a friend. Both men were traced; the murderer was hanged, and his friend was imprisoned for three years under section 411.

The cases of murder by poison took place in the Dinagopore and Rungpore districts. In the first case the murderer, who put some poison into the food of an enemy, was sentenced to death at the sessions, but was acquitted by the High Court. The second case, in which a husband poisoned his wife's paramour, was pending at the close of the year.

The other murders are classified as follows:—

Wives murdered by husbands	10
Husbands murdered by wives or wives' paramours	3
Paramours murdered by husbands or relatives	6

In one of these cases in Rajshahye, a Hindoo school-boy having discovered a criminal intimacy between his wife and a Mahomedan servant, asked his parents to interfere. They gave him no help, and he then laid the case before his school-fellows, who gave it as their opinion that death was the proper punishment. He, therefore, waited his opportunity, and, as in the well known Hooghly case, killed the woman. Every effort was made by influential persons in the Pootia rajbari to obtain his acquittal; but although the corpse was burned by his father-in-law, and an attempt made to prove that the cause of death was cholera, the young murderer was convicted and transported for life.

168. The number of cases of culpable homicide is almost the same as in 1876, and the results are still very unsatisfactory, only 33 persons out of 84 being convicted.

169. The results in rape cases continue unsatisfactory, although there is a diminution in the number of cases reported. The Commissioner justly observes:—"Charges of rape are, no doubt, as some of the Magistrates observe, difficult to prove; but I fear the police often too hastily conclude that the offence complained of is rape, when, in fact, it is only adultery."

In Rungpore, especially, the result of action was total failure, every person sent up for trial being acquitted.

170. Under the heading Causing hurt to extort confession, &c., in which there were three true cases, the police in two cases figured as defendants. In one case a punchayet and two constables were charged,—the constables being convicted, and the punchayet acquitted. In the second case a sub-inspector, one constable, and two pound mohurirs, were accused. Discharged by the Deputy Magistrate before whom the case first came, they were committed to the Sessions by order of the Judge and convicted. On appeal, however, to the High Court they were acquitted.

171. The results of cases under other headings do not demand special notice. In the abduction case noticed last year in paragraph 160 of the report, the Sub-Inspector of Police was sentenced to four years' rigorous imprisonment, and the accomplices to two years' imprisonment. The sentences were reduced on appeal to two years in the case of the Sub-Inspector, and one year in the case of the others. The zemindar, through whose conduct the whole case arose, and who absconded, was also committed to the Sessions, but was acquitted. No particulars are given as to whether criminal proceedings were taken against him for absconding.

There has been a slight increase of crime in this class, on the whole, throughout the division; but, as in other classes, this increase is caused by the comparatively small number of cases struck off as false, 234 being thus excluded compared with 329 last year. The Commissioner especially notes a decrease in Dacca, under the heading Wrongful confinement, which, he hopes, may be taken as an indication that violent measures are now less frequently resorted to by landlords than they used formerly to be. This may be so; but so long as there is a steady increase in cases of rioting in Dacca, as pointed out by the Commissioner under class I, I would not feel inclined to consider landlords entitled to much credit for peaceable inclinations. "In Backergunge," says the Commissioner, "the figures show that the year 1877 has been distinguished above its fellows for crime in which human life has been sacrificed;" and the Magistrate gives a very dark picture of the morals and manners of the inhabitants. "The great bulk of the population is composed of Chandals and low caste Mussulmans. Large sections of this peasantry, although materially prosperous, are in a state of almost brutish ignorance, of a low morality, irreverent of human life, passionate, callous, impulsive, sensual, and full of disregard for the rights of any one who may withstand them, either in an attempt to get property or gratify a wish."

173. Under Murder and Culpable homicide there were 151 cases as compared with 141 last year. Of these there were—

Murders by dacoits	0
" " robbers	1
" " poison	11

Of these, the following analysis is given :—

In these cases 379 persons were brought to trial, of whom 127 were convicted and 151 acquitted. The percentage of convictions has been about 45·6 as against 44 in 1876. "As usual," says the Commissioner, "the percentage is smallest in Dacca owing to the difficulty of getting convictions in these cases from a jury. Taking the division as a whole, there has been a slight improvement in convictions; but the percentage is still a long way below what I should like to see it." The Commissioner notices two cases of murder, one in which a young girl of about six years of age was pushed into a well and stoned to death by an old woman, who subsequently took out the body and flung it into the river with an earthen pot round it. The motive for this cold-blooded murder was the desire to rob the poor child of a silver necklace. The murderess was convicted and hanged. In the second case a Koolin Brahmin deliberately cut the throat of one of his numerous wives, apparently because the father of the woman had refused to let her go and live at the Koolin's lodgings. The murderer absconded and has not yet been arrested.

174. Under the heading Kidnapping there has been a slight increase of five cases as compared with last year. Of 53 persons brought to trial, 19 were convicted, 27 acquitted, and seven pending at the close of the year—a result slightly better than last year, but still unsatisfactory.

Crime under this class has been almost stationary on the whole. The Commissioner notices a remarkable decrease in Noakholly owing to the working of a departmental order as to the entry of cases. I do not, however, quite follow the remarks on this point.

176. Under Murder and Culpable homicide there has been a diminution under the graver heading in Chittagong, but under both headings in Noakholly crime has been stationary. The results, as shown below, though somewhat better than last year, are still far from satisfactory :—

There was one atrocious case of murder by dacoits in Sundeeep, in which the whole family of a wealthy mahajun were murdered by the dacoits to get rid of all witnesses of the robbery. The case was detected. Twelve persons were arrested, of whom six were capitally sentenced, two transported for life, one admitted as Queen's evidence, and three acquitted.

None of the cases under the other headings require notice.

Total ..	642	847	120	1,048	363	531	437

There has been an increase, chiefly, under the minor headings in crime under this class, such increase being visible in Gya, Shahabad, and Sarun. The results of police action, on the whole, have been better than last year, the percentage of convictions in cases being 50·3, and of persons 47·5 as compared with 46·9 and 45·1 of last year.

178. Under the heading Murder, it is satisfactory that in the whole of the division there has not during the year been a single case of murder by dacoits, robbers, or by poison. In other murders there have been 28 cases as compared with 26 of last year. The results of trials under this head, always unsatisfactory, have been worse than usual. In only 10 cases out of 28 did convictions follow, and of 85 persons arrested only 12 were punished. Patna and Gya, says the Commissioner, exhibit results which are simply lamentable. Of the eight cases in Patna, only two ended in conviction, while out of 20 persons arrested only two were convicted. In Gya conviction was obtained in only one case out of seven, and only one person out of 19 arrested was punished. The result is also unsatisfactory in Chumparun, where no conviction was obtained in either of the two cases which occurred there. In Durbhunga the results were successful, both the cases which occurred there being prosecuted to conviction.

179. In culpable homicide the results are decidedly better than last year, convictions being obtained in 14 out of 27 cases, 20 persons out of 72 having been punished, not including five of the latter number, whose cases were pending at the close of the year. In Shahabad the best results were obtained; in five out of eight cases convictions following, and 11 persons out of 17, whose cases were decided, being punished. In Sarun, on the other hand, the results were most disheartening, not a single person out of 19 arrested having been convicted.

180. Under the head of Exposure of infants there has been an increase of cases, but not so great as to demand special inquiry. The results of prosecutions were satisfactory, convictions following in 41 out of 57 cases investigated, and 42 out of 57 persons arrested being punished.

181. There has been an increase of cases of administering stupefying drugs with intent to rob. Five of the cases occurred in Shahabad, one in Gya, and the other in Durbhunga. The first case took place in January—two up-country lads, on a pilgrimage to Boidyanath, being drugged and robbed by a stranger, who made acquaintance with them during the night at a small temple where they put up. One of the lads was never heard of again, and it is almost certain that he must have fallen into the river Ganges, which runs close by the temple. No clue to the perpetrator of the crime was found until Colonel Paterson, the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, hearing that an up-country man had been arrested at Burdwan for drugging, sent him up to Arrah, where he was at once identified as the stranger who had been with the lads at the temple. The proof, however, against him proved insufficient, and he was discharged.

Two cases were reported from Doomraon, and at last, after protracted and fruitless inquiry, they were proved to be the work of one Prayag Kahar, who was caught red-handed in a drugging case in Ghazipore. He has been committed to the Sessions, after having been sentenced in Ghazipore to ten years' imprisonment for his work in that district.

The fourth and fifth cases, one reported from Buxar and the other from Bhojepore, were proved to have been committed by one Bhoolet Kandu of Ghazipore. He was arrested with some of the money which he plundered from an old syco returning to his home with his pension, whom he drugged. He confessed and was transported for life.

In the case which occurred in Gya, the prisoner was also detected, one out of three of his victims not having partaken of the drugged food offered, and thus being able to arrest the criminal, who was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

In the Durbhunga case the accused was discharged for want of sufficient evidence.

As last year, crime under this class has on the whole been stationary. The results as regards convictions have been slightly worse than those of last year, being as regards cases 40·1 against 41, and as regards persons 48·5 against 49·2.

183. Under murders there has been an increase under the heading "Other murders," while there has been no murder by dacoits, only one by robbers, and three by poison. There have been 24 cases of other murders as against 16 last year. In every district except Purneah the result of police action has been very poor.

Allowing for the pending cases, and for two cases in Bhagulpore, in which the accused are insanes, the result is very unsatisfactory.

There was one very peculiar case in which five persons, while sleeping in a zemindar's cutcherry, were blown up with gunpowder, owing to ill-feeling between them and the tehsildar of the village. All the men died from the injuries they received, but the supposed perpetrators of this diabolical agrarian outrage were acquitted.

The case of murder by robbers which occurred in Monghyr, in which a woman was murdered for the sake of her ornaments, was successful. Two out of the three murders by poison, all of which belonged to the Sonthal Pergunnahs, were unsuccessful.

184. Under culpable homicide there has been a decrease of 10 cases, the figures being 14 as compared with 24. In only four of these were convictions obtained. One of them was the notorious Heenan case at Sahibgunge, the facts of which have already appeared in the public prints.

185. The results in rape cases were worse than last year, only four out of 29 persons brought to trial being convicted. Fifteen persons were committed by Magistrates to the Sessions, but one only was convicted by the Judge. Under Unnatural offences there were convictions in five cases out of seven.

186. Under none of the other headings of this class are special remarks called for, except under kidnapping or abduction, where there is a large increase of cases—28 as compared with 12 last year. The Commissioner remarks:—“Charges of kidnapping are often brought against cooly recruiters in in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, and they are frequently true, but it is seldom possible to convict.” The results, as the Commissioner observes, are “miserable,” four convictions out of 28 cases; four persons being punished out of 40 brought to trial. Of these 40 persons, however, 11 are awaiting trial.

There has been an increase of 27 true cases in this division. Under almost all the headings there has been an increase in Cuttack, of which no explanation can be given,—the crimes under nearly all the headings being offences committed under the influence of passion on the spur of the moment. The Magistrate is rather inclined to attribute some connection between this increase of crime and increase in the consumption of ganjah which has been taking place.

188. The Commissioner notes a case in which there was a lamentable failure of justice. In a case of murder by poison two persons were concerned as the actual murderers. They admitted the purchase of arsenic, which was the means used for effecting the crime, but each accused the other of having administered it to the victim. The Sessions Judge “found that deceased had been poisoned by one of the two accused, but not feeling sure who it was acquitted both. The case appeared to be such a very strong one that the facts were put before the Legal Remembrancer, but as he was doubtful if a conviction would be obtained it was not carried any further.”

189. In the Gurjhat a case occurred which at one time was supposed to be one of human sacrifice. This theory was found to be incorrect, and after a personal investigation by the Commissioner, entirely unfounded. The conduct of the officers engaged in the investigation is now under report to Government.

Viewed as a whole, crime under this class has not fluctuated much, there being a decrease of 30 cases in the division. There has been a satisfactory decrease in the number of murders;—there having been no cases of murder by dacoits or by robbers, three cases of murder by poison, and 30 other murders. The figures compared with last year are as follows:—

" " robbers	1	0
" " poison	1	3
Other murders	45	30
				49	33

In none of the cases of murder by poison, two of which occurred in Hazareebagh and one in Singbhoom, was a conviction obtained. In the first case, which was one of murder of a husband by a wife at the instigation of her paramour, sufficient proof was not obtained against the guilty parties, and they were discharged by the Magistrate. The second case was one of drugging with intent to rob, one of the persons drugged having died from the effects of datura administered. No information was obtained by the police until twenty-four hours after the occurrence, and notwithstanding persistent search made in many districts the prisoners, a man and a woman, have not been arrested. The third case is remarkable from the fact that the prisoner was a little boy, who caused the death of two other boys, by giving them, at the instigation of his mother, poisoned rice-cake to eat. Both boys died, and the young murderer with his mother were committed to the Sessions, but they were acquitted.

191. The results in cases of "Other murders" was not satisfactory in any of the districts of the division.

None of the cases merit special notice.

192. Under culpable homicide there is a satisfactory diminution of cases, and the results are also good, convictions having been obtained in eight out of the 11 cases which occurred. The results compared with the past year are as follows:—

DISTRICTS.	Cases.		Convictions.		Persons.		Convicted.		Acquitted.

193. Under the heading Administering stupefying drugs, the Lohardugga cases are remarkable. Three travellers were drugged by four strangers who joined them in the usual way. After some excessively discreditable conduct on the part of some of the subordinate police, Inspector Hakim Singh took up the inquiry, brought it to a successful issue, and also discovered during the inquiry that two other cases had been committed by members or connections of the same gang. These two cases were also most intelligently worked up by the Inspector, and the district is now freed from the presence of several well-known poisoners, notably an old chief amongst them, called Rupchand, for several years. The Inspector Hakim Singh was promoted for his conduct in these cases. The breaking up of this gang should have a good effect.

194. Several cases of kidnapping or abduction connected with recruiting of coolies occurred, but none of such importance as to require special notice.

195. There has again been a decrease of crime under this class, which is satisfactory. The decrease is observable under all headings, except mischief by killing, &c., cattle, under which there is a slight increase, and robbery, which may be said to have remained stationary. The results with reference to convictions in cases were almost the same as last year. With regard to persons the percentage was rather lower.

196. It is satisfactory to be able to record a decrease again in this serious crime. Last year there was a decrease of 100 cases as compared with 1875, and in 1877 there has been a decrease of 16 cases on the total of cases of 1876.

In the divisions of Dacca, Chittagong, and Chota Nagpore there has been an increase of cases, which will be explained when I treat of the crime divisionally; but in other divisions, except Cuttack, where there is an insignificant increase of one case, there is a satisfactory decrease.

In the following ten districts there was no dacoity during the year:—

Chittagong.	Bhagulpore.
Patna.	Maldah.
Mozufferpore.	Pooree.
Durbhunga.	Gurjehats.
Monghyr.	Singbloom.

And, generally, it may be said that many of the cases which are called dacoity are more of the description of highway robberies, very different from the popular idea of dacoity, with torches, sacrifices to Kali, and other ceremonies.

The results of trials were unsatisfactory:—

					1875.	1876.	1877.

while, in the districts given below, they were more or less a failure :—

Rungpore	40	4	35
Furcedpore	38	9	28
Sarun	20	0	20
Sonthal Pergunnahs	20	1	19

I note here the difference between the results of cases before the Magistrates and at the Sessions. Of 562 persons sent up by the police, 376 or 72 per cent. were committed by the Magistrates, who considered that the evidence of their guilt was sufficient to warrant committal. Of these persons committed, only 185 or 53·5 per cent. were convicted at the Sessions—a result again illustrative of my remarks on sessions trials.

The number of false cases has decreased, being 49 as against 85 of last year. No district during the present year has been conspicuous for the number of cases returned as false.

The amount of property stolen was Rs. 86,953, of which Rs. 22,626 was recovered in 61 cases out of 122—a result slightly better than that of last year.

It is unsatisfactory to find that in eight districts in which dacoities occurred no portion of the property stolen was recovered.

These districts are—

Howrah.	Dacca.
Jessore.	* Mymensing.
Darjeeling.	Chumparun.
Julpigoree.	Manbhoom.

River dacoities occurred in the following districts :—

(a).—This man was pending trial at the close of 1876.

(b).—Those were pending at the close of 1876.

(c).—The case occurred in the Nepal Territory, but some of the culprits being British subjects were tried here, one of whom was convicted under section 412, Indian Penal Code.

(d).—These were pending at end of 1876.

(e).—One case shown in the district return as convicted; hence the difference between this and the abstract Return A (Part I).

198. Crime under this heading has increased by three cases,—an increase of not much significance. And if it be remembered that last year, with 278 cases reported, 137 were struck off as false, while during the present year only 88 out of 232 cases reported have been so treated, I think the increase is more nominal than real. Greater care in striking off cases as false has produced the same results under this heading as under others.

The increase is chiefly discernible under the class of robbery with hurt, &c., and appears marked in the districts of Backergunge and Gya. Under "Other robberies" there has been a decrease of 12 cases, although the number of cases struck off as false in 1877 was 70, as compared with 111 in 1876.

The results obtained were slightly below those of last year.

There is a great tendency, on the part of police officers, as soon as they get a conviction against a few persons in a case of dacoity or robbery, to drop the inquiry; while in such cases the non-arrested members of the gang get off with the bulk of the property, or those even who have been arrested, have made away with it amongst their relatives. It is satisfactory to a police officer, no doubt, to get a conviction against some, if not all, the offenders; but the parties robbed naturally desire, in addition, to recover their property. I have called the attention of all District Superintendents to this defect in police working.

Serious mischief.

The results are inferior to those of last year. In only two districts—the 24-Pergunnahs and Pubna—have the results of police action been satisfactory. In the former convictions were obtained in 35 out of 55 cases, and of 59 persons sent up 38 were convicted. In Pubna convictions were obtained in 23 out of 34 cases, and of 43 persons brought to trial 33 were punished.

Lurking house-trespass, &c.

200. The number of cases instituted, with the results, are given below. There is a decrease in the number of cases, but the remarks made last year in paragraph 179 of my report are still applicable:—

Total ...	202	255	65	265	68	108	129

There has been a slight decrease in crime under this class, but the results as shown above, both as regards cases and persons, are unsatisfactory.

In dacoity there has again been a decrease, there having been only 30 cases in the division, as compared with 45 last year. In Hooghly there has been a remarkable increase of cases, all of which occurred in the earlier part of the year. The then Magistrate of the district, Sir William Herschell, seemed to attribute this sudden outbreak of crime to the effect produced on the criminal classes by the release of prisoners on the 1st of January. One of the cases the police spoiled by ill-treating the wife of one of the men who was, I have no doubt, rightly accused of having committed the dacoity. Two head-constables were committed for their conduct in this case to the sessions, and were imprisoned. But this result was fatal to the success of the dacoity case. I was able in the middle of the year to depute a special assistant to Hooghly to look after dacoity. He is still on duty, and I hope yet to be able to trace some of the cases, seven in number, which remained undetected at the close of the year. Since the deputation of the assistant, the outbreak has come to an end.

In Midnapore the number of true cases has decreased remarkably from 24 to seven. The results, however, have not been good, only three of the seven cases having been detected, but the effect of the preventive action of the police has been good. Inspector Haro Prasad Doss has continued to do good service. In one case especially from secret information received, the police were enabled to arrest a gang of ten men almost immediately after committing dacoity. For his services in dacoity cases, and also for his good work in the case of murder of Nobin Chunder Nag, above alluded to, under class II, the Inspector has been promoted to the third grade.

In Burdwan there is the same result as in Midnapore—a decrease in cases with very poor success in convictions. One very important case was pending at the close of the year, and the lengthened inquiry in it has had the very best results. Not only have 16 men of the gang been convicted since the close of the year, but we have been able to lay hold of a notorious dacoit, who has made most important disclosures as to dacoities committed in Burdwan and other surrounding districts. This case will be fully dealt with in the report for 1878, and the success of the police officers who have conducted the inquiry brought to notice.

In Bankoora and Beerbhoom there have been no convictions. The action of the Bankoora police has long been the subject of remark, and I have sent a sharp Inspector there, from whose work I expect good results. My inspection of the district during the year showed me that the police officers were effete, and that there was no real work done in the district. I have got rid of two Inspectors who were useless, and obstructive, and I hope to see an improvement when I revisit the district this year. If there is no improvement, further changes will be made.

In Howrah, although the number of cases was small, the results were poor.

Under robbery there was a decided falling off as compared with last year. Of 27 true cases only five ended in convictions, and only five persons were punished. These results cannot be considered as otherwise than discreditable to the police.

In Howrah the existence of a large number of mills, many of the coolies in which are undoubtedly budmashes, tends to the increase of crime against property, and the Commissioner suggests that a special police tax should be imposed on these mills, to keep up a small police force at each mill for the purpose of looking after the coolies. I cannot support this recommendation.

None of the other headings require remark.

Class III.

202. PRESIDENCY DIVISION.

DISTRICTS.	True cases in 1876.	Cases reported in 1877.	False cases.	NUMBER OF PERSONS
				Brought to trial.	Convicted.		Acquitted.
					Cases.	Persons.
24-Pergunnahs	93	99	15	93	40	47	45
Nuddea	65	98	17	118	30	63	45
Jessore	56	67	21	70	11	14	53
Moorshedabad	74	85	14	67	14	22	40
Total ...	288	348	67	348	95	146	183

In this class there are 281 cases as against 288 of 1876. In some of the headings, however, there has been considerable fluctuation. There has been a satisfactory decrease in dacoity of eight cases, and a large decrease of 118 cases in serious mischief; on the other hand, there has been an increase of six cases under robbery and of 23 cases under serial number 34A, mischief by killing, maiming animals, &c.

203. Only nine dacoities occurred during the year; and when it is remembered that the four districts of the Presidency division were in former times the home of professional dacoits—that many professional dacoits and their descendants live there—that the Jhenida mochis, the Narail kayasts, the Nuddea and Nakashipara gwalas, the gwalas of the Hijalmut, are still large criminal communities,—it says a good deal in favour of police operations in these districts that only nine dacoities occurred during the year under report. Of the nine cases, five belong to the 24-Pergunnahs, two to Nuddea, one to Jessore, one to Moorshedabad. The Magistrate of Moorshedabad states “that the immunity from dacoity which the district enjoyed during the year under report was owing to the measures taken under the vagrancy law during the years 1875 and 1876, and to the vigilance which has since been exercised by the police over all the known bad characters." "These remarks," says the Commissioner, "I am of opinion, are applicable to all the districts of this division, and fully account for the very marked decrease which has occurred in the number of dacoities."

The results of trials are as follows:—

			Cases.		Convictions.		Persons.		Convicted.		Acquitted.
			1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.
24-Pergunnahs	5	5	2	2	23	17	11	1	12	10
Nuddea	5	2	3	1	31	22	24	17	7	5
Jessore	4	1	2	1	17	16	8	1	9	15
Moorshedabad	3	1	1	1	123	2	33	1	89	1

There has been an increase in the number of robberies in the division, such increase being visible in the districts of Nuddea and Jessore, while in the 24-Pergunnahs there has been a decrease. With the large Bodiya population in Nuddea and Jessore, it is not surprising that this form of crime still exists in these districts.

The results of cases were far from satisfactory:—

Cases.		Convictions.		Persons.		Convicted.		Acquitted.
1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.
15	21	9	7	31	31	14	11	17

None of the cases require special notice.

204. The decrease, under the heading "serious mischief" has occurred in all districts of the division, especially in the district of Nuddea. Except in the district of the 24-Pergunnahs the results have been very unsatisfactory. No explanation of the decrease is given in the Commissioner's report.

					Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.

Nuddea	16	4	19	11	7
Jessore	21	3	40	3	30
Moorshedabad	42	8	28	10	17

The failure in Jessore is especially marked.

No notice of cases under sections 428, 429, in which, as compared with last year, there is an increase of cases, is taken in the Commissioner's report.

205. RAJSHAHYE AND COOCH BEHAR DIVISION.

Total					173	214	76	205	45	98	161

These figures represent the more serious offences in this class, leaving out serial numbers 35 and 36, which are more conveniently treated under class V. The Commissioner, in including the figures of these serials, when showing that there has been a decrease of above 400 cases in the division, remarks

“there has been a very large and satisfactory decrease in crime falling under this class. This is notably the case in Dinagepore and Pubna, and though I hope it may indicate progressive improvement in the working of the police, I attribute it chiefly to the conviction of dacoits in the previous year, and to the action against bad characters of which Government has latterly expressed disapproval.” Looking to the state of police work in Dinagepore, as shown on inspection, during the year, I should say that the view taken by the Commissioner is correct.

206. The decrease which was expected to follow in dacoity cases from the good results attained in Dinagepore last year has, I am glad to say, continued. The following figures show the number of cases and the results obtained in each district :—

DISTRICTS.								Cases.	Convictions in cases.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Dinagepore	1	1	9	8	1
Rajshahye	3	2	21	10	10
Rungpore	6	2	40	4	35
Bogra	1	1	7	3	4
Pubna	1	1	23	9	14
Darjeeling	2
Julpigoree	2
Total								16	7	100	34	64

In four out of the seven districts dacoity has decreased, as will be seen by a reference to the figures given in the report for last year, while in Pubna there has been an increase of one case, in Rungpore of four cases, and in Darjeeling of one case.

The result in Dinagepore is very satisfactory, and is no doubt due, as remarked by the Commissioner, to the success which attended operations in dacoity cases last year, when three notorious gangs were broken up, and to the working of the bad character sections of the Procedure Code. The result is that only one case occurred, and the conviction of eight out of nine men concerned in the crime ought to strengthen the good effect produced by last year's operations.

The only case in Rajshahye which merits notice is that which occurred in the Nattore Rajbari, in which Koomar Jogendronath Roy and others were accused of plundering the property of three Ranis, the widows of his three Rani's elder brothers. After a protracted trial, the Koomar and one of his servants were convicted. In appeal the High Court acquitted the Koomar of dacoity, and convicted him of criminal misappropriation.

The case of dacoity in Pubna was a boat dacoity, in which the property plundered was carried off to Dacca. Through the energy of Sub-Inspector Jugat Pal, writes the Commissioner, one of the offenders was arrested in the Serajgunge floating bazar, and his confession led to the arrest of 17 others. Of these two were made Queen's evidence, and nine of the others were convicted at the sessions.

The Bogra cases call for no special remark. The District Superintendent has devised a useful scheme for checking dacoity by getting punchayets in the western or jungly parts of the district “to send the chowkidars to bring the lists of names, residences, &c., of any strangers putting up at their villages, regarding whom inquiries were then instituted, and watch kept on them in the meantime.” This method of securing the co-operation of the punchayets is much to be commended, and all District Superintendents might introduce it with beneficial results.

The increase of dacoity in Rungpore, although not large, is still deserving of notice, as the cropping up of this formidable crime must be carefully watched and steadily put down. The results which followed arrests are lamentable; but these results were not due, I am glad to say, to any fault on the part of the police, but to the neglect of the sub-divisional officer, Moulvie Dilwar Hossain Ahmad, who recorded the confessions of 13 accused in such an irregular manner that they were inadmissible before the sessions as evidence against the prisoners. No less than 22 persons were acquitted owing to the culpable neglect of this officer. I am not aware whether these prisoners thus acquitted on technical grounds were dealt with as budmashes, but there is no doubt that they ought to have been. A wholesale denial of justice in this manner, owing to the neglect of elementary rules of procedure on the part of a committing officer, is most disheartening to the police and injurious to the people. I shall have the men thus acquitted looked after.

207. Robbery also continues to decrease, which is satisfactory. There were no cases of highway robbery in the division at all during 1877, and of other robberies there were 11 true cases as compared with four in 1876. Of 12 cases reported in Dinagepore, seven were pronounced false, and of 17 reported in Rungpore only four were ascertained to be true. No explanation of this unusually large number of false cases is given by the Magistrate, although such a matter ought to have attracted attention. The results of trials were not successful, 12 persons being convicted to 25 acquitted. In one of the Darjeeling cases eight persons sent up were all acquitted.

208. The following table gives the amount of property plundered in dacoity and robbery cases in and 1877:—

	Property stolen.		Property recovered.			Property stolen.		Property recovered.
	1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.		1876.	1877.	1876.	1877.
Dacoity ...	9,796	48,177	738	11,006	Robbery ...	499	1,044	407	193

The large increase under dacoity is due to the Rajbari case in Rajshahye in which property of great value is said to have been plundered.

Under serious mischief, there is also a satisfactory decrease of crime, noticeable in Bogra, Dinagepore, and Julpigoree.

Class III.

209. DACCA DIVISION.

Tipperah	65	70	11	48	16	28	19
Total					365	433	96	333	44	114	183

There has been a slight decrease in this class, on the whole, although in some of the headings, notably dacoity, there has been an increase in some districts.

210. In dacoity there has been a remarkable increase of cases, the number having actually more than doubled as compared with that of 1876, 34 true cases having occurred as against 16. This increase is chiefly apparent in the districts of Backergunge and Furreedpore, as shown below:—

	1876.	1877.
Dacca ...	2	4
Furreedpore ...	5	10
Backergunge ...	3	14
Mymensingh ...	0	2
Tipperah ...	6	4
	16	34

The results of operations were very unsatisfactory, conviction following in only six cases, and only 25 per cent. of the persons sent up for trial being punished.

Of the four cases which occurred in Dacca, one was subsequently pronounced false, but none of the remaining three cases was detected.

In Furreedpore four cases, which in reality occurred in Dacca, were detected by the Furreedpore police. The other cases which remained undetected were river dacoities, concerning which the Commissioner remarks:—"In cases of this description I have always said that detection ought to be a simple impossibility (unless, of course, the dacoits are resisted by those whom they attack, which is rarely the case, although it occurred in one instance in Backergunge). The rivers are enormous, and are fed by numerous khalls intersecting the country in all directions, the police stations are few and far between, the patrol boats insufficient in number and very indifferently equipped. Last of all there is the apathy and spiritlessness of the people themselves, who, instead of giving information to the nearest police-station as quickly as possible, often allow days to pass without doing so. Given all these things in their favour, and it is marvellous to me that dacoits ever fail to carry out their plans with absolute impunity, and why the offence is not one of far greater frequency than it is." I entirely agree with the Commissioner in these remarks, and with such difficulties in the way of detection, the only remedy left for adoption by the police is prevention—prevention by shutting up notorious bad characters such as are in the dacoit villages on the Mudhomati and other large rivers in eastern Bengal.

The increase of cases in Backergunge is attributed by the Magistrate solely to the demoralization caused by the cyclone and storm-waves, to the destruction of property, and to the general impoverishment of the people. To these untoward circumstances, in the Commissioner's opinion, is to be added the fact that food during a considerable portion of the year was selling at famine prices. "There is no reason, however," the Commissioner adds, "to suppose that there exists any permanent cause from which dacoities might be expected to go on increasing."

None of the cases possessed any special feature of interest.

No remarks under any of the other headings are made in the divisional report.

Chittagong Hill Tracts	1	15	61	2	20	34
Total ...	120	128	16	173	17	63	99

Although there has been an increase in the minor headings of crime in this class, yet, excluding serial Nos. 35 and 36, there has been a decrease in serious cases. In Noakholly there has been no fluctuation in dacoity, there having been only one case; in the Chittagong Hill Tracts there were no less than seven cases. The increase of this crime is due simply to the dearness of food, which led the hill-men in gangs to plunder what they could in the way of food. With lower prices this crime will disappear.

Cases of arson have slightly decreased. The Magistrate considers, however, that a great many of the cases of accidental fires are in reality cases of arson. The Commissioner, however, is not inclined to attach any importance to the Magistrate's remarks. The Magistrate takes the ground that, without a special detective agency, successful results in finding out cases of arson are not to be expected. "I have pointed out," says the Commissioner, "that a special force is of use only in the case of crimes committed by habitual offenders or by gangs, such as dacoity, where it is necessary to hunt down gangs to learn their haunts and their secrets; but that such a force would be useless in the case of a crime which is committed by people of all sorts in all parts of the districts, and in which there are no secret ways of proceeding to detect. The district police have been allowed to become careless about this crime. They follow the example of their official superiors, and look upon the detection of an arson case as nearly hopeless."

I agree with the Commissioner in thinking that the deputation of any special detective force for the purpose of finding out arson cases would be useless. It is also possible that the police have been lax in the performance of their duties; but the Commissioner does not make sufficient allowance for the real difficulties which undoubtedly beset the detection of such cases. The crime is committed at night generally; there are seldom, if any, traces of how the offence was committed; the perpetrator leaves himself ample time to escape before the piece of cowdung, which he has left in the thatch, ignites—suspicion may light upon him as an enemy likely to have caused the fire, but proof against him there is none. What, then, are the police to do? There is no possible clue given to them, and unless the offender is weak enough to confess, they have absolutely nothing to work upon, and as the offence is generally the work of one man, they have not even the hope which the presence of accomplices gives of finding out the perpetrators of a crime.

Excluding the figures for lurking house trespass, &c., which will be dealt with under class V, there is an increase noticeable in offences under this class. The increase is not very great, being 39 cases in all, and may, as elsewhere, be accounted for by the small number of cases excluded as false, the number of such cases in 1876 being 124 as compared with 70 in this year. Except in cases of serious mischief, there has been in reality a decrease of crime under this class.

213. Dacoity still exhibits a satisfactory decrease. During the year there has not been a single case in any of the districts of Patna, Mozufferpore, or Durbhunga; in Shahabad there has only been one case, which indeed did not occur in the district, but in which some of the property stolen was recovered by the Shahabad police; in Chumparun, too, there has been a decrease. The only two districts in which there has been an increase of this formidable crime are Gya and Sarun. In the former there were seven, and in the latter district three cases.

The results compared divisionally with the last five years are as follows:—

	Cases.	Percentage of convictions.	Persons arrested.	Convicted.
1873	45	20.5	162	48
1874	38	42.1	280	102

1876	18	27.7	143	35
1877	13	30.7	80	27

The results in each district during the last three years, are as follows:—

The complete failure of operations in the Gya district is lamentable. In two cases mails were robbed, and so serious has this form of crime become in Gya that I have deputed one of the Deputy Inspectors-General to devise special measures for its repression. In a third case valuable property belonging to the Judge of the district was plundered by a gang of 25 or 30 armed men, and no clue to the perpetrators was discovered.

The Shahabad case was an old one of mail robbery, which took place in 1871. A set of gold bangles, worth Rs. 4,000, which had been stolen in this robbery, was recovered by the Shahabad police during 1877, and two persons out of six arrested were convicted.

In Chumparun operations have been successful. Two large gangs, with their leaders, one of whom, a quondam police constable, had committed dacoities in Goruckpore, Azimghur, Sarun, and Chumparun, were brought to trial during the year, and of 27 men arrested 24 were convicted. This should have good effect.

214. In robbery there has been a decrease, on the whole, of four cases under all headings. "Other robberies" have fallen from 21 cases last year to nine, while robberies with hurt by other means have risen from two to seven. The results of operations were decidedly better than last year, convictions following in 13 cases as compared with 10 of last year; and 23 out of 39 persons sent up for trial being punished, as against 25 of 27 in 1876. None of the cases are mentioned in detail in the divisional report. I observe that nine cases were reported in Sarun as having occurred, but that all turned out false.

215. Under the heading "mischief by killing animals, &c.," there has been a considerable increase of cases, there having been 71 cases as compared with 40 last year. In 40 cases conviction followed, and 57 out of 76 persons brought to trial were convicted—a satisfactory result.

There has been a decrease, on the whole, in crime of this class, and it is very satisfactory to find that the formidable crime of dacoity is gradually disappearing from the division. Three districts in the division, Monghyr, Bhagulpore, and Maldah, have been entirely free from this crime during the year; while in Purneah, which not long ago was notorious for dacoity, there have been only four cases. In the Sonthal Pergunnahs there have been three cases.

The results have been as follows:—

	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Purneah	4	3	27	14	13
Sonthal Pergunnahs	3	1	20	1	19

being as satisfactory in the case of the former as they are unsatisfactory in the latter district. The number of acquittals of persons in Purneah is explained by the fact that in one of the cases, the only one which was unsuccessful, Nepalese subjects were concerned, and it was found extremely difficult to procure evidence from Nepal. It is satisfactory to learn that by the successful result of one of the cases a gang, which had for many years carried on its operations, has now been broken up.

217. Under "robbery" there has been also a small decrease of three cases, the total number of true cases in 1877 being 13, as compared with 16 last year. In six cases conviction followed, and of 48 persons sent up for trial 22 were convicted. The only serious case occurred on the Ganges and Darjeeling road, and was unsuccessful. A sum of Rs. 2,000 in silver was being brought from Calcutta by an old man. He displayed his treasure at various places, started at night with it unguarded, was plundered, passed a police-station and outpost, but gave no intimation till he arrived at Purneah, by which time detection was almost hopeless.

Crime, as usual in this class, in Orissa, has been of a petty description. There has been a slight increase of one case in dacoity. In two of the cases a clue was obtained, and 10 persons were committed, but they were discharged by the Judge. In one of these cases, in which five persons broke into a widow's house at night and robbed her of some ornaments, four persons were arrested by the police and convicted by the Magistrate, who considered the case one of robbery. The Judge decided that the case was one of dacoity, quashed the proceedings, and ordered the committal of the accused. At the sessions the Judge disbelieved the evidence and acquitted the four men sent up. In the second case, which took place in Balasore, some evil-disposed neighbours of a money-lender tried to rob him, but the property said to have been stolen was so trifling that its identification was almost impossible.

There has been an increase of crime under this class, and I regret to have to record that dacoity appears to be cropping up again. Whereas, in 1876, this crime had been reduced to eight cases, in the present year there have been 14 cases. The increase has taken place in Hazareebagh, where there have been 11 cases, only one of which has been detected. The cases which have occurred have been nearly all rather highway robberies than dacoities, the number of men reported as having been engaged in the crime making the offence legally dacoity. People going along jungly roads are suddenly attacked by more than five men, who start out unexpectedly, rob the traveller of what he has, and then disappear again in the jungles. No one is recognized by the victims, and the only chance in discovery lies in finding some of the stolen property. In this the police have been eminently unsuccessful. The Deputy Commissioner is "very hopeful that when the regular patrol of the roads is carried out by the proposed road police, and by the re-organization of the police-stations and outposts, even the small number of highway robberies now shown to have occurred will considerably diminish." The number is no doubt small as compared with that in olden times, but large with regard to the diminution of dacoity effected last year.

The results both in dacoity and robbery were lamentable:—

	Cases.	Convictions in cases.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.	Pending.
Dacoity	14	1	27	4	5	18
Robbery	16	3	21	5	6	10

The crops have been deficient in various parts of the division, and this state of matters no doubt has had to do with the increase of crime in this class.

In Lohardugga, in connection with proceedings in a dacoity case in which some Korwars of Sirgooja, a tributary state, were concerned, the conduct of the Assistant Superintendent and an Inspector has been called in question. The case still awaits decision.

I give the number of cases under this class with the results, as compared with two previous years:—

							True cases.	Conviction in cases.	Percentage of convictions.	Persons tried.	Persons convicted.	Persons acquitted.	Percentage of convictions.
1875	9,862	2,197	22.1	9,165	4,015	3,901	53.6

220. Below are given the figures showing the results under “hurt” and “wrongful restraint” :—

1877	4,221	1,213	3,009	52	2,957	466	3,323	1,527	1,800

It will be seen that although there was a considerable decrease in the number of cases of hurt reported,—that although this decrease was apparent after only 439 cases (as against 989 of 1876) had been struck off as false,—yet the number of true cases which remained for investigation was greater than that of last year by nearly 500 cases. This result proceeds solely from a change in procedure with reference to investigating cases. It was found that, under orders previously issued from this office, the police exercised their discretion as to whether the charges of hurt laid were to be treated as cognizable or non-cognizable offences. This was manifestly improper, and on the Commissioner of Dacca remonstrating, I supported the view of the law which he took, and a circular issued by my predecessor was accordingly modified—(vide addendum dated 28th May 1877 to addendum dated 5th January 1877 to Circular No. 2 of 1870). The result has been that hurt being by law a cognizable offence, the police cannot exercise their discretion as to whether they are to treat a charge of hurt laid as cognizable or non-cognizable. They can only refuse inquiry, as in the case of any other cognizable case they can do under section 117, C. P. C. Many cases, therefore, which previously would have been thrown out in the present year came under inquiry.

221. I think it is well worth the consideration of Government whether charges of hurt should not legally be made non-cognizable by the police. The great majority of these cases are in reality non-cognizable petty assaults, for the Bengali, although an adept at abuse, is chary of using his fists, unless he has an overpowering force in his favour. The time of the police is wasted in inquiring into these petty cases, which might be disposed of much more profitably either in the courts, before which numbers of them come in the end, or even left to the decision of punchayets or zemindars. The trifling amount of personal wrong which is caused in these cases does not practically affect the public, like the repetition of petty offences against property; and considering the ill success attained by the police in cases of burglary, &c., I think their time might be much more usefully devoted to trying to achieve better results in such offences against property than to investigating trifling cases of personal injury, which do not in their results go beyond the individual assaulted or abused.

Under wrongful restraint there has been an actual decrease of cases, although the number excluded as false is less by 500 cases than that so struck off in 1876. With a number of questionable cases thus brought under inquiry, it is not to be wondered at that the results of trials are not quite up to the mark of 1876.

The state of crime under this class requires no special remark. In connection with the remarks made last year as to most of the cases of wrongful restraint and confinement coming from Moherakha sub-division, the Commissioner remarks that while in 1876, in proportion to population, Moherakha did not supply more cases than the Sudder sub-division, in 1877 forty-five out of the 59 cases reported came from Moherakha. This clearly shows a very bad state of feeling between landlord and tenant. "The Magistrate regrets to find that while 15 of these charges were laid before the Deputy Magistrate himself, he only took up two direct, referring the rest to the police for inquiry. I agree with Mr. Wace in thinking that matters would mend if the Deputy Magistrate would himself send for the witnesses, or, better still, go out in person at once and prosecute a few of the cases he may find false." I entirely agree with the Commissioner.

There has been a considerable diminution in cases of crime in this class, there being 202 cases less than in 1876, although from the much smaller number of cases declared false, 163, instead of 260 in 1876, the number of true cases remaining for investigation might have been expected to have been increased. The decrease is visible under both headings of hurt and wrongful restraint, especially in the district of the 24-Pergunnahs under wrongful restraint. No explanation of the decrease in this district, 12 cases as compared with 97 in 1876, has been given.

The results are below those of last year, being as regards convictions in cases 34.6 as compared with 36.6, and of persons 58, compared with 59.6. This is due to the failure of cases in Moorshedabad, where in only 62 cases out of 385 did conviction follow. The cases under this class are mostly trifling petty assaults, which are often compromised. Still such an unfavourable result, compared with that obtained in the other districts of the division, is not creditable to the police of Moorshedabad. Operations under "hurt" and wrongful restraints are shown separately below:—

The reduction in the number of cases declared false has in this class produced the result which I have noticed elsewhere, viz. that although there has been a large decrease in the number of cases reported, the number of cases accepted as true remains nearly the same as in the preceding year. In 1876, with 1,517 cases reported, 577 were declared false, leaving a balance of 940 true cases. In 1877 only 1,169 cases were reported, of which 264 were excluded as false, leaving a balance of 905 cases accepted as true.

The decrease in cases reported is noticeable chiefly in Dinagapore and Pubna. In Dinagapore the transfer of a number of cases to the non-cognizable side is alleged to account to some extent for this decrease. In Pubna the falling off is said to be due partly to the settlement of land disputes, to the adoption of more stringent precautionary measures to prevent disturbances, and also to the fact of several of those cases of hurt, &c., being now settled by zemindars, whose disputes with their ryots have been settled, and whose cutcherries are again opened for the disposal of such cases. If this last reason assigned is correct, the fact of ryots resorting to their landlords for the disposal of petty cases, instead of bringing them into court, is, in my opinion, by no means to be regretted. I believe that in these mofussil cutcherries they get in such petty cases more substantial justice than they get in the courts, where lying is habitual, and where lies are made to look like truth by the low mookhtars who frequent our criminal courts, and who are the chief abettors of the perjuries committed in them.

None of the cases in this class call for special notice, and the results on the whole are fair. The large number of cases still declared false merits attention. I can hardly think that there is any special reason for Rungpore cases being so much more frequently false than in other districts of the division, and feel inclined to think that the procedure laid down in circular No. 1 of 1877 may not have been so strictly followed here as elsewhere:—

There has been a considerable decrease in the number of cases, which is all the more satisfactory when it is remembered that only 690 cases have been struck off as false, compared with 1,086 so dealt with last year. The decrease is visible in all districts of the division, except Furreedpore, where there is an inconsiderable increase. The results of trials are also better.

Hurt cases have decreased, except in Mymensingh and Furreedpore, where there is an increase due to the police now taking up all cases in which a charge of hurt is laid, instead of, as formerly, exercising their discretion in refusing them. The procedure in this respect was changed under Government orders No. 2447, of the 11th May 1877.

Cases of wrongful restraint have slightly increased, but this increase is, I have no doubt, due to the greater discrimination now exercised in rejecting cases as false.

* NOTE.—The cases were not investigated by the police, but the arrests were made by order of Magistrate, hence the cases in which convictions were obtained are not shown here. Column 9 of the crime return does not provide for the entry of such cases.

The Commissioner observes,—“In this crime there was considerable decrease in Chittagong, and increase in Noakholly. The working of the Inspector-General's circular, quoted in paragraph 88 (ante) was the cause of the increase.” As before observed, I do not quite follow the remarks of the Commissioner. The circular in question deals with the proper classification of cases reported false by the police.

There has been a considerable increase of crime under this head of 191 cases. This increase is only partially accounted for by the diminution in the number of cases struck off as false; for in this respect only 50 cases in excess of the number struck off in 1877 appear in 1876 as excluded from calculation. No explanation of this increase is given in the divisional report. The results as regards convictions in cases were the same in both years, viz. somewhat above 35 per cent., as regards persons:—The comparison is in favour of 1877, being 51·9 per cent., as against 46·9 of 1877.

The increase is chiefly observable under the heading “hurt,”—there having been no fluctuation under “wrongful restraint.” This increase is specially marked in the district of Shahabad, which shows 226 cases, as compared with 127 in 1876; but no explanation of this large increase in one district has been given. The result of trials in 1877 was, as regards cases, not so good, and, as regards persons, better than in 1876, being with reference to the former 38·5, as against 42·6 per cent., and, with reference to the latter, 58·2 as compared with 52·2.

Under "wrongful restraint" in Patna alone were the results satisfactory, convictions following in 72 per cent. of cases and 63 per cent. of persons brought to trial. Durbhunga, again, is conspicuous for failure in these cases convictions following in only 13 per cent. of cases, and 12 per cent. of persons. And in Mozufferpore, Saran, and Chumparan the results, though not quite so bad as in Durbhunga, are still very unsatisfactory:—

Crime, under this head, has been nearly stationary in the division. In the district of Purneah there has been a large increase of cases under the heading "hurt," which, the Commissioner says, is "owing to certain orders issued by the Magistrate that the police should inquire into every complaint laid, and they were mostly found to be petty assaults in reality." I do not quite understand this. The manner in which cases of "hurt" were to be dealt with was laid down by Government in the addenda to circular No. 2 of 1870, of the 5th January and 28th May 1877; and if most of the cases turned out to be petty assaults, i.e. non-cognizable cases, they ought not to have been shown as cognizable cases at all, but should have been shown as non-cognizable under the orders laid down in Circular No. 1 of 1877.

The results, both as regards cases and persons, are unsatisfactory:—

Crime has been almost stationary, and none of the cases call for any special remarks.

231. The total number of cases accepted as true is 41,095, as compared with 38,832 of 1876 and 38,093 of 1875. The Class V. reason of this apparent steady increase in minor offences against property is, no doubt, the tendency to be more careful in excluding cases as false, to which I have had occasion several times to refer in this report. In 1875, with 54,616 cases reported, were excluded as false 16,523; in 1876, with fewer cases, 52,876 reported, fewer cases 14,044 were struck off as false; and in 1877, with the smallest number of cases during the three years reported, viz. 50,539, only 9,444 cases were excluded from the returns as false. It is not wonderful, therefore, that with a diminution in the number of cases treated as false, amounting to 4,600 cases, there should be an increase in the number of true cases. There can be no doubt that if false cases had been treated in the same way in 1877 as in previous years, there would have been a considerable decrease shown in the number of cases accepted as having occurred, and the increase which now appears to have taken place, according to the figures, is, in my opinion, only nominal,—the result of a change of procedure, and not of any greater criminality on the part of the population.

232. I reproduce the tables which were given last year to show the results of crime both under serial No. 42 alone and taken along with serials 35 and 36 :—

The results vary very little one way or another from those obtained in previous years. This description of crime is the curse of the country and the perpetual reproach of the police. The police may help the people by detecting the persons who commit burglaries; but until the people learn to help the police, it is simply an impossibility for either the regular or the village police to put a stop to crime, for the commission of which every facility is given to the burglar, and in detecting which every difficulty is put in the way of the police. The reform of the village police, when that is effected, will no doubt do much to prevent this crime; but even when the chowkidar is paid his wages and has become really a watchman, he still cannot be expected to turn night into day, and arrest thieves whose operations are carried on in the dark, on houses surrounded by jungle, separated from each other, and built of the flimsiest materials.

233. A suggestion which I would here make, especially for the consideration of municipalities or of residents of large villages, where many educated men live, is that they would lend immense assistance to the police in detecting crime if they would pay some attention to the lighting of their towns and villages. It is only within the last few years that the immense protection afforded to shops containing valuable property, by keeping them lighted up at night, has been understood, and it is a matter of history that nothing so much contributed to putting a stop to burglary and other crimes against property in the city of London, little more than a century ago, as properly lighting the streets. It may be too much to expect that Bengali villagers will resort to this most simple and most effective way of protecting themselves from thieves; but I see no reason why municipalities might not do much more than they do in this matter at present. Well-lighted streets and lanes in cities like Patna, Dacca, Arrah, Gya, Krishnaghur, &c., would do more to stop burglaries than a large increase to the numbers of watchmen, who cannot see, and consequently cannot catch, thieves and burglars at their work.

234. It is satisfactory to find that the number of the cases under this class, including the two serials of class III, in which investigation is denied, is steadily diminishing, and the full effect of the orders of Government, on this point, will be seen during the current year.

235. I also reproduce similar tables to those given last year, to illustrate the results of police action in cases of theft, cattle theft, and receipt of stolen property:—

The result of trials has not been, as regards cases, quite so good as last year, and, as regards persons, it is very much the same as in 1876. This result as regards cases is a natural consequence of the diminution in number of the cases treated as false,—the careful procedure in force in this respect in 1877 naturally bringing a large number of unpromising cases under investigation.

The percentages of convictions in cases and persons are given below:—

	Cases.			Persons.

Total	7,036	8,732	1,635	5,552	1,922	2,863	2,407

Taking serial Nos. 35 and 36 into consideration, crime under this class has remained almost stationary. There has been a diminution of crime under the heading lurking house-trespass; but, on the other hand, ordinary thefts have increased. I would rather see this result than an increase of the former description of crime, for there is much more hope of detection in theft cases than in those of lurking house-trespass. Bankoora and Hooghly still continue conspicuous for failure in detection of cases under serial No. 35. In the former only 5.7 per cent of the true cases were detected, and in the latter the miserable percentage of 3.4 only was attained. In Midnapore there has been a considerable decrease in cases of lurking house-breaking, which is attributed to a more thorough supervision of the rural police, and to a more intelligent interest in the work of investigation by the sub-inspectors and head-constables. "The improvement," says the Commissioner, "is satisfactory and creditable, but still, as the Magistrate says, the percentage of arrests and cases in A form is comparatively small, and the number convicted is not what it should be."

Howrah is again the only district in which convictions for theft are satisfactory. The Magistrate seems to think that while theft is rampant in the town, petty thefts are not properly reported in the mofussil. An inquiry is now going on with reference to this supposed concealment of crime in the mofussil thanas; but there can be no doubt that, with the population of Howrah of a low moral stamp, as it always has been, and rendered still lower in point of morality by the presence of large mills in the neighbourhood, which attract the riff-raff of other districts, theft will always be prevalent in that town. Bankoora and Hooghly are remarkable for the number of acquittals of persons sent up in theft cases. Out of 151 sent up in Bankoora 96 were acquitted, and of 424 brought before Magistrates in Hooghly 226 were released—results very unsatisfactory.

There has been a decrease in the number of cattle thefts. The percentage of convictions secured in cases has been the same as last year, 43·1 per cent.; while that of convictions of persons has not been so good, being 51·1, as compared with 58·6. In Midnapore the decrease noticed last year still continues. A gang of habitual cattle thieves was broken up, and four of the number convicted at the sessions, several cases having been proved against them.

None of the other headings call for remark.

Class V.

Total ...	8,843	9,769	1,600	5,839	1,933	2,966	2,611

These figures include those of serial numbers 35 and 36. It will be observed that there has been a considerable decrease, on the whole, throughout the division in crime of this class. This tendency to decrease appears in the districts of the 24-Pergunnahs, Jessore, and Nuddea, while in Moorshedabad there has been an increase of nearly 100 cases. In connection with this increase the Magistrate remarks that the frequent transfers of police officers have had a most injurious effect as regards this class of crime. I am not aware to what transfers this remark refers. As regards transfers of superior officers, I am not aware that there has been any unnecessary or unusual moving of men; but as details are not given, I cannot judge of the weight to be attached to the remark. I quite agree that transfers injudiciously and constantly made have a most injurious effect.

The results are slightly better than last year, both with regard to cases and persons convicted, the percentage of cases in which conviction was obtained being 23·6 against 23, and of persons 50·7 against 49·7. In the district of Jessore the results were very unsatisfactory, convictions being obtained in only 19·3 of cases and 45·2 of persons.

238. Taking serial numbers 35, 36, and 42 together, the result of action is as follows:—

	Percentage of cases detected.	Percentage of persons convicted.
24-Pergunnahs	7·1	57·7
Nuddea	8·6	57
Jessore	8·7	50·5
Moorshedabad	10·6	50

While the number of cases under serial 42 has remained very much the same as last year, it is satisfactory to observe a very considerable decrease in cases of lurking house-trespass and house-trespass. In the 24-Pergunnahs, under serial 42, there were 336 cases, or 70 per cent. of the whole number of cases in the division, and in 335 no inquiry was made by the police. It is explained that these 335 cases were either simply attempts at house-breaking, or cases in which no property was stolen. It is however, in my opinion impossible to accept this explanation. It is simply incredible that in only one case out of 336 falling under serial number 42 did the burglars succeed in obtaining any property, and I have no doubt that either the police or the people have concealed crime. If the concealment has been on the part of the people, the fact is little to be wondered at, considering the culpable apathy of the police in inquiring into such cases, and I can find no excuse for the conduct of the officers entrusted with supervision and control of police work in the district in allowing every case, save one, reported under serial No. 42, to be habitually neglected, so far as investigation is concerned.

239. In cases of ordinary theft there has been an increase as compared with last year. I do not, however, believe that this increase is real, but has arisen from greater discrimination in striking off cases as false. There was a decrease in the number of cases reported of 385 cases, and yet the number of cases accepted as true exceeds that of 1876 by 204. The number of cases struck off in 1876 as false was 1,605, while in 1877 only 1,016 were so dealt with.

The results of police action were as follows:—

			Percentage of cases convicted.	Percentage of persons convicted.
24-Pergunnahs	38.1	56.1
Nuddea	27.2	55
Jessore	21.5	44
Moorshedabad	26.4	54

240. In cattle theft crime has remained almost stationary. In Moorshedabad a gang of six men, who had been carrying on this crime systematically in that district and in Nuddea, was broken up, which should produce a good effect. These men were found guilty in no less than thirteen cases.

Julpigoree	621	226	433	168
Total	4,769	1,763	2,891	1,713

These figures include those of serials 35 and 36. They show that there has been a large decrease in the number of cases reported, 8,455 in 1877, as against 9,140 in 1876. The number of false cases struck off, 1,257, as compared with 1,691 in 1876, naturally leaves the number of these cases proportionately larger; but, even so, there is a decrease of 251 cases in the division.

Taking the figures for crime under class V alone, there has been a decrease in every district of the division, except in Julpigoree and Darjeeling. In neither district, however, is the increase so large as not to be explained by the ordinary fluctuations of crime.

242. In burglary, serials 35, 36, and 42, there has been a decrease in all the districts except Julpigoree and Darjeeling. In neither is the decrease, however, remarkable. With reference to the general decrease in the other districts, the Commissioner remarks that it is creditable to the police. "I have no doubt he remarks that they have exercised greater energy and vigilance in the detection and prevention of this too common crime, and have been more watchful than usual over the manners of well-known bad characters." In Rajshahye a gang of burglars in the Nattore sub-division, who had been working undetected for months, and which consisted of two released convicts and seven registered bad characters, was successfully broken up by a detective head constable and constable. Nine cases were worked out and proved against these men, and they were committed to the sessions, where they received sentences varying from four to three years' imprisonment. The Judge complimented the police on their exertions in bringing this gang to justice.

The result of action as regards persons was most successful in Pubna, where 78 per cent. of the persons sent up for trial were convicted. In the other districts the convictions were as follows:—

Julpigoree	72 per cent.
Rungpore	67.5 "
Rajshahye	66.9 "
Bogra	58.3 "
Dinagapore	48.1 "
Darjeeling	47.9 "

243. Under theft (ordinary) there has also been a decrease of cases. The results obtained were good in Pubna and Bogra, and the reverse in Rajshahye and Rungpore. The Magistrate of Bogra speaks highly of Inspector Gobind Chunder Chuckerbutty for the manner in which he detected and prosecuted to conviction a gang of thieves, who made it their business to attend large fairs and commit thefts. This officer did well in another case, and I have noted his services.

244. The results of police action in cattle theft in almost all the districts of the division are good. In Julpigoree and Darjeeling they have not been very successful; but in Bogra, Pubna, and Dinagapore, the crime has been energetically dealt with. There is a very considerable decrease in the number of cases both in Dinagapore and Pubna—in the former district attributed to the action taken against bad characters in previous years, and in the latter to the severe sentences which are passed for this crime on detection.

The results are given below:—

	Cases.	Conviction in cases.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Dinagapore	20	17	29	20	4
Rajshahye	17	8	23	12	9
Rungpore	48	28	45	33	11
Bogra	33	28	61	40	19
Pubna	25	20	31	29	2
Darjeeling	33	12	34	18	16
Julpigoree	19	7	11	9	2

The exertions of Sub-Inspector Bhubon Mohun Doss in breaking up a gang of cattle-lifters are specially commended.

The result of operations against persons receiving stolen property was very satisfactory. Of the cases which occurred 82.7 ended in conviction, and 76 per cent. of the persons sent up for trial were punished.

There has been a slight increase of about 250 cases in the division, but considering that only 1,748 cases were treated as false, while in 1876, 2,820 were so excluded, the percentage of true cases in 1877 must have been largely affected by this mode of treatment.

The Commissioner considers that, on the whole, crime may be said to have remained pretty much the same as it was in 1876. The results, however, have not been so good, convictions of persons in 1877 being about 50 per cent. as compared with 54 per cent. last year.

All that is said in the divisional report is "in both the districts there is a considerable increase in this crime. This also is attributed to the disorganization consequent on the cyclone, which afforded an opportunity for petty thefts of all kinds." "The cyclone," says the Commissioner, "did duty last year as an explanation of the very remarkable increase of crime in Noakholly. The same increase is visible this year, and the same explanation is repeated. Having nothing but the above meagre comments on the state of crime in this class to work upon, I cannot say whether this explanation should be accepted or not. I can only again bring to the notice of the Magistrate and District Superintendent the steady increase of crime in Noakholly under almost every heading of this class."

These figures include cases under serial Nos. 35 and 36, and it will be evident that there has, on the whole, been a considerable decrease in this class of crime during the year. There has been an increase in Gya and Durbhunga, which will be dealt with under the various headings subsequently.

248. Under burglary, which is the most important heading in the class, there has been a very satisfactory decrease in cases, as will be seen from the figures below:—

	Cases reported.	False cases.	True cases.	Convictions in cases.
1875	8,567	525	8,042	386
1876	7,664	386	7,278	447
1877	7,031	274	6,717	425

This decrease has taken place, although the percentage of cases struck off as false has fallen from 5 to 3·8 per cent.

The proportion of cases investigated to cases reported still continues to rise, being this year 76·6, as compared with 65·7 of last year. The result, would have been better still but for the very large number of cases not inquired into in the district of Gya. Throughout the whole division 1,640 cases, out of the total number of 6,925 reported under serial No. 35, were not inquired into, and of these 1,640, 1,275 cases not inquired into belong to Gya. In this district 2,229 cases were reported, so that inquiry was refused in more than half (57·2 per cent.) the number which took place. The District Superintendent says that, "except in the town of Gya, where all cases reported are inquired into, no investigation is made into cases of attempt to commit theft or burglary." The Commissioner has "impressed upon the Magistrate the necessity of insisting on the police making inquiry in every case." I think the people living outside the town of Gya, in the midst of a notoriously criminal population, are just as much entitled to have their cases inquired into, and by so doing the bad characters kept in check, as those living within municipal limits. The following table shows the operations of the police in each district:—

The decrease in Patna is striking, and is due to a preventive system introduced by Captain Ramsay, of which I shall have more to say afterwards. The decrease in burglaries noticed in Shahabad last year continues, and is due, no doubt, to the effect of the proceedings taken against bad characters in 1876. There is also a considerable decrease in Sarun, which is not accounted for. The increase in Gya is due most probably to the high price of food. The detective results in this class of crime are still very poor; in Sarun especially the police seem unable to cope with burglary altogether.

The peculiar description of burglaries which took place in Mozufferpore, and to which reference was made last year, may, from certain facts which have come to light since the year closed, prove to have been the work of Kabulees, but this subject will be dealt with fully next year.

249. Cattle theft has remained almost stationary, on the whole, in the division. In some of the districts there has been a decrease; but in Shahabad there has been a very marked increase, the number of cases having risen from 35 to 78. Beyond mention of this marked increase, no explanation of the supposed cause of it is given in the divisional report. The result of operations was fairly good, being, as regards convictions in cases, 44 per cent., and, with regard to persons, nearly 66 per cent. In Chumparun, convictions were obtained in 17 out of 19 cases, and 21 persons out of 24 sent up for trial were punished.

250. Under the heading "ordinary theft" there has been an increase of 533 cases as compared with 1876. This increase is not so remarkable when it is borne in mind that cases treated as false have decreased by 378 cases. The increase is visible chiefly in Durbhunga, and it is attributed to "the effects of the Chowkeydari Act in securing more punctual information." I am not inclined to put much faith in this explanation. The result of operations has been almost the same as last year:—

	1876.	1877.
Cases detected	1,574	1,750
Persons arrested	4,020	4,220
Ditto convicted	2,014	2,288
Percentage of convictions in cases	39·4	38·7
Ditto ditto of persons	58·8	61·2

There has been a considerable increase under "criminal or house-trespass", in the district of Durbhunga, and this the Magistrate explains is due to his action with regard to illegal distraint of crops. The Magistrate represents that the landlord's legal power of distraint had been much abused in that district, it being "a common practice to enter upon a ryot's field without any of the preliminaries required by law being observed, and prevent him cutting his crops till arrears of rent several years old were paid up. Failing prompt payment, the landlord's people used to cut down and carry off the crops."

Taking the figures under serial Nos. 35 and 36 separately, the result is as follows:—

DISTRICTS.	True cases.		Cases in which convictions were obtained.		Persons arrested.		Convicted.		Acquitted.

Total ...	2,444	2,348	136	130	329	295	198	188	78	71

It thus appears that there has been a decrease under this class of crime. The results under serial Nos. 35, 36, and 42, which are cognate offences, are as follows:—

True cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
2,406	149	297	207	75

It is needless to point out that the result is miserable, and the failure of the police in such cases is as conspicuous as ever.

252. Cattle theft has decreased in the division, although in Purneah and Monghyr there has been a slight increase. In last year's report it was noted that many of the cases reported as simple loss of cattle from the animals having strayed were in reality thefts. During the present year a better look-out has been kept, and cases of reported straying of cattle have been treated as thefts. The result of this vigilance on the part of the District Superintendent of Monghyr was that a gang of Mahomedan butchers from Durbhunga, disguised as Hindoos, were caught taking 27 head of cattle out of the district, and three of them were punished. The conviction of this gang has been attended with the best effect.

253. Ordinary thefts have diminished everywhere, the increase visible in Monghyr being undoubtedly due to more discrimination being exercised in striking off cases as false. The decrease in Purneah is attributed to the further breaking up of gangs of dacoits, who resorted to petty theft when afraid to commit dacoity, and in Maldah to sickness and the failure of the mango crop.

There has been a decrease in cases of stolen property, attributed to the diminution in the number of thefts.

254. The results of police action in cases of cattle theft, theft, and receiving stolen property is as follows:—

	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Cattle theft	270	129	342	228	94
Theft, ordinary	3,500	839	2,639	1,545	973
Receiving stolen property	192	143	287	214	66

In the cases of receiving stolen property the results are very satisfactory. In Monghyr, out of 84 persons sent up for cattle theft, 65 were convicted; and the cases of receiving stolen property, which were taken up in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, were specially successful, convictions following in 35 out of 41, 45 persons being punished out of 58 sent up for trial.

There is a very considerable increase of cases under this class. In Cuttack the increase is chiefly under the heading "petty theft." The Commissioner remarks as follows:—"The very large export trade which, during the last few years, has sprung up in this district, and the great boat, cart, and bullock traffic in connection therewith, offer increased facilities for, and temptation to, pilfering. The Ooriya peasant of to-day is believed to be better off than formerly,—having more money, ornaments, and household goods, consequently there is more to steal, and greater opportunities for the thief." The lamentable failure of the police in detecting these cases is deplored by the Magistrate.

In Pooree the large increase is accounted for by quite exceptional circumstances. The Magistrate writes:—"On the 1st of January, during my absence from the district in order to be present at a durbar held in Cuttack in commemoration of the assumption of the title of 'Empress of India' by Her Majesty the Queen, the people of Pooree of the humbler classes rose and pillaged a quantity of rice collected by merchants for export by sea, consequently a large number of persons were arrested and punished. The circumstances under which this unfortunate affair took place were quite exceptional."

There has been an increase of above 300 cases during the year, such increase being chiefly apparent in the district of Lohardugga under the heading "thefts, ordinary." The Deputy Commissioner observes;—"the increase in the number of thefts is not attributable to any particular cause, and I am inclined to consider that the increase is in some measure merely nominal, and due to more careful performance of their duties by the village chowkeydar and the regular police."

In Manbhoom there has been a decrease under thefts, lurking house-trespass by night, and cattle theft. The Deputy Commissioner attributes this to the effects of proceedings taken against bad characters in previous years, and to emigration having relieved the districts of many of the poorest classes, who, remaining in their homes, would probably have lapsed into theft.

Class VI.

257. There has been a considerable decrease in crime under this class, as shown below:—

	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.	1877.
Cases, true	13,304	13,272	15,206	18,257	16,348

Persons punished	13,438	13,775	16,501	18,856	17,474

Although the number of cases has decreased, the percentage of convictions in cases and of persons has not fallen off, being with reference to the former 82·9, and the latter 85·8, as compared with 81·9 and 84·5 in 1876.

There has been a net decrease of 1,909 cases in the class, although under some of the headings there has been an increase. Thus, under the headings vagrancy and nuisances, there has been a decrease of 2,056 and 242 cases, respectively, while under excise and salt law offences there has been an increase respectively of 182 and 189 cases.

258. As was to be expected, there has been a very large decrease in the number of cases taken up, owing to the declaration of the views of Government on the subject contained in circular order No. 56, dated 22nd August 1877. I have already had the honor to address Government on the subject in my letter No. 11819, dated the 10th September 1877, and the full effect of the change in the policy of Government will not become apparent until the close of the current year. All that I can say at present is that the bad characters, and their protectors in most of the districts, are fully aware of the change of policy, and will no doubt take advantage of it for their own ends. The orders of Government will of course be carried out, and at the end of 1878 I shall be better able to point to the effect which the carrying out of these orders has had on crime.

The result of operations during the present year has been as follows compared with 1876:—

	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
1876	4,957	3,370	5,154	3,618	1,243
1877	2,901	1,982	3,173	2,184	937

The percentage of convictions in cases was 68·3, as compared with 67 in 1876, and of persons 68·8 as compared with 70. The slight falling off in convictions of persons is no doubt due to the demand made by judicial officers, after the issue of the circular order of August, for stronger evidence than they previously thought necessary for conviction. If magisterial officers will carry out the orders of Government to try all such cases locally, there will be no lack of evidence forthcoming in the villages, and the percentage of conviction will doubtless improve.

In the following districts the results were above the general average:—

DISTRICTS.	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Burdwan	110	78	110	78	32
Nuddea	48	33	48	33	15

Chumparan	188	152	196	152	35
Monghyr	143	121	148	121	27

And in the following districts the results were decidedly unsatisfactory:—

DISTRICTS.	Cases.	Convictions.	Persons.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
Hooghly	65	38	62	38	24
Furzedpore	97	26	94	46	47
Backergunge	120	44	105	44	55
Mymensingh	53	19	58	25	33
Chittagong	33	14	30	18	11

In Backergunge I observe that no less than 38 cases have been pronounced false.

259. As noted above, there has again been a small increase of 182 cases under this heading. During the year I have continually impressed on police officers the importance of paying attention to this portion of their duties; the work of the police is closely supervised every quarter, and I believe that somewhat more attention is now being paid to the subject, although I still consider that, as excise officers, the police are decidedly lax in performing their duties. In Hooghly, which is close to Chandernagore, and where it is generally believed that a considerable number of breaches of excise laws takes place, there has been a diminution of cases. Jessore and Nuddea show 28 cases of breach of excise laws in both districts during the year; in the whole of the large Dacca Division only 80 cases are reported, and in Singbhoom, Mozufferpore, and Sarun the state of matters is equally unsatisfactory.

Excise and Opium Laws.

A large increase of cases is noticeable particularly in Monghyr and Lohardugga, attributable in both districts to the fact of the Magistrate taking some personal interest in this department of his duties. In Beerbhoom, too, there has been a considerable increase in cases of illicit possession of pachwai.

RAILWAY POLICE.

260. There has been an increase of 129 cases as compared with last year, due entirely to an increase in the number of petty thefts. In all 1,154 cases were reported, in which 1,199 men were concerned. Of these 1,066 were sent up for trial, 881 were convicted, and 163 acquitted. The percentage of convictions was thus 82·6 per cent.,—a very satisfactory result. The recovery of property stolen was unsatisfactory, only Rs. 5,204 being recovered out of Rs. 18,681 stolen, this unsatisfactory result being attributable to failure in three cases in which large amounts were stolen. In one case Rs. 2,562 in jewels were reported stolen, and nothing was recovered. The case was a most suspicious one, and I am strongly inclined to believe that it was altogether false. In another case a very heavy theft of 7,000 rupees in cash was committed. The thieves were traced and convicted, but only Rs. 1,179 were recovered. The whole amount plundered being in coin, further recovery is, I am afraid, hopeless. A third case, in which Rs. 2,238 was reported stolen, was still pending at the close of the year. In addition to these cognizable crimes, there were 339 non-cognizable cases reported during the year. In 253 of these cases inquiry was made by the police, resulting in 293 persons being brought to trial, of whom 285 were convicted.

261. The number of these has increased compared with the figures for last year, there having been 129 as against 96. In Railway accidents. 45 of these cases 45 persons, 31 outsiders and 14 company's servants, were killed; in 43 cases 45 persons, 13 outsiders and 32 company's servants, were wounded; and 41 cases were of a petty nature.

262. This kind of theft has diminished during the year, there being 65 cases as against 99 of last year. But the difficulties of Spike and fencing thefts. detection are as great as ever, and the results of police action are very unsatisfactory. In 13 cases only 21 persons were arrested, of whom 16 were convicted and five acquitted. It is remarkable that 10 of these cases occurred in the neighbourhood of Nulhati and Moraroe, so that evidently this crime had localized itself to some extent. Hitherto, however, in spite of persistent efforts on the part of the Assistant Inspector-General and his subordinates, the thieves have eluded detection. I have called the attention of the Assistant Inspector-General to the remarks of the Magistrate of Moorshedabad upon this subject in paragraph 274 of this report. Noticing also that the plan of quartering chowkeedars on villages in the vicinity of the line from which spikes, &c., had been stolen had in 1876 been tried successfully by the Magistrate of Futtehpore, I have put myself in communication with that officer with the view of ascertaining the details of his plan. I also communicated with the Inspector-General of Police of Madras on the subject, but this officer assures me that this description of crime is absolutely unknown in Southern India.

263. Thirteen cases were reported during the year, most of them being Obstruction on the line. not of a very serious character. One serious case of obstruction took place at Jamtara, in which sleepers were placed on the line. After a long inquiry a clue was obtained to the perpetrators of this crime; a confession was obtained from one of those implicated, and 4 men were committed to the Sessions. They were, however, acquitted at the Sessions, and the Judge severely censured the conduct of the Inspector who had investigated the case. I did not consider that the censure was deserved, and after making every inquiry, Government came to the conclusion that although the procedure of the Inspector was in some respects irregular, his conduct did not merit the censure recorded by the Judge.

264. Ten cases were reported. In seven ten persons were arrested, of whom 8 were sent up for trial and convicted.

Pick-pocket cases.

265. The trade in this contraband article still continues, although during the year 50 persons who were concerned in thirty cases were all convicted and sentenced. The amount of opium recovered in these cases was 13 maunds 19 seers 1 chittack, as compared with 4 maunds 16 seers 12 chittacks of 1876, and 2 maunds 22 seers 3 chittacks of 1875. Rewards are now paid by magisterial officers with greater promptitude than before.

There has been an increase, on the whole, of 97 cases as compared with 1876, and of 19 cases as compared with 1875. In the 24-Pergunnahs the increase consists of 173 cases, and the percentage of convictions to arrests was 99.01. 508 cases pertained to illicit manufacture. Midnapore is again this year marked by a large decrease, 162 cases in 1877 to 357 in 1876, and 570 in 1875. This decrease the local authorities account for by cases (numerous hitherto) of ignorant people failing to endorse their licenses with their sales having almost ceased. It is said that the sale of salt has increased, and that the facilities for illicit manufacture are yearly growing less.

In Chittagong the increase is most marked, 349 cases having occurred in 1877 to 101 in 1876. 250 of the cases of 1877 were of illicit manufacture, and the percentage of convictions to arrests (96) was good.

It is said that a good deal of illicit manufacture goes on in this district, and the police are fully alive to the fact.

Noakholly shows a decrease of 94 cases, attributable to a falling off in cases under section 22 and breach of Rule 35; 93 per cent. of convictions to arrests was obtained.

No other district shows a fluctuation in cases worthy of special notice.

The percentage of convictions to arrests shows an improvement, being 95.5 to 91.4 in 1876, and 90.1 in 1875.

The high percentage of convictions, and the fact that a very few persons underwent imprisonment in default of payment of fine, authorize a belief that the action of the police during the year was not in any degree oppressive, and that discrimination was used in making arrests.

There has been an increase in the quantity of salt attached of 1,251 maunds—1,736 maunds in 1877 to 485 in 1876; but the ratio of confiscation to seizure is very unsatisfactory, being 29·8 to 93·8 in 1876, and to 80·2 in 1875. Of the 1,217 maunds released by order of the Magistrate, Howrah is answerable for 981 maunds. Midnapore and Backergunge show badly also; for in the former district, out of 78 maunds attached, only four were confiscated; and in the latter district, out of 152 maunds attached 150 maunds were released by order of the Magistrate.

The total amount of fines inflicted during the year was Rs. 6,738-8-2, against Rs. 6,764-14-5 in 1876.

There has been a decrease here as elsewhere, caused chiefly by a diminution in the number of prosecutions for bad character. "This," says the Commissioner, "is attributable, partly at least to the effect of the Government circular of the 22nd August, the action taken by this office, and the instructions issued to the district officers with reference to the orders therein contained." He notices the proceedings of the Deputy Magistrate of Ghattal, who released two persons on consideration that they would leave their residences and the subdivision. The proceedings of the Deputy Magistrate, says the Commissioner, were "neither legal, fair, nor judicious; for if each Magistrate determines on driving his bad characters into neighbouring districts where they are not known, and are thus able to re-commence with a carte blanche, they may do much harm before their notoriety is re-established, and all districts must suffer alike at the cost of the one district thus temporarily relieved."

268. In excise cases there has been a falling off in number. In Burdwan, where there have been only 28 cases during the year, the District Superintendent thinks that the practice of illicit distillation has been nearly stamped out. The Magistrate, however, does not agree with him, and it seems to me absurd to talk of the police "stamping out" illicit distillation in a district like Burdwan by bringing to light in 1875, 1876, and 1877, 18, 37, and 28 cases, respectively, of breach of excise laws.

In Bankoora the District Superintendent says that the police do not seem to have paid any attention to supervising excise shops, grave irregularities having come to light, e.g. opium and ganja shops, in which no accounts had been kept for several years. "Such a state of things," says the Commissioner, "is not creditable, and shows a want of supervision in the executive."

The results in Beerbhoom are good, but the Magistrate is not satisfied, because the police do not find out cases of illicit distillation—illicit possession arguing illicit distillation. The Commissioner points out that most of the cases are of possession of pachwai, in the manufacture of which there is no distillation.

There is a considerable decrease of 483 cases in this class visible, chiefly in prosecutions for vagrancy and in local nuisances. The results were generally satisfactory.

Below are given the results of action taken against bad characters, as compared with those of last year:—

Total ...	577	297	320	171	595	326	376	204	170	119

As was to be expected, there is a large decrease in the number of cases taken up; the results are very much the same as last year—the percentage of convictions in cases being 57·5 against 55·4 of 1876, and of persons convicted 62·5 as compared with 64·7. In Nuddea and Moorshedabad the result was what may be called satisfactory; in Jessore, on the other hand, the percentage of convictions in cases was only 45·2, and of persons 50. Whether this want of success is due to the police sending up insufficient evidence, or to unwillingness on the part of Magistrates to convict on evidence which previously satisfied them, I am not prepared to say. Most probably both causes have had something to do with the result.

270. Offences against the excise laws have fallen from 228 in 1876 to 183 in 1877. This decrease is visible in both Moorshedabad and the 24-Pergunnahs. In the large districts of Jessore and Nuddea 28 cases of breach of the excise laws are supposed to have occurred. I still decline to believe that these figures in any way really represent the number of breaches of the law which occur. More attention is beginning to be paid to this important part of police duty, and I hope that there will be an improvement during the current year in the results obtained.

271. Offences against the railway laws have increased from 27 to 41. In Nuddea convictions were secured in 20 out of 24 cases—a satisfactory result. In Moorshedabad only seven cases out of 14 were successful.

272. Cases of spike theft are becoming common in Moorshedabad, 27 having occurred in that district, in only three of which were convictions obtained. The Commissioner remarks on the difficulty of detecting such cases, and there is no doubt that the difficulties in the way of detection of this crime are very great. The Commissioner, in connection with these cases, quotes with approval some remarks of the Magistrate of Moorshedabad:—“The Railway Company has the remedy, likely to be most effectual, in its own hands. Regardless of inconvenience, I would have every khalasee on a length, where thefts were frequent, moved to different places at a distance; and if thefts broke out at the place to which such a khalasee was removed, there could be no doubt to what cause they are attributable.” This might tell us the cause of the thefts, i.e. the conduct of the khalasees. This, however, we know already, for it is pretty well known that these line khalasees or ballast coolies are generally the guilty parties; but the difficulty is to catch the thieves. The spikes are easily made away with, being generally given to blacksmiths at a distance, who convert them into other implements, and make recovery and identification of the property as difficult as in the case of cash or gold and silver ornaments made over to the professional receiver who melts them.

273. Offences against the salt laws have increased considerably in the 24-Pergunnahs and slightly in Jessore. In the latter district all the prosecutions were for breaches of the rules relating to the sale and transport of salt, while those in the 24-Pergunnahs were for illicit manufacture. The previous experience of Mr. Shuttleworth, the District Superintendent in the Salt Department, is of great use, and the results of police action in salt cases are very creditable to him and his subordinates. Of 602 cases reported, 597 were detected. In Jessore, also, the results were satisfactory, 19 cases out of 21 having been successfully prosecuted.

There has been a very considerable decrease in offences under this class, due partially to diminished action against bad characters in some districts, Dinapore and Rungpore, and to less activity in the matter of public and local nuisances in Rajshahye, Pubna, and Julpigoree. The results of cases were generally fair, except Rungpore, where the number of convictions obtained was below the average and unsatisfactory.

275. Under vagrancy, there is a marked decrease in Dinapore and Rungpore. The unusually large number of prosecutions in the former district is assigned as the cause of decrease this year. In Pubna action against bad characters during the present year appears to have been taken chiefly in the Serajgunge sub-division, where the Sub-Divisional Officer carefully inquired into the cases brought to his notice. The results are given below:—

	Cases.	Conviction.	Percentage.	Persons.	Convicted.	Percentage.
Dinapore	160	106	66	174	106	67
Rajshahye	36	23	63.8	236	23	63.8
Rungpore	115	72	62.6	123	80	65

Pubna	56	43	76.7	59	43	72.9
Julpigoree	46	33	71.7	48	33	68.7

276. In excise cases there has been a small increase in the number of cases, due almost entirely to an increase of activity in this department in Rungpore. The same culpable neglect of duty which was commented on last year is visible in Dinapore, Pubna, Rajshahye, and Julpigoree. The necessity of paying attention to their duties as excise officers has been impressed upon District Superintendents throughout the year, but it is evident that the same indifference which existed previously has been shown in the above districts. It will be necessary, in considering claims to promotion of officers in these districts, to note whether there has been any improvement in the excise work of their subordinates. It is anything but creditable to the officers in charge of these districts that year after year such habitual neglect of excise duties should be allowed to continue.

Total	1,485	1,173	42	1,203	761	864	304

There has been a considerable decrease in offences under this class, which is almost entirely visible under vagrancy. In 1876 there were 641 true cases dealt with, while in 1877 only 392 cases have been taken up.

In connection with the case referred to in paragraph 239 in last year's report, in which I mentioned that I thought I had discovered a connection between the Punkachur gangs of Kayast thieves and a gang which had been caught in Dacca, the Commissioner reports that arrangements were made to receive these gangs at the Janmostomi and Barani fairs, which they were in the habit of frequenting. This year, however, they did not appear, having probably received information that they were expected. I have had a census made of the Punkachur men, and have forwarded printed lists of the principal members of the gangs, with their relatives in the eastern districts, to various districts. These men will all be looked up, and by the end of this year I hope to be in possession of full information as to all the branches of the gangs.

Another gang of apparently professional thieves was this year arrested in Dacca. "Sub-Inspector Prayag Tewari, when in charge of the town police, succeeded admirably in capturing a large gang of up-country men, who came from Bundelcund and commenced petty thefts in the bazars and shops. Their modus operandi was similar in many respects to the Furreedpore gang captured last year. This gang crowded round the shops, and while the attention of the shop-keepers was drawn to one of their number, who generally asked for alms as a fakir, the others stealthily walked away with whatever they could lay their hands on, and then dispersed without any confusion or hurry whatever. If any hue or cry arose, they pretended the utmost indifference and made themselves out to be sadoos, who were going on a pilgrimage to Kamacha (Kamroop). A boy was caught who confessed, and the Magistrate committed eight out of the nine persons arrested to the Sessions Court under section 401, the ninth having been made Queen's evidence."

278. With reference to excise cases, the Commissioner reports that the operations of the police have been very successful in Dacca this year, and the result shows an increase of 521 gallons on the sale of country spirit during the nine months ending December 1877, as compared with the same period of the previous year. Illicit manufacture does not, as a rule, prevail throughout this district, the only place where it is carried on to any extent is in 36 mouzahs of the Bhowal pergunnah, where the District Superintendent personally organized a system of prevention, and the result showed an increase of sale to the extent of 80 gallons in one month. If the increase of 521 gallons sold in nine months is, as is apparently the case, put down to the exertions of the police, who in Dacca have been singularly apathetic in excise matters, it seems difficult to resist the conclusion that illicit manufacture has been going on, and is still going on, for such manufacture does not stop all at once. I further observe that in the district of Dacca, during the year, there have been 8 cases of breach of the excise laws sent up by the police. I still am unable to believe that in such a great district containing a city like Dacca there have in reality only been eight cases of breach of the excise laws cognizable by the police during the year.

Allowing that the population in many parts of Eastern Bengal abstain from the use of intoxicating drinks and drugs, it is surely impossible to believe that in the five large districts of Dacca, Mymensingh, Backergunge, Furreedpore, and Tipperah there should only have occurred 80 cognizable cases of breach of the excise laws during the year, that is, almost exactly the same number which has occurred in one district (Chittagong) of the adjoining division. The Commissioner remarks: "Looking at the action taken all over the division, I think it may fairly be asserted that there has been somewhat more vigorous action on the part of the police in the repression of illicit practices,—the result probably of the greater amount of attention that district officers now give to the subject, though I do not understand the decrease in the number of cases in Dacca, more particularly when taken in connection with what is stated to have been the result of police action in Bhowal."

In Backergunge, which is the only saliferous district in the division, there were 17 prosecutions under the salt laws, as compared with 35 in 1876. This decrease is attributable to the fact that during the year a large portion of this district was exempted from the operations of the salt laws and excluded from the limits. The Magistrate reports that he is confident that the police are now attending to this part of their duties with more vigilance than before.

* The arrests were made by order of the Magistrate in cases not investigated by the police. The number of such cases, in which convictions were obtained, is not entered in the return, as there is no column in the return to show them.

There is a large increase in cases, under this class owing chiefly to salt cases having largely occurred. After the cyclone illicit manufacture of salt was carried on by persons who had lost all other means of subsistence.

There has been a slight increase in the number of vagrancy cases; but I observe that the results of such cases in Chittagong were very unfavourable, conviction following in only 14 out of 30 cases. This may be owing to the police having sent up insufficient evidence, or owing to Magistrates declining to convict on the evidence, with which they used to be satisfied.

The Commissioner notes the release of considerable number of time-expired dacoits in Noakholly. Step will be taken to have them carefully watched.

In Chittagong there were 79 cases of breach of the excise laws, and in Noakholly three. It is explained that breaches of the excise laws rarely occur in Noakholly. It is evident, at all events, that they are rarely found out by the police; and, judging from the conduct of the police in other districts, I should say that if the Noakholly police exerted themselves in excise matters, they would find that breaches of the law did occur. The increase in Chittagong seems to have arisen from the illicit sale of liquor by hillmen in the markets of the Chittagong district. Rules are now being framed to put a stop to this illicit traffic.

280. With reference to cases under the salt laws, the Commissioner remarks—"The salt laws and rules have been vigorously worked. The proportion of conviction to trial is satisfactory. Almost 97 per cent. of the number of persons brought to trial were convicted, the percentages being as high as 97 and 96 for Chittagong and Noakholly respectively. I very much fear that much undue harshness is practised in these cases, and that poor people, who have been caught boiling down a little salt-water for their own consumption, have been brought up for punishment." I confess that I do not agree with the Commissioner. In the first place, the people of Chittagong, where these cases have chiefly occurred, are, as a rule, uncommonly well off; and if people who break the law to supply themselves with salt for their own consumption are not to be stopped in their illegal conduct, the salt revenue will very soon be perceptibly affected, for such people will soon supply others, and illicit traffic will very rapidly develop itself.

There has been a large decrease in cases under this class, due almost entirely to the diminished number of prosecutions for bad livelihood, these cases having decreased by upwards of 600 cases during the year. The full effect of the change of policy will not be visible till the current year has expired. In connection with this subject of watching bad characters, Captain Ramsay, District Superintendent of Patna, has established a system of observing the fluctuation of crime, which may properly be noticed here. I reproduce in extenso his remarks on the scheme:—

“ The great difficulty experienced by police officers is to ensure becoming aware, sufficiently promptly to be of use, of the fact that any village or group of villages have commenced to suffer unduly at the hands of thieves and burglars within an abnormally short time.

When 20 or 30 house-breaking cases and attempts thereat are committed during, say, a couple of months, in the jurisdiction of a station having 350 or 400 villages in its circle, the matter would not attract special attention as anything alarming; but if, from an analysis of the position and dates of these cases, it appeared that 75 or 80 per cent. of the total number of cases reported were committed within groups of a few villages in one or two directions only, and within a period of a week or ten days, say during four or five days at the close of one month, and the same number of days at the commencement of the succeeding month, the aspect of matters becomes at once serious, and reflects discredit on the officers in charge of the station for allowing matters to go from bad to worse, instead of taking prompt repressive measures the moment these local epidemics of night crime showed themselves.

Recognizing this difficulty, and in order to obtain for himself as also to give all Inspectors and officers in charge of police-stations and outposts the information necessary to enable them to become promptly aware of the tendency of crime to increase in any particular locality, each station and outpost circle has been divided into beats of from 15 to 20 chowkeydars to a group. Each group of chowkeydars is entered on a single page of a register kept for the purpose, with the name of his village and the names of bad characters residing within each chowkeydar's charge in as many succeeding columns; the rest of the page is divided into 12 equal spaces, representing the months of the year, and as each case is reported the number of the first information and the section representing the crime complained of is noted opposite the name of the chowkeydar, within whose charge the offence occurred, and under the heading of the month in which the case is reported, false cases being subsequently indicated by a circle traced round the entry in red ink.

As the register is written up as each case is reported, all previous cases entered in the beat page cannot fail to strike the eye at once, and it is, therefore, impossible for a police officer to remain ignorant for a single day of the unusual outbreak of any kind of offence within the area of country under the care of any group or groups of chowkeydars, or, for that matter, of that within the beat of a single chowkeydar.

The page facing the one on which the names of the group of chowkeydars is recorded is left blank, ready for the entry of a detail of the results of the cases reported, as also for the insertion of notes specifying when any special increase of crime was observed, and reference to the diary detailing the measures taken to cope with and repress the same.

The information which has thus been obtained has been promptly acted upon in numerous instances with the most marked results; and, considering that the price of food in the Patna District has been unusually high, the results obtained would lead to the belief that the plan adopted is likely to be useful.

Such a system husband the powers of the police, and directs their full energies in the desired direction at the proper time, and prevents meaningless wanderings about parts of the country not in immediate want of police care, to the exclusion of other parts calling loudly, but vainly, for attention.

The presence of fresh arrivals of gangs of Nuths, Domes, and Mosaburs, is promptly ascertained, and the duties of the police regarding them are perfectly plain, and only require to be acted up to to ensure a prompt cessation of crime in the threatened localities.”

282. I entirely agree with the Commissioner in thinking the scheme worthy of trial, and I shall have it introduced in Behar as an experiment. If it succeeds, Captain Ramsay is certainly entitled to the credit of having originated an improvement in the police system. In many districts I do not see why the punchayets should not be made to do some duty in the way of reporting crime, sending information as to bad characters, as to the resort of suspicious persons, &c., &c.

283. Excise cases have slightly increased, showing a slight increase of vigilance on the part of the police. But, as elsewhere, the police have still much to do in the performance of their excise duties before they can expect commendation. In the district of Mozufferpore there were reported 25 cases, and in Sarun 18, in a population of about four millions.

In this division there has been an increase, which appears in excise and local nuisance cases. There is a very marked decrease, as elsewhere, in the number of cases taken up under the vagrancy sections, the figures showing 269 cases in 1877 as compared with 546 of last year. In Monghyr the number of cases has fallen from 244 to 143, and in Purneah from 179 to 65. The Commissioner observes. "The recent orders of Government upon this subject have no doubt had an effect in repressing these cases, but I do not object to the present state of affairs, provided either paralyzation of all action on the part of nervous judicial officers and a subservient police is not brought about. We must look to district officers to prevent this. My constant instructions to Magistrates are in no way to desist from applying the law as may be necessary, but to be careful to pick cases and, above all, try them on the spot. Upon the whole, it may be safely predicted that a diminution of future action against reported bad characters will clearly necessitate increased efforts on the part of the police to convict offenders of the actual crimes of which they are guilty. If this cannot be effected, we may look out for an advance in serious crime."

The result of the cases taken up is satisfactory in all the districts of the division except Maldah, although in the Sonthal Pergunnahs they may be improved.

285. In excise cases there has been a very marked increase in the district of Monghyr, and also a considerable increase in Bhagulpore. In Monghyr, which last year showed 56 cases reported with 50 persons convicted, we have this year 156 cases reported and 141 out of 162 sent up convicted. This activity on the part of the police is due to the interest which the Magistrate, Mr. Magrath, has shown in the matter; and the state of matters in Monghyr is a good instance of what may be expected, if Magistrates generally will spare some time for police duties. Mr. Magrath remarks: "Since the Excise Department has ceased to busy itself with preventive operations, the subordinate excise officials frequently try to thwart the police in finding out cases, and obtaining convictions on them, after trying to interest the Excise Deputy Collectors on behalf of the wrong-doers by coloured versions and misrepresentations of occurrences and harrowing pictures of probable loss to the excise by cancelment of licenses." Very probably the wrong-doers subsidized these subordinate officials, and naturally object to their illicit gains being diminished by justice being done on the offenders.

With reference to operations in the districts of Purneah, Maldah, and the Sonthal Pergunnahs, the Commissioner observes—"The lasting stagnation in the work of detection here that appears while other districts are improving is very unsatisfactory and discreditable." These remarks are fully deserved in Purneah and Maldah, when the results in these and the other districts of the division are compared.

286. With reference to nuisances the law seems to have been vigorously worked in the division, and the fact that out of 826 persons put on trial 763 were punished shows that the cases have, as a rule, not been frivolous or lightly taken up.

Class VI.

287. ORISSA DIVISION.

Gurjhat	14	5	4	5	1	2	3
Total	1,015	1,428	17	1,481	1,307	1,390	88

The increase of cases in this class is accounted for by increased activity in Pooree in prosecuting nuisance cases. I am bound to say that from what I saw of the state of the town of Pooree when I visited it in the cold weather, activity in prosecuting such cases is much required.

288. The provisions of the law relating to vagrancy and bad character have scarcely been put in force at all in the division during the year,—there having been six cases in the four districts during the year. With the increase in petty offences against the property noticeable, I can hardly think that there is no occasion to resort to the provisions of the law as to bad characters, who prey upon the villagers, unrepressed by the police as regards detection of their secret crimes.

289. Excise cases have as usual been few. Neither smuggling nor illicit manufacture exists to any great extent in the division. The introduction of the outstill system is regretted by the Magistrate of Cuttack, as likely, in addition to increasing facilities for procuring drink, "to lead to the congregation of hillmen, Pans, and low caste gangs on the borders, where the police will be unable to supervise their movements."

290. Under offences against the salt laws there has been in Cuttack a very considerable increase, which denotes an increased activity on the part of the preventive and regular police in this branch of their duties. The cases here are all of petty smuggling and breaches of conditions of rowanahs and rowanah rules. In connection with the open evasion of the law which, under the merciful orders of the Board of Revenue passed after the famine in Orissa, still goes on, the Commissioner observes as follows:—

"By the orders of the Board of Revenue of the 20th March 1871, it was directed that the rigour of the law should not be enforced in cases where it was clearly established that the salt illicitly manufactured was not for sale, but for home consumption by persons too poor to purchase. On the strength of the Board's orders, circular orders were issued to the police that they were not to arrest in such cases. Later on it was recognized that some standard was necessary in order to judge whether salt was made for home use by poor people or for sale, and it was directed that only those who were found to have made more than five seers were to be interfered with. These orders were issued at a time when Orissa had not quite recovered from the effects of the famine, and at that time no doubt there were many people too poor to purchase a sufficient quantity of salt. This state of things has long passed away, and as the Orissa ryot of the present day is quite as well off as his brother in Bengal, there is no apparent reason why he should now be exempted from paying his share of taxation, or should continue to be openly allowed to evade the law. The Magistrate says that under cover of the orders, petty illicit manufacture goes on to a large extent under the noses of the police, and that they are powerless. It seems to me that the orders have been misunderstood. If the people are not too poor to purchase, the orders do not apply. (But how are the police to find out whether the people are too poor to purchase without inquisitorial inquiry?) I will address the Board for the rescindment of the orders, but it seems to me singular that if illicit manufacture under five seers is extensive, there should not be a single case of such manufacture over the limit." I entirely agree with the Commissioner, and unless the condition of the ryots in parts of Chittagong (vide my remarks in paragraph 282) should be very much worse than I believe it now is, I would not there legalize an evasion of the law, which is found to have produced mischievous results in Orissa.

In Pooree and Balasore there has been a falling off in cases. In the case of the former district no explanation is given. In Balasore the District Superintendent attributes the decrease to the fact that "preventive operations have been now placed on such an efficient footing that smuggling of any dimensions may be expected never to make head again." The Commissioner, however, is "rather inclined to think the police have been somewhat lax in this particular part of their duties."

Manbhoom	251	187	242	134	168	74
Total ...	971	631	5	809	500	657	152

The decrease which is observable in this class is due chiefly to diminished activity under the heading of public and local nuisances. Prosecutions for bad character have also, as was to be expected, decreased.

Excise operations in Hazareebagh, Singbhoon, and Manbhoom are nominal, which means that not much attention is paid to them. There is a large increase in these cases in Lohardugga, which the Deputy Commissioner says "is entirely due to the greater attention paid to excise matters by the executive authorities, and to the police being persistently incited and stirred up into ferreting out cases of illicit distillation." It would be well if the same system were followed in the other districts of the division.

NON-COGNIZABLE CRIME.

292. There has been a considerable decrease in the number of cases of non-cognizable crime, the figures being 95,367 as compared with 98,287 of 1876. The decrease has taken place in classes I, V, VI, and is most marked in the heading "Offences against public justice," in which the number of cases has fallen from 6,832 to 4,878. The number of persons summoned and appearing before Magistrates has also fallen from 103,830 and 75,691 to 100,687 and 72,745.

The percentage of convictions, both with reference to persons summoned and persons who actually appeared, has also fallen from 43 and 59 per cent. to 41.7 and 57.7.

293. The number of non-cognizable cases, in which the agency of the police was employed, has risen from 4,964 in 1876 to 5,670 in 1877—a result which is to be regretted. Such increased use of police agency is visible chiefly in cases under classes IV and V, and especially under heading 17, "Criminal misappropriation of property," in which the police were employed in more than half of the cases taken up. In 1,000 out of 1,810 cases under this heading was police agency employed; whereas in 1876 only 354 of 1,287 cases were investigated by the police, and in 1875, 263 of 928 cases were so treated. So large a proportion of these generally petty cases ought not, in my opinion, to have been made over to the police for inquiry.

Total ...	11,073	14,322	11,428	14,879	11,381	6,576	3,004	230

There has been a considerable increase during the year, which appears chiefly in the districts of Burdwan and Hooghly. In Burdwan there have been 4,363 cases as compared with 2,362, showing an increase of 2,001 cases. This increase is due to the large number of cases of criminal force instituted during the year, to increased activity in prosecuting cases of offences relating to weights and measures, and to the fact that about 300 convictions by Municipal Commissioners are now included in the return.

The Magistrate cannot, at present, account for the large number of cases of criminal force instituted, but he fears that frivolous charges have not been sufficiently discouraged.

The increase in Hooghly, which is not so remarkable as in Burdwan, is also due to larger institution of charges of criminal force. In Bankoora and Beerbhoom, on the other hand, these charges have diminished.

The percentage of convictions is exactly the same as last year—57·7.

The police were employed in 565 cases, against 371 in 1876. Nearly half of such inquiries took place in Burdwan, where in 264 cases (as compared with 102 in 1876) police investigation was resorted to. No explanation is given of this increase in Burdwan, and I see no reason why resort should be had in so many cases to police agency in the districts of the division.

Total ...	16,285	15,223	11,789	16,515	11,234	5,944	3,290	168

There has been a decrease throughout the division; but in no districts, and under no heading, has it been so marked as to call for special explanation. The result of convictions has not been so high as last year; but this, as remarked by the Magistrate of Nuddea, does not prove want of discretion in summoning people. He remarks—"In fact only about half the persons sent for by the courts are actually tried." The issue of processes in these cases has had its effect. Institution fees and process fees do, perhaps, keep some few cases out of the courts, but they have had far less effect than I should have expected.

The police were employed in 1,145 cases, as compared with 1,183 last year. In every district but the 24-Pergunnahs they were more sparingly employed than in previous years. But in that district police agency was employed in 16 per cent. of the cases instituted. This is a much higher percentage than has been reached during the two preceding years, and no reason for the police being more extensively employed in non-cognizable cases in the 24-Pergunnahs than in other districts of the division has been given, or is apparent.

It is satisfactory to note that the special measures taken by the Magistrate of Nuddea to prevent the time of the police being wasted by the Magistrates of Bongong have had effect, the percentage of cases investigated by the police throughout the whole district being only 2·8.

The percentage of such investigation by police in the division is as follows:—

	1875.	1876.	1877.
24-Pergunnahs	9·2	9·2	16·4
Nuddea	4·8	6·9	2·8

Total	7,312	7,232	5,741	8,226	6,593	3,878	2,263	108

There has been a decrease of non-cognizable crime in every district of the division except Rungpore. In Dinagore the decrease is accounted for by the fact that while in 1876 no less than 1,330 chowkeydars were punished judicially, only 222 were so dealt with in 1877, neglect of duty on the part of village policemen being dealt with departmentally. In Pubna the decrease is attributed to the existence of a better understanding between landlords and tenants. The Commissioner directs attention to the fact that processes appear to have been issued in every case instituted,—a practice which indicates an absence of proper discrimination on the part of the Magistrates concerned.

Under cases of false evidence and false complaints 86 persons were convicted and 153 acquitted. In one case a man, one of the punchayets of a village in Pubna, was committed on the charge of murdering his daughter-in-law. There was not sufficient evidence to convict him of the murder, but it was proved that he deliberately concealed the body in the house of a neighbour with whom he was at enmity, accusing him of the murder. He was, therefore, charged with making a false charge with intent, &c., and on conviction was transported for life. Several of the witnesses who attempted to save him by denying at the Sessions having given evidence against the accused before the Magistrate, were punished for perjury.

The number of cases in which police agency was employed was 665, as compared with 453 in 1876. In 369 cases, or 32 per cent. of those instituted in the district of Dinagore, was the agency of the police employed, i.e. in one district the police were employed in investigating more non-cognizable cases than in the other six districts of the division. This looks as if in many cases in Dinagore the police were employed to do the work of the Magistrates in the trial of non-cognizable offences.

There has been a decrease in non-cognizable crime, on the whole, but there has been considerable fluctuation under the various classes.

In class I there has been a decrease, chiefly visible under offences against public justice. This is to some extent attributable to the exclusion of complaints dismissed under section 147, as involving questions of a civil nature, or a mistake of law, or fact; and fewer cases have also been made over by the civil courts during the year.

In connection with cases of causing miscarriage under class II, the steady decrease in which was noticed last year, the Commissioner mentions that in many villages enlightened landlords have issued particular orders to watch these cases, and see that miscarriages are not caused, and with markedly satisfactory result.

Under class III there has been a marked decrease in almost all the districts of the division, except Backergunge, where there has been a large increase. The increase in this district is attributed to the actual impoverishment of the people through the effect of the cyclone, and partly also, no doubt, to the way in which this circumstance was taken advantage of by the ryots as an excuse for withholding payments of rent.

Cases of criminal force under class IV have increased considerably in Dacca and Mymensingh, while in the other districts they have decreased. The Magistrate is inclined to believe that this increase is due to the material prosperity of the people,—their easy circumstances leading them to bring even the pettiest cases into court. The Commissioner does not accept this explanation, but thinks that this is due to the natural fluctuation of crime under this head. He observes—"It is quite as likely that during the current year Dacca and Mymensingh may show a large decrease, and some other district a large increase. But if this should turn out so, the Magistrate will, I venture to predict, not be able to say that it is due to any decrease in the material prosperity of the people. It is quite likely, however, that the increased facilities which are now offered for bringing charges of this kind, such as the appointments of Honorary Magistrates, and the sittings of Benches at places other than the district or sub-divisional head-quarters, will have not been without their effect on this class of case."

Under class V cases of criminal misappropriation of property have largely increased in Furreedpore and Backergunge. In the former district more than half of the increase is said to be attributable to the wreck of a jute boat. The boat was abandoned by the crew and plundered by the villagers, many of whom were punished. In Backergunge the increase is due to the manner in which property of all kinds, but especially cattle, were swept from the owner's possession, and criminally misappropriated by others.

The decrease in offences relating to marriage still continues, but this decrease is not attributable to the Registration Law. The Commissioner remarks—"Five Marriage Registrars appointed under Act I of 1876 have been at work in Backergunge during the whole year, but almost to no effect. Only 95 marriages and 89 divorces were registered under its provisions during the year. People have abstained from taking advantage of the provisions of the law, and the Act is reported to be showing symptoms of proving a failure there. The Magistrate of Dacca, in writing on this subject, remarks that the Mahomedan Divorce Act is practically a dead letter, as it was expected to be. It should either be repealed, or, better still, amended; it is clearly necessary that something should be done. From the above remarks it would seem that the operations under Act I of 1876 can have had but little effect on the decrease noted above, and the opinion seems to be fast gaining ground that it does not go far enough. I mentioned last year the efforts that had been used to get it understood by the bulk of the people for whose benefit it was mainly intended, but a very small measure of success has attended them. Another year's experience certainly tends to show that if the Act is to have the desired effect registration of marriages and divorces must be made compulsory."

The police were employed in 1,649 cases, as compared with 1,395 last year. In Furreedpore, in which last year 10 per cent. of the non-cognizable cases were investigated by the police, only 203 out of 4,529, during this year, were so inquired into. In Backergunge, however, the number of investigations by the police has almost doubled, although the number of cases instituted has not so markedly increased. In 1876, with 3,795 institutions, 233 cases were investigated by the police; in 1877, with 4,418 institutions, inquiries by police agency were made in 858 cases. The Commissioner observes, and with his observation I entirely agree:—"Having regard to the amount of heinous crime in Backergunge, and to the comparatively small force of investigating officers, I cannot think it was desirable to employ the police in almost one-fifth of the cognizable cases which occurred there. In saying this I do not lose sight of the fact that the district staff has been considerably reduced, and that time which would ordinarily have been given to the trial, or investigation, of cases by some of the officers that remained, has had to be devoted to other work. But, making all allowances for this, I still think the percentage of these cases referred to the police is far higher than it should have been."

There has been a remarkable decrease in both Chittagong and Noakholly, but especially the latter. I quote the remarks of the Commissioner on the subject: "The cyclone and storm-wave, which were assigned as causes for the increase of cognizable crime, are now set forth as reasons for the decrease shown above. Unfortunately the cyclone, together with the burning of the Deputy Collector's cutcherry, have of late been made to act as excuses for so many things that they are getting rather worn out. The excuse about paucity of officers is also getting somewhat threadbare. The real reason, the Commissioner finds, is the poverty of the people consequent on the extensive destruction of property. This, I imagine, is the reason which the Magistrates meant to give in saying that the results of the cyclone led to increase of cognizable and decrease of non-cognizable crime.

In 371 cases the agency of the police was employed; in Noakholly alone, such agency being made use of in 317 cases. These figures in my opinion show clearly that in that district the agency of the police in investigating non-cognizable cases was made use of to an improper extent.

There has been a decrease in the division to the extent of 326 cases, observable chiefly under classes I and VI. Offences under class IV, under heading principally of criminal force, have increased by 538 cases.

In Gya district there has been a marked decrease of non-cognizable crime to the extent of 956 cases, but no explanation of this falling off is given. In Durbhunga, I notice that there has been an increase of upwards of 300 institutions; that in 978 cases process was issued, as compared with 576 last year; and that, while in these 576 cases in 1876 907 persons were summoned, in 1877, 3,075 persons were called on to appear in the 978 cases in which process issued.

It does not, however, appear that processes were issued without discrimination, as of the 3,075 persons summoned 76 per cent. were convicted.

The results of trials was the same generally as last year—60·5 per cent. of convictions. In Chumparun, where the unsatisfactory result of cases has been noted for several years, the number of acquittals, 420, exceeds that of convictions, 411. The same unsatisfactory state of matters is visible this year in Sarun, where there were 857 acquittals to 841 convictions.

The number of cases in which police agency was employed was 415, or 4·4 per cent., as compared with 361, or 3·7 per cent. in 1876. It is evident that the courts in different districts treat this matter of employment of the police in non-cognizable cases in different ways. In Patna, with 1,628 cases, the police were employed in 127 cases, while in Gya, with 1,445 institutions, the agency of the police was resorted to only in nine. In Sarun, with 1,091 cases, the police were employed in only one. There can be no doubt that the less the police are employed in such cases the better, although in some instances police action is necessary and beneficial.

There has been a slight decrease throughout the division. In the various districts there has been the usual fluctuation observable, but in none has increase or decrease been such as to demand notice, except in Bhagulpore and Monghyr, where there has been an increase of, respectively, 204 and 340 cases. In the latter district the increase has occurred chiefly in classes I, IV, and VI. In Bhagulpore there has been an increase under classes I and VI. The Commissioner observes:—"These offences do not call for any particular remark, except that in the largest number of false cases the police applied for instituting prosecutions, and that more attention seems to have been paid by the police during the year to keeping the peace of the district."

In 365 cases, as compared with 319 last year, was the agency of the police employed. In Bhagulpore and Purneah such agency was most sparingly employed, while in the Sonthal Pergunnahs police inquiry was made in 209 out of 3,445 cases, and in Maldah in 97 out of 772.

301. Referring to the remarks in paragraph 22 of Government Resolution, the Commissioner remarks,—“I have called the attention of the Deputy Commissioner to the desirability of reducing as much as possible the amount of litigation in petty criminal cases by recourse to arbitration and the influence of the Government officers in settling disputes. I cannot, however, look for any fruit in this direction until we have emerged, to an even greater extent than is at present the case, from the flood of cases that has been brought upon us by the settlement operations and the provisions of Act III of 1872, and by strengthening the staff of officers, or by other means increased opportunity is afforded for officials moving about amongst the people and exerting their influence, as in old times, under the Sonthal system of administration.”

The above figures show that there was an increase of cases, that processes were issued more sparingly, and that the results of trials were better than last year. Amongst the cases which occurred, one or two are worthy of note. In one case three persons appeared to have gone about the country representing that they had authority to inquire respecting the use made of religious endowments, and had taken numerous small fees from the holders of such endowments. Three persons were convicted by the Magistrate under section 420, but two were released on appeal. In another case one Gunga Gobind Mitter borrowed some money from a mahajun at Cuttack and went to register the deed, the agreement between the parties being that the borrower should get the money on delivering the registering officer's receipt for the deed. He kept the real receipt himself, and in collusion with the head mohurrir of the office he got a blank form and forged a receipt, which he handed over to the money-lender. Afterwards, with the real receipt he got back the document again, and on presentation of the forged receipt the money-lender was sent to the Magistrate to be tried for forgery. Mr. Toynbee, however, discharged him and issued a warrant against Gunga Gobind Mitter, who was afterwards committed to the Sessions, and eventually sentenced to five years' imprisonment. The registration head mohurrir was dismissed. In my opinion he was fortunate in getting off with a departmental punishment.

The police were employed in 352 cases. In Cuttack district police agency was resorted to in 225 of these 352 cases, showing that the Magistrates of that district use the services of the police in non-cognizable cases much more extensively than in the other districts of the division. The Cuttack police have more work to do than the police of either Pooree, Balasore, or the Gurjhat, and they should not be burdened in addition with the largest share of inquiries into non-cognizable cases.

The only district in which there has been much fluctuation is Manbhoom, in which there has been an increase of 264 cases. I find no explanation of this in the district report.

Police agency has been employed in 7.5 per cent. of cases instituted. In Singbhoom the police have been employed in nearly 20 per cent. of non-cognizable cases—a manifest abuse on the part of officers before whom such charges are laid. It is obviously incredible that police inquiry should be required in so many non-cognizable cases.

305. The proceedings of the Mughya Domes and of the Bediyas still occupy attention. I have only received a short time ago the report on the Bediyas from the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, and I shall deal with the questions raised by it shortly when I visit Kishnaghur. I hope soon to have these pests of the eastern and northern districts under control. All District Superintendents are now in possession of particulars of some of the routes taken by the plundering gangs furnished by a confessing Bediya; and if District Superintendents will only exert themselves to look after these criminals when passing through their districts, I have no doubt that a check will be put upon their operations. I hope also gradually to have most of these men photographed, so that they may be recognized when absent from their homes.

This was rather a disastrous year for them, two gangs being caught and punished. It ought to be made imperative on all judicial officers, whenever a Bediya or Shikari is brought before them, to have inquiry made about him either from my office or from the District Superintendent of Nuddea. At my request the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, has issued orders on this point; and if Government will direct Magistrates to observe this procedure, the previous history of almost all Shikaries as regards convictions for crime can always be given, ensuring adequate sentences being passed on these professional and habitual thieves.

306. The Domes during the year gave much trouble. The attempt to bring them under the "Criminal Tribes Act" has been abandoned as too costly, and the police must accept the Dome question as one to be dealt with without such assistance.

307. The officers of the Nepal Government have given much assistance in repressing these plundering savages. Extra police were despatched to Chumparun from the neighbouring districts, a cordon of police-posts was established, and since the close of the year a report has been received that the measures adopted have been completely successful in repressing crime. The District Superintendent, Mr. Knyvett, deserved and received special commendation from Government for his exertions in putting a stop to the depredations of the Domes.

308. During the year I have come across a new tribe of apparently professional thieves from Oudh, who have taken to visiting Bengal. I discovered some up-countrymen in prison at the sub-division of Bongong in Nuddea, and as they did not answer the description of any up-country thieves with whom I was acquainted, I commenced strict inquiries about them. I had accidentally heard from the Deputy Commissioner of Gonda in Oudh, while travelling with him from England, that there was a class of thieves in his district, called Burwars. It occurred to me that these men at Bongong might belong to this class. I wrote to the Deputy Commissioner, and soon discovered that they were Burwars. Further inquiries led to one of them, a youth, confessing and telling us all about the gang. Some of their houses in Oudh were searched, and a quantity of property was found. The confessing prisoner pointed out the houses whence it had been taken, but the owners refused to identify it, as in the informations of the thefts given it had been mentioned that no property had been stolen. Conviction was therefore impossible, and the men were discharged. I have had them photographed for future identification if they again come to Bengal. I have enlisted the confessing boy as a constable, and I hope to identify the men if they return on any plundering excursion in this direction. Their habits are somewhat like those of the Chynes. They do not steal during the night, as a rule, but during the day from houses, railway stations, or bathing-ghâts.

309. In connection with this subject I may mention that two gangs of Khorasanis or Beloochis visited various districts and committed various acts of oppression at the various places where they halted; warrants for their deportation were obtained from Government, and they were escorted under police surveillance out of the province and made over to the North-Western Provinces police authorities.

310. An unusually large number of Kabulis or Moguls made their appearance in Bengal during the cold season. My attention was attracted to their proceedings with reference to selling cloth in a peculiar manner, and on inquiry it was found that in some places their proceedings were suspicious. In one case, in the district of Durbhunga, Kabulis were found to have committed a burglary in the house of an indigo planter, and this gave what is believed to be a clue to the peculiar burglaries in factories in Behar, which were mentioned in last year's report. The subject of movements of Kabulis will receive attention before the cold season.

311. In the report from the Dacca division an incursion of thieves from Bundelcund is noticed. Full inquiries will be made about them.

Reconviction.

Not received yet. Probably the District Superintendent will say that the information is not obtainable, as the records of the district have lately been destroyed by fire.

The subject is receiving the greatest attention, and Government have sanctioned a proposal to photograph habitual offenders. It will take a little time before I can put this scheme into working order, but I believe it will be found very useful.

313. I have to reiterate the observation which I made last year with reference to the inadequacy of sentences passed upon reconvictions, and I cannot too strongly remark upon the mischief which the infliction of such sentences as are given in the list below produces. Such misplaced mercy increases the work both of the magistracy and the police: it increases crime, it increases the loss caused to the people, it decreases nothing but the punishment due to habitual criminals, and it encourages them to persevere in their career of crime. The subject is, I am glad to say, receiving greater attention than before; but the list given below shows that in many cases the sentences awarded were most inadequate. I call particular attention to the amount of punishment awarded, apparently systematically, on reconviction on repeated acts of crime in the Gurjats. It appears to me that a punishment of less than one year's imprisonment for 13 distinct acts of theft is not likely to deter the offender on his release from preying on his neighbours.

314. The following statement gives some instances in which it appears to me the sentences passed on reconvicted offenders were altogether inadequate:—

BURDWAN DIVISION.

315. General character and conduct fair, as reported by the Commissioner.

Conduct of the police. In Bankoora, the Commissioner considers that the administration and supervision of the force was lax, and, from what I saw when I visited Bankoora, I agree with him. I have warned the District Superintendent that if improvement in many points is not apparent at next inspection of his district, changes in the administration must be made.

PRESIDENCY DIVISION.

"The general conduct and working of the police," says the Commissioner, "are fairly good. If the police are to be judged by a comparison of the number of heinous offences reported, and by the results of prosecutions in such cases, some improvement has been shown to have been effected on their working in the districts of the 24-Pergunnahs, Nuddea, and Moorshedabad."

In Jessore I consider that the working of the police has been decidedly unsatisfactory. Under many headings the results obtained have been very far from satisfactory. The staff of Inspectors in the district is strong, and the men can do good work if they are made to do it. As in the case of Nuddea, several of them have been too long in one place. This has been remedied.

RAJSHAHYE DIVISION.

The Commissioner reports that "the police of the division have done fairly well and shown some improvement, though, I think, the strenuous proceedings against bad characters have assisted materially in securing some of the most satisfactory results reported."

DACCA DIVISION.

The Commissioner notices that the police have failed in dacoities, murders, thefts, and wrongful confinement cases; that they have improved in detection of culpable homicide cases; and in the repression of illicit practices under the excise and salt laws, have worked to the satisfaction of the Magistrates.

The Magistrates of Furreedpore and Backergunge alone report on the general conduct of the police. The Magistrate of Furreedpore thinks that the number of punishments argues rather stricter supervision over, than worse behaviour on the part of, the subordinate police; and that, on the whole, the work of the police during the year compares favourably with that of the previous year.

The Magistrate of Backergunge, Mr. Barton, reports that, "considering the heavy duties imposed on them in the year 1877, and the number of cases which they had to investigate, I am of opinion that they worked better in the years under report than I have ever known them to do."

The Commissioner observes that although there have been some bad cases among them, "it is impossible that among a large body of men some cases of this kind will occur, and it would be unjust and unreasonable to stigmatize the whole force because of the faults of a few of its members."

I was not satisfied with the administration of the police of Mymensingh for some time, in connection with some cases in which the police behaved badly, but it has improved. The Commissioner was not satisfied with the way in which inspection duties were performed, but he has no fault to find with the way in which the force was handled, particularly in the three districts of Dacca, Backergunge, and Mymensingh, where the District Superintendents are men of ability and experience, and where the Magistrate's direct and personal influence is largely felt.

CHITTAGONG DIVISION.

Reported on the whole fairly good.

PATNA DIVISION.

The conduct of the police generally is pronounced to have been good. The Magistrate of Durbhunga complains, and, I believe, with great justice, that on the creation of the district his police was formed of drafts from other districts, and that, as district officers do not draft off good officers, "the police force of other districts was weeded of its least efficient members, and these came to Durbhunga."

I am bound to say that the Durbhunga police struck me on my visit there as being very inefficient.

Mr. Macdonnell specially notices the inefficiency which is to be found among the Sub-Inspectors and head-constables, and dwells upon the necessity of raising, above the temptations to which they are now subject, officers in charge of stations and outposts.

The Patna police were most efficiently supervised and looked after, and the Shahabad police, too, in my opinion, did their duty well.

BHAGULPORE DIVISION.

Monghyr is reported by the Commissioner to have "shewn by far the best work. The Bhagulpore police have done some good work, and next to them Maldah has also done fairly. Purneah is again unsuccessful. The Sonthal Pergunnahs police have kept their position. There have been very few complaints against police generally, and very few cases of misconduct."

ORISSA DIVISION.

The Magistrate of Pooree reports the conduct of the police to have been fairly good. The Magistrate of Cuttack, while remarking that his head-constables are specially bad, takes objection to a proposal made by me to officer the higher grades principally by educated men not drawn from the class of head-constables; but the Commissioner thinks this a move in the right direction.

The Magistrate of Balasore reports that the conduct of the police has not been such as to deserve special praise or special censure. "The Sub-Inspectors are gradually improving as a class through the care that is bestowed upon procuring the best men that will consent to serve, and owing to the fair and considerate way in which they were treated, which is, I think, gradually removing the strong prejudice against service in the police which exists among the upper classes." He also strongly points out that the weakest point in our administration is the status and character of the head-constables—an undoubted fact, and one to which attention is being directed.

CHOTA NAGPORE DIVISION.

On the whole reported fair.

316. My own opinion of the conduct of the police is very much what I expressed last year, viz. that with many imperfections they have yet done a large amount of good work. It is easy to bring forward and point to instances of police oppression and incompetency; but the large amount of hard work which they do at very small cost is often lost sight of. The police will not improve in the same way as procedure. They will only improve as the ranks of the people from which they are drawn advance, and I have no hesitation in saying that in my opinion their improvement has kept pace with that of the people, although it has not advanced in the same proportion as our criminal procedure and legislation. When the zemindars profit so far by their education as to cease being bribe-givers, the educated police will cease being bribe-takers; when zemindari amlah cease to look upon oppression as a legitimate concomitant of power, our police amlah will cease to think harshness to villagers and abuse of their authority excusable; when zemindari peons, post-office peadahs, civil court process-servers, and chupprassies, cease exacting douceurs, in the shape of khoraki, talabana, or salami, our constables will cease demanding from the people anything in excess of their wages. I do not defend such malpractices: I condemn them, and would punish those who commit them with unsparing severity. But such malpractices as I have referred to above exist as a custom of the country; and the police, like other natives of the country, commit them, and they will continue to commit them, in my opinion to some extent, in spite of the restraints of discipline and the vigilance of their superior officers as long as the commission of such offences is customary amongst natives of the country, who are not in the police.

317. It is to the credit of the police that serious crime against property has decreased, and has been to a great extent localized within district limits;—it is not to their credit that petty crime against property still continues to be undiscovered. I can hardly blame them for the want of success which attends the prosecution of serious cases of offences against the person, for such failure, as I have previously remarked, is, in my opinion, attributable to the courts demanding an amount and a quality of proof which native evidence will not supply.

318. The regular police need, in my opinion, more help than they now get from three quarters—from the rural chowkeydars, from the Magistrates, and from the great body of the people, especially the landholding class. Information from the chowkeydars they do not get, nor do they seek for it properly, and for their shortcomings in this respect I blame the police. Magistrates are so hard-worked now-a-days that, considering the criminal administration of their districts to be that part of their work which may most easily be passed over, many of them allow themselves to have little to do with police matters, except when it becomes necessary to criticise the action of their subordinates. Landholders, who ought to be the most interested defenders and supporters of the law, are, in many instances, amongst its most persistent enemies, either by actual rioting and oppression, by passive resistance to the police, or by suppression of information which they ought to furnish.

319. While I think the police are entitled to a full recognition of the difficulties under which they have to work, I am quite ready to admit that in many points they might improve. The direction and supervision of subordinates by superior officers, the frequent inspection of their stations, greater freedom in mixing with the people, continual vigilance over bad characters, the use of the police as an intelligence department—are all points in which improvement is needed, and to which attention has been specially directed.

320. The following statements are herewith submitted:—

Return A (Part I).—General statement of cognizable crime.

Return A (Part II).—General statement of non-cognizable crime.

Return B.—Comparative statement of cognizable crime, with result of police operations.

Return C.—General statement showing thuggee, dacoity, and other professional crimes.

Return D.—Statement of additional police collected for the protection of persons and property, or quartered as a punitive measure.

Return E.—Statement showing strength, cost, distribution, and employment of police.

Supplement to Return E, showing the village police.

* The pay is never regularly received, and is often never received at all.

† The decrease in the number of chowkedars is owing to a reduction made in certain villages.

‡ The number of men has increased owing to the organization of the chowkedares system under Act VI of 1876.

§ Act VI of 1870 has been in force in most of the villages of this district throughout the year. I cannot say that it has improved the working of the force. The payments of their salaries has been most irregular, and the punchayets, as a rule, are unreliable. Since, however, the Magistrate of the district has been sending in for and admonishing them, they are less irregular in paying the chowkedars.

|| The decrease in the number of chowkedars and in the number of houses by 132 and 56,232 respectively is owing to the transfer of pergunnah Mantala to Sylhet and 40 villages to Dacca.

¶ The new Chowkedares Act has been introduced during the year, and the number of chowkedars has been reduced from 2,789 to 1,921.

 The number of chowkedars has fallen short by 43 during the year, and the average annual income of each man by Rs. 14, the effect of late cyclone and storm-wave.

†† Those under Act VI receive Rs. 30 annually.

‡‡ Thirty-four of these hold land to the extent of 118 beeghas, average 3 beeghas 9 cottahs 8 dhoores per head.

§§ And 2 beeghas and one cottah of land

||| The decrease in the number of chowkedars is owing to the introduction of new Chowkedares Act.

¶¶ The statements cannot be relied upon. The district chowkedars are gradually, but steadily, being placed on a proper footing.

BUREAU POLICE OFFICE,

FORT WILLIAM,

The 24th July 1878.

J. MONRO

Inspector General of Police, I. P.

RESOLUTION.

POLICE.

Calcutta, the 15th August 1878.

READ—

The report on the Administration of the Police Department for the year 1877.

Read again—

The reports for previous years and the orders of Government passed upon them.

THE Lieutenant-Governor has to acknowledge the punctuality with which this report has been submitted. Hitherto the reports have only reached Government towards the close of the year succeeding that of the administration of which they treat, and the orders of Government on one report have frequently not reached the officers of the Department till they were about to record the results of another year's labours. In the Resolution on the report for 1876, the Lieutenant-Governor gave an outline of his views on many points of the Police Administration; but as the orders were not issued till the close of the year, the present report does not indicate the extent to which they have been followed. Much that was then written applies mutatis mutandis to the statements now before Government.

2. The total budget grant for the year, including the cost of the Chittagong Frontier Police, and the Government contributions towards the Municipal and Railway Police, was Rs. 38,42,647. This was exceeded by Rs. 16,115 in consequence of special charges incurred in repairing damage caused by the cyclone, and unavoidable delay in effecting reductions in the Chittagong Frontier Police. There was a net decrease in the force of ten inspectors, five sub-inspectors, three head-constables, 113 constables, one European constable, and two mounted constables. In some cases the services of the men were dispensed with in pursuance of a general scheme of reduction; in others in consequence of the introduction of the warder system in jails. The average cost of the purely civil police throughout the province was about seven pies per head of population. In Behar the cost per head was 5·2, in Bengal proper 7·5, in Orissa 10·1, and in Chota Nagpore 10·4 pies. The proportion of police to area was 1 to 7·2 square miles in Orissa, 1 to 8 in Bengal, 1 to 10·7 in Behar, and 1 to 21·2 in Chota Nagpore. The proportion to population was 1 to 2,365 in Orissa, 1 to 2,510 in Chota Nagpore, 1 to 3,716 in Bengal, and 1 to 4,958 in Behar. The Lieutenant-Governor drew attention in the last Resolution to the specially large force employed in Orissa. During the current year Mr. Monro has made careful local enquiries in Bengal, Behar, and Chota Nagpore, as well as in Orissa, and has effected reductions representing a saving of Rs. 1,66,200 per annum. The Lieutenant-Governor has conveyed his special thanks to Mr. Monro for his services in this respect.

3. There was some little variation in the strength of the Municipal Police. There was an increase of one sub-inspector and 21 head-constables, and a decrease of two European and 76 native constables. The percentage of casualties was no less than 26·6 against 23·4 in 1876. Dismissals were most numerous in 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Dacca, and Hooghly. No fewer than 222 constables and three head-constables were dismissed in the first named district. It is stated, however, that in most of these instances, the men were formally dismissed for failing to rejoin on the expiration of leave. Resignations numbered 123 in Howrah, 100 in 24-Pergunnahs, 52 in Dacca, 33 in Patna, and 31 in Burdwan; and desertions were 38 in Burdwan and 33 in 24-Pergunnahs. There can be no doubt that the Municipal Police, especially in the larger towns, is an unpopular service, owing to the dearness of provisions and the ease with which the unskilled labourers can find employment at high wages. In Howrah, 24-Pergunnahs, and Dacca these circumstances, and the natural aversion of the men to the restraints of discipline, are no doubt the cause of the difficulty of keeping the police contented. Some increase to the salaries of the lower grades appears to be called for, if the Municipal Police of the cities is to be made efficient.

4. The Inspector-General does not speak confidently of the working of the Chowkidaree Act. During the past season the revision of the police establishments in the different districts required his presence at the headquarters offices, and he had little opportunity of making himself acquainted with the working of the new system by visits to villages and outlying stations. From what he has seen, however, he appears to apprehend unsatisfactory results from the authority given to the punchayets and their intervention between the regular and the rural police. He promises to treat this subject in detail in his next report, and the Lieutenant-Governor will await an expression of his matured views on the subject. Meanwhile it is satisfactory to learn that, with the exception of the Commissioner of Chittagong, no Commissioner has taken objection to the working of the Act. Mr. Beames considers that it "is a complete mistake and not calculated to work well anywhere, least of all in a litigious district like Chittagong." These objections, though so confidently put forward, appear to rest on theory only, as he at the same time reports that the Act has not yet had a fair trial in his division. In the Presidency, Rajshahye, Dacca, Patna, and Bhagulpore Divisions the Act is reported to have worked on the whole satisfactorily. Purneah and Sarun appear to be the only districts where comparative failure has resulted, but in Sarun at least this seems to have been the fault of the local officers. It is observed that the Deputy Inspector-General of Police found in Rajshahye that many chowkidars had not been paid for months. This complaint does not appear to have reached the Commissioner. From all that the Lieutenant-Governor has heard there appears reason to fear that unless the punchayets are well watched irregularities of this nature are very likely to occur. If Magistrates, Sub-divisional Magistrates, and Police Officers would only take the trouble to make thorough periodical examinations of the accounts of a few villages selected at random, the one serious reproach to the working of the Act would disappear. On the whole, it may be gathered that the main object of the Act, to provide a body of fairly paid rural police, has been attained. Details may require amendment in the light of experience, but the elements of success appear to have been fairly secured. It will now be more than ever necessary for Magistrates and the superior officers of the police to see that the chowkidars do not degenerate into servants of particular villagers, but attend regularly at the police-station and discharge their duties of patrol with efficiency. The Lieutenant-Governor would wish to see this subject treated in somewhat greater detail in future reports. Note should be carefully taken by the inspecting officers of the extent to which the different District Superintendents insist on the regular attendance of the chowkidars at the police-stations and on frequency and intimacy of communication between them and the regular police. The rural police are the main stay of the regular police, and without their co-operation detection of crime must be more or less a matter of chance. It is probable that the marked want of success of the Bankoora Police which has been so often reported is owing more to the inefficiency and obstructiveness of the ghatwals than to the want of detective ability among the regular police. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that separate mention may hereafter be made of those District Superintendents who perform the important duty of supervising the rural police to the satisfaction of the Inspector-General. There are difficulties in the way of satisfactory legislation on the subject of ghatwali and paikan tenures, but the matter will not be lost sight of by Government.

5. Casualties in the Railway Police numbered 32·8 per cent. during the year, against 26 per cent. in 1876, and admissions to hospital were 179·9 per cent. against 145. This service appears to be specially unpopular, owing to the severity of the work, and to the want of decent accommodation for the men at many of the most unhealthy stations. The Inspector-General is now in communication with the Agent on the subject, and the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the matter will receive due attention. The road patrols have been fairly effective. In Hazareebagh a number of new posts were established during the year. The occurrence of several recent mail robberies on the Gya road appears to show that the patrolling arrangements in that district are still somewhat defective. The number of parties of punitive police quartered on disturbed villages during 1877 was 30, against 12 in 1876. Of these, 21 were rendered necessary by the turbulence of zemindars and ryots in Backergunge, and four were required in Noakholly. In Shahabad this measure has been attended with specially beneficial results in the suppression of robberies. There were 152 large fairs specially attended by the police. It is reported that only 132 petty offences were committed in connection with them, and that convictions were obtained in 95. It is stated that only Rs. 1,653 worth of property was stolen from the three million persons who attended the fairs: no doubt this is all that was reported, but that it should represent all actual thefts seems very improbable. At one fair, 21 shoplifters were arrested in a gang by Inspector Govind Chunder Chuckravarti, and it may fairly be suspected that at the other large gatherings the professional thieves were more successful than the reported figures would show.

6. In the regular police 99 per cent. of the inspectors, 98 per cent. of the sub-inspectors, 85 per cent. of the head-constables, and 37 per cent. of the constables can read and write, and a large number of head-constables and constables are under instruction. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the rules regarding the exclusion of uneducated men kept under special circumstances from promotion to the grade of head-constables are being attended to. Casualties numbered 13 per cent. of the entire strength. In 1876 the percentage was also 13, in 1875 it was 11.5, and in 1874, 13.1. Dismissals were most numerous, among the Railway Police (43), in 24-Pergunnahs (42), Moorshedabad (34), and Rungpore (26): and resignations, in 24-Pergunnahs (97), Railway (82), Moorshedabad (66), Hooghly (56), and Jessore (52). The general health of the force was bad during the year. Admissions to hospital were 63.7 per cent. of the strength against 49.5 in 1876. In the Chittagong Hill Tracts, Railway, and Dinagepore the number admitted to hospital considerably exceeded 100 per cent. The mortality was highest in Dinagepore, Maldah, and Moorshedabad, and lowest in Gya, Monghyr, and Shahabad.

7. The total number of punishments inflicted on members of the force was 4,792, against 4,463 in 1876 and 4,189 in 1875. There was an increase in the number of convictions under the Penal Code and a decrease in those under the Police Act; while departmental punishments numbered 4,209, against 3,832 and 3,589 respectively in the two previous years. For the third year in succession the Railway, Gurjhat, and Noakholly Police show the highest percentage of punishments. It is to be remarked that in the two last named districts inspection duty was insufficiently attended to. Departmental punishments were also very numerous in Cuttack and Gya. Altogether one sub-inspector, six head-constables, eight constables, and one chowkidar were punished for torture or maltreatment of prisoners, and seven head-constables, twenty constables, and one chowkidar were convicted of extortion. On the other hand, there were very many instances of special good conduct, no less than 736 men were added to the list of the wearers of good conduct rings. Besides these, 20 inspectors, 216 head-constables, and 812 constables were specially rewarded for distinguished good service. Inspectors Hara Prosad Das, Bhuggobutty Churn Ganguly, Ram Cumar Ghosh, and Makoond Singh, and sub-inspectors Mahomed Ariff and Dinonath Kooshir earned particular approbation. The fixed proportion of foreigners in the force of each district was in many cases exceeded. The Lieutenant-Governor has during the current year found it necessary to direct that for the purposes of enlistment the term foreigner be applied only to natives of other provinces than that in which police service has to be performed. It has been found in many instances impossible to recruit the force under the previous orders, which included residents of other divisions in the term.

8. The total number of cognizable cases reported was 108,989, against 117,559 in 1876 and 120,838 in 1875. If cases declared false by Magistrates are deducted, the numbers are 94,362, 95,747, and 94,783 respectively. The decrease in the number of cases reported in 1876 and 1877 appears in due proportion under all heads. Out of the difference of 2,071 under "other cases" no less than 2,056 are accounted for by the falling off in the number of prosecutions for bad livelihood. It is satisfactory to observe that this large reduction in the number of these cases was attended by a decrease of no less than 4,683 in the number of reported offences against property. Mr. Monro points out that, after allowance is made for cases of hurt and mischief which were not cognizable by the police in 1872, the number of true cases stands thus:—

1872	90,991
1876	95,747
1877	94,362

He proceeds to argue that the increase in crime in 1877 over 1872 is only apparent and not real, as in the former year there was a large increase in nuisance cases and some increase in excise cases. It may be remarked, however, that the increase in excise cases (448) is more than counterbalanced by the decrease (487) in salt and railway cases. The Inspector-General further argues that, owing to the greater caution exercised under recent orders in declaring cases to be false, many cases which in 1872 would have been shown as false appear in the statement for 1877 as true. Mr. Monro, however, does not give due weight to the fact that under those orders cases which turn out on enquiry to be non-cognizable, or to give grounds for a civil action only, are now removed entirely from the statement. Very many of these are cases which most Magistrates would have hesitated to declare to be false and never to have occurred. The Lieutenant-Governor adheres to the view that there has been some real increase in crime since 1872.

9. The number of cases declared false was 14,627, against 21,812 in 1876 and 26,055 in 1875. In some districts the decrease is very striking, while in only four was there an increase. The percentage of false cases to cases reported fell from 30 to 2 in Beerbhoom, from 37 to 8 in Bhagulpore, from 25 to 8 in Dinagepore, from 23 to 8 in Dacca, and from 14 to 2 in Bankoora. Mymensingh, which had 52 and 55 per cent. of false cases in 1875 and 1876, and Noakholly, which had 30 and 32, had only 10 and 5 per cent. respectively in 1877. It is of course evident that the decrease must be to a considerable extent the result of the orders to which reference has been made above; but as those orders were only promulgated in the second half of the year, it is necessary to look further for a satisfactory explanation. In some instances fluctuations have doubtless been caused by changes of officers; but it seems clear that there is a distinct relation between the number of false cases instituted and the number of prosecutions for false complaints set on foot. The districts with the highest percentage of false cases were Backergunge (34), Cuttack (32), Balasore (32), Rungpore (29), Pooree (23), Burdwan (21), and Purneah (19); and in all these districts the number of prosecutions instituted was very low. Backergunge had only 55 out of 1,690, Cuttack 11 out of 777, Balasore 32 out of 593, Rungpore 9 out of 813, Pooree 12 out of 818, Burdwan 39 out of 786, and Purneah 24 out of 420. In those districts, on the other hand, where the percentage of false cases was lowest, the proportion of prosecutions was generally high. Thus Bhagulpore had 84 prosecutions out of 126 cases, Bankoora 19 out of 23, Monghyr 54 out of 193, and Noakholly 50 out of 116. It appears quite evident that Magistrates have the remedy for a most unsatisfactory state of things in their own hands, and the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the remarks made in the last Resolution will be duly attended to. The Magistrates of Rungpore, Sarun, Cuttack, Pooree, and Backergunge appear to have been very remiss in this respect. The Inspector-General observes that one result of the orders of last year will be to make the police more careful in reporting cases as false. It is clear from the figures now before Government that in many districts such an effect will be very beneficial. It is difficult to believe that 21 per cent. of the cases reported in Burdwan were really false, while in the adjoining district of Bankoora the percentage was only 2; that Rungpore had 29 per cent. and Dinagepore only 8; Backergunge 34, and Dacca only 8; Purneah 19 and Monghyr only 6.

10. The views of the Lieutenant-Governor on the subject of refusal of enquiry in petty cases were fully stated in the Resolution on the report for last year, and it is hoped that during the current year the orders issued will receive due attention. The percentage of cases not enquired into was very high in Gya (33), Gurjhat (28), Manbhoom (27), Bogra (21), Monghyr (21), and Bankoora (16). In most of these districts the results of the police action in such cases as were taken up was indifferent. It is again noticed that in Patna, where enquiry was only refused in 15 cases out of 4,470, the police were far more successful than in the neighbouring district of Gya, where no investigation was attempted in 1,280 out of 3,845 cases. The percentage of convictions to arrests was only 59 in Gya against 72 in Patna.

11. The total number of cases under enquiry during the year was 110,632. Of these, 14,627 were declared false, and 8,595 were not enquired into. In 33,266 out of the remaining 87,410, or 38·05 per cent., convictions were obtained. The percentages of convictions in 1875 and 1876 were 38·9 and 39·2 respectively. These results, as Mr. Monro justly remarks, are unsatisfactory. Of 94,318 persons arrested, 55,977 or 59·3 per cent. were convicted, against 59 per cent. in 1876. The convictions and acquittals of persons actually put on trial compare unfavourably with those of the previous year. Convictions were 61·6 per cent. against 62, and acquittals 34·1 per cent. against 33. This is very unsatisfactory. The percentages of convictions to arrests in the different divisions were, Burdwan 66, Chittagong 66, Patna 63, Presidency 61, Rajshahye 61, Bhagulpore 61, Chota Nagpore 60, Orissa 58, Dacca 57. The best results were obtained in Howrah (79) Patna (72), and 24-Pergunnahs (71). Less than half the number arrested were convicted in Backergunge (43), Mymensingh (46), Sarun (47), Balasore (47), Gurjhat (48), Jessore (48). The statement showing the results of investigations by the police is very unfavourable to Rungpore, Backergunge, and Pooree, where only 26·5, 27·2, and 29·7 respectively of cases investigated were successful. While the Lieutenant-Governor is quite satisfied that the importance of Magisterial control and scrutiny of the action of the police in investigating cases cannot be exaggerated, certain recent circumstances appear to indicate that judicial officers, particularly sub-divisional officers, sometimes forget the distinction that exists between an investigation and an enquiry under the Criminal Procedure Code. The former process is the informal method prescribed for the police in ascertaining the facts of the case: the latter is a judicial proceeding which, under section 6, must be held according to the provisions of the Code. There is perhaps no provision of the law so conducive to efficient action as that which permits local enquiries by Magistrates; but the essential value of this form of procedure arises precisely from the circumstance that it is conducted by a judicial officer. The Magistrate holding an enquiry on the spot can receive and record the evidence as it is discovered, before the witnesses can be tutored or intimidated, with opportunities of gauging the value of their testimony and of mastering the circumstances of the case which must often be entirely wanting in his distant catchment. But it is very different where a Magistrate assumes the functions of a police officer and holds an informal investigation which he afterwards develops into a judicial enquiry in his court-house. This procedure is unauthorized by law, unsatisfactory in results, and unfavourable to judicial fairness. The Lieutenant-Governor would encourage to the utmost prompt and careful local enquiries by Magistrates in serious cases; but such enquiries, to be useful, must be conducted according to the law.

12. Of prisoners committed to the Sessions 39 per cent. were acquitted against 36·9 in 1876. More than half the total number of acquittals occurred in cases of serious offences against the person. Acquittals in cases of this class were most numerous in 24-Pergunnahs, Tipperah, Dacca, Nuddea, Backergunge, Rajshahye, Noakhally, Rungpore, and Maldah. Only three of these are jury districts. The largest percentage of acquittals in Sessions trials ensued in Pooree (85), Gurjhat (76), Sonthal Pergunnahs (67), and Sarun (66). Of 15 districts in which one half or more of the prisoners committed were acquitted, only four (Howrah, 24-Pergunnahs, Patna, and Moorshedabad) are jury districts. There is no doubt much force in what Mr. Monro urges regarding the high standard of evidence required by Session Courts, and the severity of the tests to which the general veracity of the witnesses is subjected in cross-examination. The fact that the orders of Magistrates were upheld on appeal in 79 per cent. of the cases is urged in support of this view. The most important practical point connected with this subject is the apparent want of good system in the conduct of prosecutions before the court of first instance or the Court of Sessions or appeal. In only 196 of 2,096 cases in which appeals were preferred was Government represented before the Appellate Court; while of 979 cases tried by the Court of Sessions only 40 were conducted before the committing Magistrate, and only six before the Sessions Court by the District Superintendent or his Assistant. In the Resolution on last year's report, the Lieutenant-Governor laid particular stress on the importance of what may be called the court duties of police officers, and Mr. Monro promises that due attention will be directed to the subject. As regards appeals in criminal cases to the High Court there is often much neglect in bringing the main facts of important cases prominently to the notice of the Legal Remembrancer. Magistrates should communicate much more freely with him; and the Deputy Legal Remembrancer will then be in a position to watch and argue all important criminal appeals to the High Court.

13. The gross value of the property stolen during the year was Rs. 9,67,762 and of recovered Rs. 3,01,451. The recoveries were thus 31·2 per cent. of the amount stolen. In the previous year the percentage was 31·8. Bankoora still sustains its position at the bottom of the list. The average percentage of recoveries in this district for the past three years has been 5. This is less than half the lowest percentage in any other district. Furreedpore and Dacca show results which are only tolerable when compared with those of Bankoora. The average percentage of recoveries in these districts for the past three years has been 13 and 14 respectively.

14. The following statement shows the number of true cases reported under each heading during the past six years:—

		1872.	1873.	1874.	1875.	1876.	1877.
Class I	Offences against the State and public tranquillity	8,120	2,929	2,808	2,755	2,700	2,800
" II	Serious offences against the person	4,018	4,392	3,905	4,184	4,108	4,141
" III	Serious offences against person and property, or against property only	20,210	24,531	28,015	23,057	22,280	20,667
" IV	Minor offences against the person	3,994	4,126	6,405	9,802	9,073	8,812
" V	Minor offences against property	38,767	40,207	43,343	38,003	38,832	41,005
" VI	Other offences not specified above	14,497	13,765	13,272	15,208	18,257	16,848
	Other special laws	599	872	951	726	495	480
	Total	85,205	90,882	99,187	94,783	95,745	94,361

Under class I the results of prosecutions at the sessions were very unsatisfactory, only 166 cases having resulted in convictions against 280 in which acquittals ensued. The Mymensingh police did good service in bringing to justice a gang of coiners. The Lieutenant-Governor wishes to know the name of the Moonsif in the Bhagulpore Division who declined to comply with the Government circular on the subject of evasion of the stamp duty, on the ground that he had received no orders on the subject from his official superior, the Judge. Under rioting and unlawful assembly there was an increase of 174 cases. The Inspector-General, however, attributes a large part of this to the greater care shown by Magistrates in the second-half of the year in accepting cases as false. There was also a considerable increase in Midnapore owing to a change in the procedure under which cases which would ordinarily fall under the criminal trespass section were treated as cases of organized illegal assembly. In this district there was an increase under this head of 79 cases, though only one was of any importance. As usual, the Dacca Division heads the list. The first five districts were Backergunge (199), Mymensingh (196), Furreedpore (157), Dacca (127), Tipperah (123). The results were unsatisfactory in all of these, with the exception of Dacca, where 72 cases resulted in convictions. In Furreedpore, Mymensingh, and Backergunge the results of trials were extremely unsatisfactory. The turbulence of this division is a matter for serious consideration. Backergunge and Mymensingh had each about four riots a week, and in the former district one person was murdered by rioters every month. The Magistrate of Backergunge, however, appears to look upon this state of things as a condition of tolerable public tranquillity. He reports that "no man remembers a rice-cutting season to have passed away so peaceably." It is quite clear to the Lieutenant-Governor that the criminal administration of Backergunge has been allowed to fall into great disorder; and that there has been a want of really vigorous and intelligent control. It says little for the efficiency of the preventive measures adopted that, while security to keep the peace was demanded from no less than 604 persons, and 21 parties of punitive police were employed, the number of riots decreased only from 207 to 199. It is useless to demand security from large numbers of persons if the real movers in these disturbances are not touched. What is most required is that the Magistrate should personally sift the causes of local disputes, prevent riots, if possible, by demanding security from those really responsible for the preservation of the peace, and benefiting by the lawless acts of their servants and dependents, and when outbreaks do occur that he should make a signal example of the offenders. It is of no use punishing servants and villagers engaged in affrays if those who employ them to commit these affrays escape unpunished. It is satisfactory to observe that there has been a marked decrease in the number of rioting cases in Pubna, and that disputes between landlord and tenant have ceased to be a cause of disturbance. In sessions trials under this head there were only 145 convictions to 257 acquittals. The difficulties in the way of successful prosecutions in such cases at the sessions court are undoubtedly very great. Except where the circumstances indicate special and organized criminality, it would no doubt be more satisfactory if such cases were disposed of by the Magistrate. In cases where the different sides are taken by rival zemindars, the dangers to which the honesty of witnesses is subjected in the interval between commitment and trial at the sessions, are very great.

15. The number of serious offences against the person ascertained to have occurred was 4,141 against 4,108 in 1876. Convictions were obtained in 39·4 per cent. of these against 39·6 in 1876, and the percentage of convictions to arrests was 44·5 against 44. There were 315 murders against 342 in 1876 and 302 in 1875. The want of success in dealing with these cases was most deplorable, convictions being obtained in only 30·4 per cent. of the cases against 41·2 in 1876. The percentage of convictions to arrests was 25·1 against 27·4. Of 729 persons whose cases were disposed of by the Magistrate, 546 were committed to the sessions, and of 436 of these, regarding whom a decision was arrived at during the year, 228 were convicted at the sessions and 208 were acquitted. These results point strongly to the necessity of greater care in the conduct of prosecutions before the sessions courts. So far as the investigating police are concerned it cannot be said that they are to blame in arresting persons against whom the Magistrate considers that there is sufficient evidence to warrant a committal. The results were most unfavourable in Midnapore, Howrah, Jessore, Dacca, Tipperah, and Noakholly. The Inspector-General gives the details of sessions trials in certain selected districts, and shows that, while the Magistrate committed to the sessions 85 per cent. of the persons arrested, the sessions court only convicted 18 per cent. of those committed. In the Presidency Division there was a marked decrease in the number of murders, only 23 occurring against 49 in the previous year. Of these, however, only five were detected, and only 10 out of 61 persons arrested were convicted. The Dacca Division had no less than 99 murders, of which 44 occurred in Backergunge. The condition of this district is such that the Lieutenant-Governor has during the current year found it necessary to considerably strengthen the administrative staff, and special and minute attention is being paid to the progress of crime. The police of the Patna Division were strikingly unsuccessful in dealing with this class of offence. Of 28 cases only 10 resulted in conviction, and only 12 out of 85 persons arrested were punished. In Gya only one out of seven cases, and in Patna only two out of 8, were successfully prosecuted, while Gya shows only one conviction, and Patna only two out of 19 and 20 persons arrested respectively. The Legal Remembrancer will be requested to submit to Government the record of the case referred to in paragraph 188 of the report. There were 199 cases of culpable homicide against 203 in 1876. Convictions were obtained in 93 cases, against only 187 persons out of 486 arrested. There were altogether 40 cases in Hooghly, Howrah, Jessore, Dinagepore, Bogra, Pubna, Chittagong, Sarun, Bhagulpore, Cuttack, and Pooree, but there were no convictions in any of these districts. Under grievous hurt there were 634 cases against 626 in 1876. The Patna Division shows an increase from 139 to 166, and a satisfactory increase from 125 to 185 in the number of persons convicted. The results were most satisfactory in 24-Per-gunnahs, where 13 out of 14 cases resulted in convictions. Cases of administering stupefying drugs were chiefly reported from the Patna and Chota Nagpore Divisions. This is a class of crime for the commission of which the credulity and sociable tendencies of travellers in this country afford great facilities. It should be possible to deal with it more satisfactorily than has hitherto been the case by judicious detective measures. The Inspector-General notices the good service rendered by Inspector Hakim Singh in connection with these cases in Lohardugga. There were 733 cases of hurt by dangerous weapons against 729 in 1876, and only 424 persons were convicted against 412 acquitted. In Rajshahye, Sarun, Pooree, and Hooghly the results were most discreditable to the local police.

16. The statistics of minor offences against the person call for little remark. The number of true cases was 8,812 against 9,073 in 1876. In Moorshedabad there was gross failure in dealing with this class of crime. Convictions were only obtained in this district in 62 out of 385 cases. There was a decrease in the number of cases in the Rajshahye Division. One of the causes alleged for this decrease in the Pubna district is very satisfactory. It is said that many cases of this nature are now settled by the zemindars "whose disputes with their ryots have been settled, and whose cutcherries are again opened for the disposal of such cases." The Lieutenant-Governor quite concurs with Mr. Monro in thinking that simple hurt should be a non-cognizable offence, and that the time of the police is fruitlessly taken up with enquiries into trifling cases of this class.

17. The decrease in dacoity which was noticed in the report for 1876 was sustained in 1877. There were only 138 cases against 154 in 1876, and 254 in 1875. Convictions were obtained in 35 cases only against 186 persons out of 562 tried. The Magistrates committed to the session 72 per cent. of the prisoners placed before them, but the sessions courts only convicted 53·5 per cent. of those committed. The decrease is most marked in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions, which had 30 and 9 cases respectively against 45 and 17 in 1876, and 64 and 31 in 1875. Three districts of the Bhagulpore Division (Monghyr, Bhagulpore, and Maldah) were entirely free from dacoity, and Purneah, in which the crime was once rife, had only four cases. In the Dacca Division there was an increase of 16, in Chittagong of 7, in Orissa of 1, and in Chota Nagpore of 6 cases. The decrease in dacoities in Midnapore is very satisfactory, and reflects credit on the local police. The services of Inspector Hara Prasad Dass in cases of this class have been rewarded by promotion. In Hooghly there was a large increase, and only three cases out of 11 resulted in convictions. The Inspector-General, however, has hopes that some of these cases may still be successfully worked out by special agency. There appears to have been considerable laxity in the police administration of this district to admit of the occurrence of so many undetected cases. In Rungpore there was an increase from two to six cases, and only four persons were convicted to 35 acquitted. It is explained, however, that no less than 22 persons were acquitted owing to the carelessness of Moulvie Dilwar Hossain Ahmad, who recorded the confessions of the accused so irregularly that they were inadmissible as evidence at the sessions. The record of this case will be called for and examined. In Furreedpore dacoities increased from five to ten and in Backergunge from three to 13. Nine out of the 12 river dacoities of the year were committed in these districts. In Furreedpore convictions were obtained in only three cases against nine persons, while no less than 28 were acquitted. The Inspector-General says that four cases which had really occurred in Dacca were detected by the Furreedpore police. The figured returns do not appear to bear out this statement. In Backergunge only two cases resulted in conviction. These statistics are extremely unsatisfactory. There is no doubt much force in what is urged regarding the difficulty of bringing the offenders in river dacoities to justice; and, indeed, if the apathy of the people is not exaggerated, it may be apprehended that many of the cases that occur are not reported at all. But the Lieutenant-Governor has read with no little surprise that the Inspector-General has abandoned all hope of obviating these difficulties, except by the adoption of a procedure which the Lieutenant-Governor has in the plainest terms condemned. The Inspector-General says that "the only remedy left for adoption by the police is prevention—prevention by shutting up notorious bad characters, such as are in the dacoit villages on the Mudhomati and other large rivers in Eastern Bengal." Mr. Monro appears to overlook the fact that, up to the middle of last year, some thing like this procedure was followed with the result that there was the same number of river dacoities in 1877 as in 1875. The precise figures for 1876 have not been given. On the general policy so persistently advocated by Mr. Monro, the Lieutenant-Governor will have more to say further on. With special reference, however, to Mr. Monro's remarks on river dacoity, he must warn all police officers against adopting the view that, if large numbers of persons are not locked up to keep them from committing this crime, prevention is impossible. It is difficult to conceive a more humiliating confession than the statement that to prevent river dacoity it is necessary to place in confinement all those whom the police suspect in the villages on the large rivers. No doubt if all the people with criminal propensities were put in jail, police administration would be simple: but, as the police are required for the detection and apprehension of the guilty only, it is necessary to restrict their operations. If a man is denounced by his fellows as a notorious criminal, of course the provisions of the law should be put in force against him. But for the general maintenance of order amongst the population at large something else is required. Provisions which were intended for special application must not be put to wholesale use. The patrols may be weak, but that is no reason for confessing that they must be hopelessly inefficient; still less is it a reason that they should not be strengthened. If the police are so thoroughly well acquainted with the disturbers of the peace that they can prove general bad character against them individually, it is difficult to understand why they cannot watch them and let them know that they are watched. If they would utilize the knowledge they are said to possess in apprehending a few real dacoits, it would be unnecessary for the Inspector-General to advocate a system of wholesale terrorism. Let dacoits once know that they are marked, that their proceedings are watched, and their footsteps dogged from district to district, and the number of dacoities will not fail to decrease. It may be gathered that none of the river dacoities in Backergunge were detected. There were, however, nine other dacoities, and of these, it appears, only two were prosecuted to conviction. This is very unsatisfactory. The Chittagong Hill Tracts had seven cases though none were reported in the previous three years. Only one was detected. The increase is ascribed to the dearness of provisions, and it is said that the object of the offenders was to secure, not plunder, but food. If this explanation is correct, the failure of the police is the more remarkable, as the offences were not committed by professional dacoits, and should have been easy of detection. The circumstances of this district are, however, peculiar. In Gya there were seven cases against three in 1876, and there were no convictions. The Inspector-General justly characterises these results as lamentable. Two of the cases were mail robberies, and one of the Deputy Inspectors-General has been deputed to Gya to devise special measures for the repression of this class of crime. Altogether the working of the Gya police has been unsatisfactory. In Chota Nagpore there were 14 cases against 8 in 1876, and of these, 11 occurred in Hazareebagh. Only one case was detected. These cases, it is said, were chiefly highway robberies. There were also 16 cases, which, owing to the number of persons engaged being less than five, are formally shown under the head of robbery. Of these, only three were detected. These results are very discreditable; and it would appear that in Hazareebagh and Gya there has been a regular outbreak of highway robbery with which the police have proved quite unable to deal. It is explained that a scheme of special road patrol for Hazareebagh is under consideration.

18. The statistics of robbery do not call for any other special remark. There were 144 cases against 141 in 1876, and convictions were obtained in 53 cases in each year. Of 277 persons tried in 1877, 116 were convicted, against 100 out of 206 in 1876. It is stated that an increase in robbery with hurt "appears marked in the districts of Backergunge and Gya." Under serious mischief, there were 637 cases against 811 in 1876. Convictions, however, were obtained in 153 cases only against 203, and 231 persons only were convicted out of 651 tried against 421 out of 919 in 1876. The decrease in the number of convictions was most marked in the Presidency Division, so marked indeed as to call for special explanation. Jessore had only three convictions out of 21 cases, and Moorshedabad only 8 out of 42. In the Patna Division there were 71 cases against 40 in 1876, and convictions were obtained in 40 cases against 57 out of 76 persons tried. In the 24-Pergunnahs and Pubna prosecutions were very successful, convictions being obtained in the former district in 35 cases out of 53, and in the latter in 23 out of 34. There was a slight decrease in the number of cases of arson, which is the characteristic crime of the Chittagong Division. The results of police enquiry were not good, but the crime is very difficult of detection.

19. Under the head of minor offences against property 50,539 cases were reported against 56,331, the average of the previous five years. These figures will be analysed under the different headings further on. The most marked fluctuations in crime are observable in the returns for Noakholly. Inclusive of cases under serial Nos. 35 and 36, the total number of offences of this nature reported in Noakholly during the past three years was :—

1875.	1876.	1877.
779	1,098	1,428

The occurrence of the cyclone at the end of 1876 does not explain this extraordinary increase in crime. The Lieutenant-Governor has found the administration of Noakholly in every department most inefficient, and the Magistrate has been transferred to a less important charge.

20. The following table shows the fluctuations in cases of burglary and house trespass including serial Nos. 35 and 36 :—

			1875.	1876.	1877.
Cases reported	79,045	75,522	71,163
„ declared false	18,767	16,071	10,975
Total true cases	60,278	59,451	60,188
Not enquired into	10,484	9,589	7,985
Enquired into	49,794	49,862	52,203
Convictions in cases	13,297	13,076	13,435
Persons tried	40,013	40,045	41,430
„ convicted	21,926	22,264	22,620
„ acquitted	16,227	15,969	17,003

The Inspector-General, arguing from the diminution in the number of cases accepted as false, considers that there has been no increase in crime under this head. It has already been pointed out, however, that the orders which have operated to induce greater care in this respect provided also for the complete exclusion from the returns of cognizable crime of all cases which on enquiry turned out to be not false in fact, but not cognizable by the police. Very many of these are cases such as disputed right to land or crops, which Magistrates under the old procedure would hesitate to declare “to be false and never to have occurred.” These would have appeared as true cases in the returns for 1875 and 1876, while in the returns for 1877 they would not appear at all. This view is quite borne out by the substantial decrease in cases entered as reported as well as in those declared false. The decrease in the number of cases in which enquiry was refused is very satisfactory, and it is hoped that during the current year full effect will be given to the recent orders of Government. The results of police enquiry in cases of this class were not favourable. The percentage of true cases in which convictions were obtained was about 22 in each of the past three years. This, however, it must be admitted, is a class of crime in which great success is under present circumstances unattainable. The method of construction of native huts, the dense vegetation with which they are surrounded, the habits of the people, their timidity, and their aversion to take trouble where success is improbable, their dislike to having anything to say to the police if it can be avoided, all afford facilities for the commission of offences of this nature, while they enhance the difficulties of the police in dealing with them. The handful of regular police in each thana can do little in the way of patrol; though much good has been found to ensue from the systematic deputation every night of one or two constables to visit certain villages selected by the sub-inspector. Anything like success, however, in dealing with cases of this description can result only from the efficiency of the rural police. The paramount importance of attention to this subject on the part of Magistrates and District Superintendents has already been urged. In Hooghly, Sarun, Gya, Durbhunga, Bankoora, and in the Bhagul-pore Division, the failure of the police in dealing with these cases was particularly marked. In Hooghly the percentage of true cases detected was only 3·4, in Sarun 4, in Gya 5.3, in Durbhunga 5.5, in Bankoora 5.7, and in the Bhagulpore Division 5.5. The Inspector-General remarks on the very unsatisfactory proceedings of the police in this respect in the 24-Pergunnahs. There were 336 cases of burglary under serial No. 42 in that district, in 335 of which no enquiry was held. It is understood, however, that all the cases in which property was stolen were entered under serial No. 35, and that the very improper system under which no cases were investigated, except those in which theft occurred, has now been put a stop to. The results in this district were worse than in any other in the Presidency Division.

21. The operations of the police in cases of ordinary theft and cattle-theft are shown in the following statement:—

	1875.	1876.	1877.
Cases reported ...	38,684	37,306	35,735
„ declared false ...	12,235	10,894	7,411
Total true ...	26,449	26,412	28,323
Not enquired into ...	2,294	2,225	2,184
Enquired into ...	24,155	24,187	26,149
Convictions in cases ...	8,298	8,148	8,600
Persons tried ...	22,299	22,397	23,919
„ convicted ...	12,424	12,668	13,436
„ acquitted ...	8,768	8,532	9,371

These figures also bear evidence of the effect of recent orders. On the one hand, there was a large decrease in the number of cases reported owing to the removal of civil cases from the statement. On the other, there was a considerable reduction in the number of cases accepted as false. The results of investigation, though more favourable than were obtained in burglary cases, cannot be considered satisfactory. Convictions for theft were very satisfactory in Howrah, and very unsatisfactory in Bankoora and Hooghly. The action of the Monghyr police in cattle-theft cases was specially commendable. There was a marked increase in thefts of this class in Shahabad, but no explanation is offered. Convictions were obtained in 1,492 out of 2,017 true cases of receiving stolen property investigated, against 1,526 out of 2,086 in 1876. These cases are generally taken up by the police after the property has been actually found.

22. The number of persons tried for bad livelihood during the year was 3,173 against 5,154 in 1876. Of these, only 2,184 were convicted, while 937 were acquitted. In other words, in cases where only general bad repute, and not specific criminality, had to be proved, no less than 32 per cent. of the persons sent up by the police were declared by the judicial officers to have vindicated their character. No language can condemn the police more strongly than the naked figures in which their proceedings are recorded. The Lieutenant-Governor is willing to believe that most of these cases were instituted during the first half of the year before his orders on the subject were issued, and he trusts that he will never again have to review a statement which bears on the face of it such unmistakeable evidence of hardship and wrong. The results were specially deplorable in Backergunge, Furreedpore, Jessore, Mymensingh, Hooghly, and Chittagong. Backergunge had 55 acquittals against 44 convictions, Furreedpore 47 against 46, Jessore 65 against 68, Mymensingh 33 against 25, Hooghly 24 against 38, and Chittagong 11 against 18. It is remarked that Backergunge had also 38 cases declared false. The Lieutenant-Governor would have thought that the failure of the police after all their efforts to prove a man a bad character would be sufficient to ensure the case being considered false. What degree of untruthfulness is considered essential to the formal declaration of a case as false, it is not explained; nor does it appear that the Inspector-General has considered it desirable to ask for any explanation of the proceedings of the Backergunge police. It would seem that the vindictiveness and disregard of public right so freely charged against the people of this district are reflected in their police. The Lieutenant-Governor must have a special report of the circumstances under which these prosecutions were conducted in the districts named above, and particularly in Backergunge. Among the districts selected by Mr. Monro for mention as exhibiting results above the general average are Dinagepore, Burdwan, and Sarun, where there were 67, 32, and 28 acquittals to 106, 78, and 81 convictions respectively. To the Lieutenant-Governor these results appear most discreditable.

23. The Lieutenant-Governor cannot observe without regret the attitude which the Inspector-General has assumed in regard to this question. The following sentences may be quoted as showing the general tone which he has adopted in dealing with it. "All that I can say at present is that the bad characters, and their protectors in most of the districts, are fully aware of the change of policy, and will no doubt take advantage of it for their own ends. The orders of Government will of course be carried out, and at the end of 1878 I shall be better able to point to the effect which the carrying out of those orders has had on crime." The Lieutenant-Governor regrets that Mr. Monro should have thought proper to express himself thus as the head of the department responsible for the police administration of the province. If the bad characters enjoy undue liberty, and make a bad use of it, it can only be that the Lieutenant-Governor's orders are not carried out, and that the police are, in Mr. Monro's opinion, absolutely inefficient in the detection of crime. Sir Ashley Eden has in no way declared that the provisions of the law are to be treated as a dead letter; what he did say was that they were intended only for a state of circumstances to which they have not been restricted. They were intended as aids to police administration, and not as substitutes for ordinary preventive and detective action. They were never intended to serve as a cloak for the indulgence of the police in sloth and for the gratification of malice, or as a screen for inefficiency. That they have been so used, the record of police administration for the past two years amply proves. It is plainly demonstrated by the figures that the police in their efforts to save themselves trouble, and to swell their lists of convictions, have employed an engine intended for the repression of special crime in harassing all against whom they have been able to get up cases of bad livelihood without regard to their real innocence or guilt. In the resolution on the last report the Lieutenant-Governor said "all enquiries of this nature should be most full and searching, and should as a rule be held by the Magistrate in the village of the accused. Mr. Eden will leave it to the judicial officers to satisfy themselves, on the spot, not that the accused is a person who may possibly, if left at large, commit some offence, or that he is a person who has some time of his life been in jail on some charge or other, but that he is really a criminal who supports himself by preying upon society." For the rest the Lieutenant-Governor expressed his determination to insist on lawful supervision only, and not to permit the police to harass and oppress the people in their endeavours to have locked up in anticipation, and supported at the public cost, all those whom they think likely to give them any trouble. If under these orders the bad characters are allowed undue latitude, the Magistrate and the police officers in fault will be held responsible; and the Lieutenant-Governor will insist on loyal co-operation on the part of the Inspector-General in substituting a system of sensible control, and prevention of crime by intelligent exertion, for one under which it was possible in the course of one year and a half to prosecute 2,180 innocent persons for bad character.

24. In the resolution on the report for 1876, the Lieutenant-Governor remarked upon the neglect of the police of some districts to take cognizance of breaches of the excise laws. It is hoped that the orders then passed will be duly attended to during the current year. The action of the police has been satisfactory in Monghyr, Chittagong, Lohardugga, and Beerbhoom, and very unsatisfactory in Noakholly, Jessore, Nudda, Burdwan, Sarun, Mozufferpore, Dinagepore, Pubna, Rajshahye, Julpigoree, and the Dacca Division. An improvement in this respect will be insisted upon. In salt cases the action of the police has only been satisfactory in 24-Pergunnahs, Chittagong, and Cuttack. In Midnapore and Noakholly the police are clearly relaxing their efforts. The Lieutenant-Governor entirely concurs in the Inspector-General's view, that there is no necessity for any relaxation of the law in respect of illicit manufacture in Chittagong or elsewhere.

25. In non-cognizable crime there has been a decrease from 98,287 cases in 1876 to 95,367 in 1877. In the previous year, however, the increase was exceptional, and the number of cases in 1875 was actually less than in 1877. The fluctuation is to some extent explained by the action of the Magistrate of Dinagepore, who in 1876 proceeded judicially against a very large number of chowkidars, who are ordinarily dealt with departmentally. In the Dacca Division there was a decrease in the number of offences relating to marriage, but this decrease is not attributed to the working of the registration law. The Commissioner reports that little recourse is had to the provisions of the Act, and adds that "another year's experience certainly tends to show that, if the Act is to have the desired effect, registration of marriages and divorces must be made compulsory." The number of persons summoned by the Magistrates was 100,687 against 103,830, and of those who appeared, 72,745 against 75,691. The percentage of convictions was 41 and 57 against 43 and 59 respectively. The number of cases in which the agency of the police was employed was 5,670 against 4,964 in 1876. This is not satisfactory. It is very undesirable that the time of the police should be occupied in making enquiries in petty cases when they have so much to do in more important departments. In Backergunge, where serious crime of every class was rampant, no less than 858 non-cognizable cases were made over to the police for enquiry. This could not have occurred had the Magistrate exercised proper care in supervising the proceedings of his subordinates. In Dinagepore and Noakholly, two districts where the general administration was also unsatisfactory, the police were employed in 369 and 317 non-cognizable cases respectively. In Burdwan the number was 264, and in Cuttack 225, while in Singbhoom 20 per cent. of the non-cognizable cases instituted were thus dealt with. The variations in the proportion of persons convicted of non-cognizable offences in the different districts are again noticed. In Bankoora, Beerbhoom and Midnapore the proportions were 1 to 2,544, 1 to 2,596 and 1 to 2,588 persons respectively; while in the three other districts of the Burdwan Division (Burdwan, Hooghly and Howrah) they were 1 to 852, 1 to 663 and 1 to 527 persons respectively. The explanation can hardly be that the two last-named districts are to some extent Suburban; for in the 24-Pergunnahs and Nuddea the proportions were 1 to 1,173 and 1 to 1,436 respectively. Nor can it be that there are backward tracts in the first three, for the Sonthal Pergunnahs had 1 to 723 and the Chittagong Hill Tracts 1 to 610. It is particularly unsatisfactory to remark that the large proportion in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, which was noticed in last year's report, still continues. No less than 1,741 persons were convicted in this district against 597, or only 1 in 2,872 in the adjoining Regulation District of Bhagulpore. In Mozufferpore the proportion was only 1 to 3,090; while in Durbhunga, which was formerly a part of the same district, it was 1 to 935. No explanation is offered of this extraordinary circumstance.

26. The question of the supervision of criminal tribes received due attention during the year. The Mugheya Domes on the Nepal frontier at one time gave considerable trouble, and the adoption of an expensive scheme for their permanent repression was urged on Government. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, was unwilling to embark on such a project until it should be shown that ordinary resources had been exhausted. The Chumparun police were reinforced by a few men from the neighbouring districts, a complete system of patrols was established, and the active co-operation of the Nepalese Government was solicited and obtained. Since the close of the year a report has been received that the measures adopted have been completely successful. Mr. Knyvett, District Superintendent of Chumparun, has received the special commendation of Government for his judicious and vigorous action in dealing with these marauders.

27. There were 3,042 re-convictions recorded during the year against 2,435 in 1876. This subject is receiving due attention from police officers, but it is obvious that many Magistrates entirely fail to realize the actual criminality of persons who, after undergoing judicial trial and punishment for one or more offences, deliberately commit crime again. To inflict petty sentences in such cases is to reduce criminal procedure to a mere form; yet in many of the cases reported by the Inspector-General, sentences appear to have been passed on hardened criminals which would scarcely suffice on a first conviction. In Pooree, a man who had been convicted four times of theft, once of receiving stolen property, and twice of burglary, was on re-conviction of theft sentenced to six months' imprisonment. Another in Beerbhoom was on his fifth conviction for theft imprisoned for four months. In the Gurjats, Fakeer Mahapatter was convicted 13 times in 1877, and the aggregate term of imprisonment awarded him was 11½ months. In Monghyr, Jaisee was on his seventh conviction for theft sentenced to ten stripes. In Hooghly, Sheikh Abbas, who had been convicted once of robbery and twice of theft, and had been in jail for six and a half years out of the previous ten, was convicted of burglary a few days after his release from prison and sentenced to one day's imprisonment and 30 stripes. The double punishment shows that the judicial officer was aware of the previous convictions. In the same district, Bani Chungo, who had been twice in jail for theft, was convicted of burglary and sentenced to a fine of Rs. 3. Such proceedings can only bring the administration of justice into discredit. The Lieutenant-Governor will call for the records of a few of the most remarkable cases in order that he may see on what possible grounds the officers concerned justify such apparently inadequate sentences.

28. The conduct of the police has been generally good. Isolated instances of grave misconduct have occurred, but the sweeping condemnations so often passed upon the force have not been justified. Great dangers are thrown in their way owing to special circumstances, to the facilities which their position affords them for petty oppression, and to the apathy with which the people as a body, especially in the outlying districts, accept as inevitable some abuse of official power. Where gross maladministration has occurred, it has generally been the result of the absence of effective supervision on the part of the superior officers. If the police are not looked after, they do not rise above the traditional weaknesses of imperfectly educated officials dealing with an uneducated people, and malpractices of all kinds are naturally fostered. If they see their superiors apathetic and dilatory, they readily take advantage of the latitude allowed them; but if they are carefully watched and guided, and are encouraged to honest work by the certainty of appreciation and reward, they can, and do, perform most excellent service. The Lieutenant-Governor need not now repeat all that was said in the last Resolution on the paramount necessity of frequent and full inspections by superior officers. That police will always show the best results whose head controls them not only by scrutiny of their records, but by constantly moving about among the people and taking due cognizance of complaints. There can be no more certain way of demoralizing the police than refusing to believe any evil of them under false ideas of loyalty to subordinates; and those are the most efficient Superintendents who, while protecting their men from unjust censure and malicious attack, are the most ready to investigate readily any reasonable complaint. The District Superintendents of Midnapore, Lohardugga, Howrah, Noakholly, Gurjhat, Pubna, Purneah, and Manbhoom are reported to have neglected their inspection duties. A similar report was made regarding Midnapore and Lohardugga in the last report. The Lieutenant-Governor warns the Superintendents that neglect of this duty will not again be tolerated. Note has been taken of the names of the officers who have been selected by the Inspector-General for specially favourable mention. Mr. Monro's report is full and interesting, and presents an able analysis of the operations of the department during the year. The Lieutenant-Governor is satisfied from all he sees and hears from all parts of the country, that, under Mr. Monro's vigorous administration, the police is day by day becoming more efficient and more under control. But very much remains to be done before it can be said to be in a satisfactory condition.
